SLOW LANES ALL

The consequences of "rubbernecking" were apparent on southbound Highway 101 in Greenbrae this morning when a minor accident on Alto Hill backed up commuters all the way to San Rafael's Puerto Suello Hill. The California Highway Patrol said the accident, which caused no injuries, occurred at 6:45 a.m., and was cleared off the freeway within 10 minutes. But drivers slowing to view the damage started a monumental traffic snarl that lasted long into the commuter rush hours. (Independent-Journal photo)

Response To Novato Plan Good

By JEFF GREER

Novato's proposed general plan was given its first public hearing last night, receiving a generally favorable reaction from most of the audience of about 100 persons but drawing complaints from some that it was too lax and from others that it was too restrictive, unfair to property owners.

Those disappointed by laxity called for control of the rate of growth, a firm stand against joint civilian-military use of Hamilton Air Force Base and steps to preserve ridgelines as open space.

Complaints of major landowners brought to light for the first time intentions to develop thousands of dwellings on hundreds of acres in and around the city, projects they thought doomed by planning some described as confiscatory.

While the city planning commission opened its first hearing on the plan with a large audience, dozens of spectators slipped away during the three-and-one-half-hour session. The commission adjourned the hearing to 8 p.m. Oct. 30, and Chairman James Schoonover predicted a long series of hearings would be required before the plan was finally adopted.

The city staff has been preparing the plan for more than a year, assisted by citizens' neighborhood committees and professional consultants.

As presented, the general plan would limit the 35-square-mile Novato planning area to an ultimate population of 90,000, more than double the present estimated population of 43,000. The plan includes both city and county lands.

Planning Director Brian Mattson and senior planner Mark Westfall displayed maps indicating that Novato would seek to limit its ultimate population by zoning much of the hillside and flood plain lands for low density residential, agricultural, or private and public open space lands.

Audience members, however, were dissatisfied. Many called for limiting the population increase through some such device as Petaluma's review commission which allows only 500 new dwelling units to be built each year.

Commissioner James Picchi and a few audience members said they did not see how such a plan could work.

The growth rate controls were urged by Don Dickinson of the Novato Environmental Quality Committee, Joyce Thomson of 2 Amber Court, William Long of Neighborhood Committee No. 5 that helped form the general plan, Virgil Birdsall of Neighborhood Committee No. 3, and others. Most of the speakers also demanded guarantees against joint use of the air base, and that the city have adequate control over the base lands should the Air Force release it to other uses.

Councilman George Quesada offered no direct comment on the Novato plan, but urged city officials and citizens to compare it with the Marin countywide plan now in the process of adoption. He requested a joint meeting of the city council, planning commission and city planning staff with county planners for a review of the countywide plan and discussion of its relationship with the city's planning area.

Schoonover promised that such a meeting would be arranged.

Kissinger, Nixon Confer On Peace

White House Silent On Paris Sessions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just back from Paris and four days of private talks with Hanoi diplomats, Henry A. Kissinger met again today with President Nixon to discuss the prospects for Vietnam peace.

At the same time, Le Duc Tho, the chief North Vietnamese negotiator in the extraordinary Paris discussions, departed Paris for conferences of his own in Hanoi. Kissinger had nothing to say, on his return to Washington, about how things went in Paris but Tho said difficulties still remained.

The White House also was mum after this morning's one-hour, 15-minute session.

Tho headed for Hanoi via Peking, with the remark to reporters that "there are many difficult things" left to solve before peace could come. Asked to elaborate on his discussions with Kissinger, he responded: "I have nothing to say."

Kissinger went directly to the White House last night from Andrews Air Force Base to give Nixon an immediate, firsthand report on his efforts to break the war impasse.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Kissinger's chief deputy who accompanied him to Paris, attended this morning's more lengthy conference in the Nixon family dining room. They sat around a table under an ornate chandelier and a brooding portrait of John Adams. A fire crackled in the fireplace.

Newsmen were allowed in the dining room briefly for photographs and while they were present, the four men chatted not about Kissinger and Haig's Paris trip but Nixon's campaign visit to Atlanta yesterday.

They also talked a bit about the World Series, opening tomorrow in Cincinnati (Nixon told Rogers he wouldn't be able to make the opening game).

The Washington Post quoted "an unofficial source" as saying Kissinger and Tho agreed on "neutrality" for South Vietnam as part of an ultimate settlement and narrowed differences on other subjects but left unsettled two key questions — political control in Saigon and withdrawal of U.S. forces from the area.

Prior to Tho's departure from Paris this morning aboard a Soviet airliner, a spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation to the regular Paris peace talks said, "All the necessary conditions for a peace settlement are present, but it is the Nixon administration that impedes things by its aggressive and neocolonialist policies."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said after a White House meeting yesterday morning that he could foresee no preelection settlement. But he said it could come before inauguration day, next Jan. 20.

Sargent Shriver, Democratic presidential nominee, charged that the Kissinger talks in Paris were "nothing but an election ploy" by the administration.

A spokesman for the National Peace Action Coalition described the spate of "peace rumors" as propaganda moves by the administration to help Nixon win re-election. Jerry Gordon said the rumors were "inspired by the Nixon administration to draw the public's attention away from the murderous bombing attacks against the Vietnamese.

Hayakawa Resigns At S.F. State

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, feisty professor who brought an end to campus riots at San Francisco State College three years ago, resigned today as the university's president.

Hayakawa, a Japanese-American semanticist who was tapped as president of the troubled campus during a student-teacher strike in 1968, said he would remain on campus as "president emeritus" of the school, renamed last year as California State University, San Francisco.

Wearing a bright-colored tam o'shanter, Hayakawa burst into nationwide prominence through his dealings with the strikers. During one demonstration when the hat was grabbed from his head, he waded into a hostile crowd to retrieve it.

"President Hayakawa assumed office at a most difficult period, and with a specific assignment — to bring peace and order to a troubled campus," said state university Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke in a statement issued today. "He not only accomplished this objective with effectiveness and dispatch, but in the doing of it became a national symbol of the turning point in the unfortunate cycle of campus turbulence which characterized the late 1960s."

S. I. HAYAKAWA
Holds school ties

At a news conference to announce his resignation, the 66-—year-old administrator said he wanted to remain at the university.

"Because I want to continue serving the university in whatever capacity I can in community, legislative, public relations and fund-raising activities, I have asked Chancellor Dumke if I may be named President Emeritus after my resignation," Hayakawa said. "He has endorsed the idea warmly and will so recommend to the trustees."

For nearly six months during 1968 and 1969, skirmishes between police and demonstrators were an almost daily occurrence, and Hayakawa became the third man to hold the president's job in that short period.

Hayakawa kept hundreds of police on campus, and they made hundreds and hundreds of arrests — about 400 in one day alone. He denounced the rebel leaders as "hoodlums."

In that period of student unrest nationwide, his hardline attitude attracted so much attention that polls showed that he would be a highly popular candidate in California's 1970 contest for the U. S. Senate.

But Hayakawa, a lifelong Democrat, declined to run. He said he preferred to use his new influence to defend academic freedom and to promote higher education. Since then, he has been active on the lecture circuit and author of a newspaper column.

Born in Vancouver, B. C., Hayakawa was educated largely in Canada. While teaching in Chicago, he wrote a column on race relations for a Negro newspaper and became an authority on jazz.

Hayakawa joined the faculty of San Francisco State College in 1955 and gained fame in intellectual circles for works such as "Language In Action."

He was named acting president during the fall semester of 1968.

After passing the mandatory retirement age of 65, the board of trustees of what is now the state university system has kept his contract on a year-to-year basis.

Sears' Grand Opening Tomorrow At Northgate

A monumental traffic jam is expected tomorrow at sunrise at Northgate Shopping Center Mall when Sears Roebuck opens its new retail store.

A special eight-page section in today's issue of the Independent-Journal is devoted ex8 clusively to pictures and stories on the new Northgate Sears.

San Rafael Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori said he will have special patrols, including motorcycle officers to handle traffic and crowds, which could reach 15,000.

When Northgate Mall parking area of 3,000 spaces is filled, signs will be posted along the highways asking motorists to park at the Marin County Civic Center, said Brusatori. Shuttle buses will be used to take shoppers to and from Northgate Mall.

Opening festivities began today with a grand opening preview luncheon for business and civic leaders at the Sears store, with actress Arlene Dahl among the participants. Hosts were W. H. Sanders, manager of store, and George G. Gaugler of Hayward, district manager.

Tomorrow's ceremonies begin at 7:17 a.m. with a "campaign breakfast" for Winnie-the-Pooh, accompanied by other Disneyland characters. An eight-piece Dixieland band will entertain the crowds until 8 a.m. when the doors of Sears will swing open.

The new store, automotive center and garden shop have a total floor area fo 225,000 square feet, which is equivalent to more than five acres.

Ross Holds Out On Countywide Park, Eyes Bald Hill Purchase

By PAT PERRY

The Town of Ross last night became the only one of Marin's 11 cities to fail to endorse the proposed regional park district on the November ballot, despite pleas from many residents in the audience favoring Measure A.

Instead, the town council voted to explore buying Bald Hill — Ross's only candidate for county open space purchase — by a bond issue.

At first, councilman Roy Farrington Jones proposed that the town buy the 55-acre Bald Hill "as a visual easement without anyone walking on it."

But after resident Tracy Van Voorhees said he had "never heard of anything so ridiculous" as buying 55 acres that nobody could walk on, Jones changed the proposal to purchase "as a wilderness area."

The council was asked to endorse the open space measure after a talk on Measure A by Carol Staley of People for Parks and Open Space. She said every other city in Marin had given its endorsement.

But the Ross council viewed with horror the prospect of the county acquiring jurisdiction over a county park within Ross borders.

Jones said "it was a nightmare to Ross" when the county fair was held at the Marin Art and Garden Center. Besides, he said, he didn't know all the pros and cons of the ballot measure and wasn't going to endorse anything until he voted.

Councilman Alan P. Maginis voted with Jones in declining to endorse the open space measure, saying it wasn't the council's job to get involved in elections.

Mayor Frederick S. Allen said he was in favor of open space but not of recreational use. "We don't want anything to do with a park or recreation area, it isn't feasible."

Michael R. Marron told the council its failure to endorse the countywide plan would not be reflecting the views of the constituency, and Van Voorhees said Ross has always been "too concerned about Ross."

Finally, Jones and Maginnis voted not to endorse the measure. Jewell Osterloh and Allen voted for it. With councilman John H. Chase absent, the tie prevented endorsement.

Jones promptly introduced his motion that the town inves-

Mrs. McGovern Undergoes Tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Eleanor McGovern underwent tests at Georgetown University Hospital today for abdominal pains she suffered late Thursday after long hours of campaigning for her husband.

Her press secretary said she was resting comfortably and slept most of the morning. Her husband, Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern, was campaigning in Washington state.

A hospital spokesman said she would be kept in the hospital at least until tomorrow for further tests.

There was no further indication on the nature of the illness or the tests.

President Sets Talk On Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon will deliver a radio campaign speech Sunday on the administration's fight against crime.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said today the speech is one of several Nixon plans to give before Nov. 7. He spoke last Saturday, also on radio, on his tax program and for a $250 billion limit on federal spending.

Rains Will Return, Weatherman Says

Marin and Southern Sonoma today experienced a rainless morning for the first time in several days, but the weatherman said the respite probably would be brief.

The National Weather Service said showers are expected through tomorrow, although they will be less severe than the intermittent downpours which have struck since Monday.

A total of 3.80 inches of rain has fallen on San Rafael since the week's start — .48 of an inch in a 24-hour period ending at noon today.

Other rainfall figures for Marin and Southern Sonoma, taking in a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today, were: Bolinas, .72 of an inch; Ross, .63; Woodacre, .46, and Sausalito, .40.

The week-long storm was blamed for four deaths in the Bay Area. There were no storm-related deaths in Marin or Sonoma.

The weather service said the low pressure system that brought the rain had drifted to the west and was about 450 miles southwest of San Francisco this morning.

Cut Reported In Nixon Lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — An increase in undecided voters as well as a jump in the number of those planning to vote Nov. 7, has cut slightly into President Nixon's huge lead on Sen. George McGovern, the Sindlinger polling organization reported Friday.

The survey, covering the week of Sept. 29-Oct. 5, was conducted by telephone interviews with 2,311 persons across the country.

The survey indicated that 60.5 per cent of voters planned to vote for Nixon, 21 per cent planned to vote for McGovern and 18.5 per cent were undecided.

In the previous week's survey, Nixon's lead was 62.1 per cent to 21.5 per cent for McGovern.

Gate Park Bill To President

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A bill creating a 34,000-acre Golden Gate National Recreation Area in Marin and San Francisco cleared its final congressional hurdle yesterday, and now awaits only President Nixon's signature to become a reality.

The measure, establishing a park running from Point Reyes National Seashore to Fort Funston, passed the Senate without dissent. The House approved the bill Wednesday night.

Nixon has endorsed creation of the park.

The measure authorizes spending $118.6 million for the recreation area, including $60.6 million for land acquisition and $58 million for developing recreational facilities.

The park would include Angel Island, Marin Headlands and

Uprising Planned

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald, who ordered the storming of Attica, says the rebellion there last year was carefully planned by inmates who hoped to set off a massive, nationwide revolution.

Oswald's statement, presented in a book released today which details Oswald's version of the riot, is in direct contradiction to the conclusion reached by the McKay Commission. That commission concluded after one year of study that the uprising in September, 1971, was spontaneous and there was no conspiracy among the inmates to riot.

In the 418-page book, "Attica My Story," published by Doubleday, Oswald defends his and the state's actions during the five-day rebellion which claimed 43 lives.

Pledge By Golda

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir warned yesterday that Israel, despite what she called worldwide indifference, has no intention of letting Arab guerrilla terrorism against Israelis persist.

Addressing mourners at a Tel Aviv memorial service for the 11 members of the Israeli Olympic delegation killed by Palestinian guerrillas Sept. 5 in Munich, she said the days of shedding tears for Israeli targets of Arab terrorists may be numbered.

"We shall see to it that the lives of everyone of us, in every corner of the world, shall be safe," Mrs. Meir said.

Heroin Use Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department reports heroin in Thailand costs one-third what it did in Vietnam and that tests of U.S. servicemen in Thailand detect a recent fivefold increase in its use.

"The availability of heroin is up in Thailand compared to what it was at the height of our problem in Vietnam, and the price is lower," Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Wilbur said Thursday.

The United States has increased its Air Force units in Thailand during the withdrawal of personnel from South Vietnam, and there are now about 45,000 American servicemen in Thailand.

Until recently, drug use tests had shown .5 per cent of those tested in Thailand were users, but the rate now has jumped to 2.5 per cent.

Prestige Climbs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers ended three weeks of talks with ministers from 77 countries yesterday and said "the prestige of the United States is as high as it has ever been."

Rogers said the talks covered "literally all the major problems of the world."

In sharp contrast with anti-American statements made in public debates in the United Nations, the private discussions held in his hotel suite were "very reasonable with almost no exceptions," he said.

There are "certain things that have to be said for political purposes domestically" in the U.N. debates, Rogers said.

"The prestige of the United States is as high as it has ever been," he said, reflecting on the talks. "It is interesting to contrast the discussions we have had here with what is said in the public forum."

A Sad Journey

LOMPOC (UPI) — A San Francisco couple drove the body of their dead son here from San Francisco so that his imprisoned brother could attend services.

With the body of their son Terry, 26, in a hearse, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Malone and six of their children drove to the Federal Correctional Institution here yesterday.

Service was to be held in the prison chapel so it could be attended by their son Herman, serving a term for selling heroin. But the chapel was being used as a shelter because of rain so service was moved to a local mortuary.

Terry died of cancer.

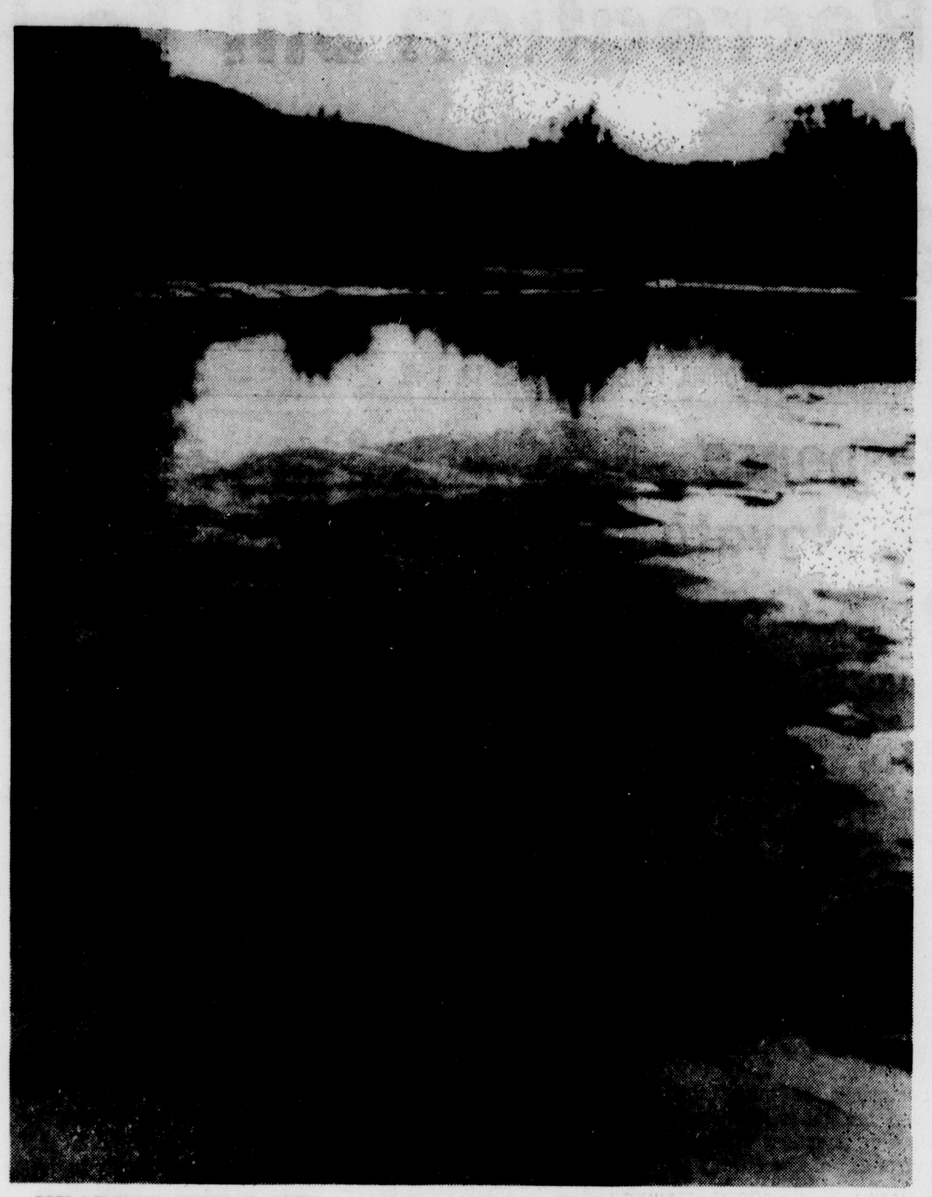

Herman has been restricted for 90 days for breaking prison rules and could not have a furlough.

(UPI Telephoto)

Pipe Bursts, 60,000 Gallons Of Oil Head For Lake In Utah

MEXICAN HAT, Utah (UPI) —A 60,000-gallon oil slick rimmed the San Juan River banks with a thick black sludge and filled the lairs of beavers while flowing today toward fish-filled Lake Powell.

Crews worked near the entrance to the clear, blue waters of the lake, setting up 1,500-foot styrofoam booms to catch the oil and prevent what a state fisheries official said would be a "catastrophe" if the slick got into the 196-mile long lake in Utah and Arizona.

The slick formed when a Texas-New Mexico pipeline burst in northwestern New Mexico spilling the crude oil into an irrigation ditch which runs into the river.

The slick was moving at about two miles an hour, officials said, and was expected to reach the booms set up at Copper Canyon some time on Saturday.

The Environmental Protection Agency was directing efforts to contain the slick and skim the oil off the water with vacuum-cleaner like devices before it reached the lake which abounds with bass, trout, walleyed pike, crappies and catfish.

"It would be a catastrophe if that much oil got into the lake," said state fisheries biologist George McLaughlin. "If it reaches the lake, it could be detrimental to the fish population."

The slick was last reported as stretched from the Goosenecks national preserve to the city of Bluff.

Roger Chadwick, a photographer, and Kenneth Ross, a river tour operator, rode down the river in a rubber raft Thursday.

"Big thick globs of crude oil swirled all around us," said Chadwick.

The river banks, with willows and brush on one side and 200-foot red sandstone cliffs on the other, were rimmed with a three-inch strip of oil, he said. Pools as big as 20 feet across were in the back water in some places.

"It was an icky, nasty mess," Chadwick said. "Wherever the river leveled out all the sand bars were covered with big globs of oil."

Ross said entrances to the lairs of beavers who dig into the banks along the San Juan instead of making dams, were covered by the oil.

The oil had flushed beavers out of their homes and he saw four pairs, which Ross described as unusual in daylight.

"Four of the six were covered with oil," he said.

Jets Strike Near Hanoi Despite Legation Uproar

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command sent F111A swing-wing fighter-bombers on raids only 10 miles from Hanoi Thursday night despite the controversy surrounding the bombing of the French and Algerian missions in the North Vietnamese capital, military spokesmen said today.

The command said the all-weather, radar-guided F111s bombed a missile factory 10 miles northeast of Hanoi then attacked other targets further north. Monsoons over much of North Vietnam again restricted the raids by more conventional U.S. warplanes but spokesmen in Saigon said "more than" 200 strikes were flown.

In ground action, Communist forces in South Vietnam overran the onetime U.S. Green Beret camp at Ben Het in the Central Highlands for the first time in the war after virtually destroying it with more than 1,500 rocket, mortar and artillery rounds, military sources said.

Viet Cong units also pressed a campaign north of Saigon into its second week today and clung to a string of hamlets north of the capital despite heavy bombing raids by South Vietnamese Air Force planes, field reports said.

The U.S. Command reported 12 B52 bomber missions around Saigon in the 24-hour period ending at noon today. The closest strikes to the capital were 27 miles northeast of the city, a communique said.

Six B52 missions were carried out over North Vietnam including two raids over the Mu Gia Pass, a major supply route connecting with the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos. Mu Gia is 75 miles northwest of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

U.S. spokesmen said an AH1 Cobra helicopter gunship was shot down Thursday outside the rugged Que Son Valley on South Vietnam's upper coast. Although the chopper was destroyed, the two crewmen were rescued unhurt, spokesmen said.

The U.S. command also announced it was delaying the withdrawal of 170 American pilots and crewmen and the turnover to South Vietnam of the last 18 A37 Dragonfly jet bombers, apparently because of a renewed Communist threat in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon.

Military spokesmen said results of the F111 strikes on the Duc Thang missile assembly plant outside Hanoi "were not observed" because of the darkness and weather. The planes, which cost $15 million each,, also attacked an ammunition dump 22 miles northwest of Hanoi along with an Army base, railroad causeway and military training center.

The Navy disclosed that the aircraft carrier Midway, whose jets may or may not have bombed the French and Algerian missions in Hanoi on Wednesday, left what the military calls Yankee Station in the Tonkin Gulf the following day for a "routine" port call.

Hike In Public Aid Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Total federal spending for public assistance rose slightly from May to June even though 21,000 fewer persons got aid, the Health, Education and Welfare Department reported Thursday.

HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service said payments were made to 15,057,000 people in June and that total expenditures for the month were $1,602,547,000—an increase of $9.3 million over May.

The largest single increase, about $7.3 million, was for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program, which cost nearly $570 million in June.

Of the total spent on all public assistance, including Medicaid, the HEW agency said 56.8 per cent was in the form of money payments. It said medical assistance accounted for 43 per cent and .2 per cent was for emergency aid.

The Queen Laughs Off Wild Spree

STIRLING, Scotland (UPI)—The throng of beer and wine drinking students mobbed, insulted and nearly injured the Queen of England. One thrust a bottle of wine under her nose. Others shouted obscenities and made rude gestures.

Members of Queen Elizabeth's entourage were enraged Thursday when several hundred Scottish university students staged a drunken demonstration against her. But the Queen smiled and laughed it off.

Stirling's police chief, William McKellar, said about 400 of the university's 3,400 students participated in the demonstration against the Queen.

"They were drunken scum," he said. "Her Majesty's ears were assaulted with some words that I daresay she may never have heard before."

The youths said they staged the demonstration—the only one of its kind in the 20-year-old reign of Britain's 46-year-old monarch—to protest the cost to the taxpayer of the Queen's visit to the university.

When the Queen arrived to visit Scotland's showpiece Stirling University, several hundred students leaned from dormitory windows waving beer cans and wine bottles and shouted: "Go home, you Hun, go home!"

The students, mostly long-haired youths, began jostling the Queen's party when she reemerged on campus after lunch with university officials.

Mill Valley Clerk Challenges City, Union; May Lose Job

Mill Valley's deputy city clerk has challenged the city's municipal employees union and she may lose her job following their showdown Oct. 31.

Lucretia Little, a familiar figure around city hall for 21 years, has refused to join the union or pay a "service charge" of $4 a month, as required by a recently adopted memorandum of understanding between the city council and the union.

The agreement reached in August establishes an agency shop in Mill Valley which requires all city employees to pay either union dues or a service charge equal to union dues.

Mrs. Little, who objects to the existence of an employees union in a town the size of Mill Valley, has asked the city to pay her $4 sercice charge.

She has refused to sign a form authorizing a payroll deduction of $4 a month until a legal challenge to an agency shop in Hayward is resolved in the courts.

"Pending the court decision in the Hayward case, there will be no money taken from my paycheck," declared Mrs. Little, who expects to retire in June.

Union local president Dwight McCoy told the Independent-Journal that he will force the issue on Oct. 31, two months after the memorandum of understanding took effect and one month after her service charge was due. "I intend to inform the city manager (on Oct. 31) that Mrs. Little has not paid the service charge and that she should be discharged," said McCoy.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham would not comment on Mrs. Little's case, but said he would probably dismiss any city employee who violated the memorandum of understanding by refusing to pay the union charges.

The city council agreed to establish the agency shop Aug. 15 in order to break a deadlock that had stalled contract negotiations with the employees union for months.

According to McCoy, Mrs. Little is the only holdout. Thirty-seven employees are members of the union and four others pay the required service charge, he said.

Disaster Area In Education

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Clark Kerr, chairman of the Carnegie Commission on Higher ducation, said Thursday liberal education has become "a disaster" because it has catered to people who plan to become specialists in particular fields.

Kerr told the Regional Conference for Trustees, Regents and Presidents of Colleges and Universities that some major reforms in higher education have been made, such as greater access and a greater degree of permissiveness in campus life. But he added, "The changes have not been sufficient for our times."

"We must take a look at the lock-step arrangement for students and reduce the time it takes to get degrees," he said. "It's hard-going because it has a very great impact."

NOVATO

critics were individual landowners who said their developments were jeopardized by the proposed city plan. Some had spokesmen from real estate or law offices, who revealed development plans for the first time.

Attorney Wallace S. Myers said he wanted 45 minutes to argue why his clients should be allowed to develop 325 acres of the Rowe Ranch property outside city limits with 1,499 units. The proposed general plan calls for a density of only 290 units. He agreed to appear at a later hearing.

John Giordano, Sacramento attorney, said his client, Mariana Richardson of Sacramento, owns 500 acres alongside Highway 37 that the plan designates as agricultural. The American Housing Guild is interested in subdividing the land, he said, and therefore the city should leave it in "a study zone." He said the agricultural designation would be "confiscatory."

Aileen Souza of Stockton and real estate man Paul Wilhite of Novato argued that the Robello family should be allowed to build 680 units on their 731 hilly acres overlooking the Indian Valley Golf Course.

The general plan earmarks the land for continued agricultural use, but its present income is less than the property taxes, Mrs. Souza argued.

John A. Trumbull of 2035 E. Dorado Court challenged the economic impact of the plan's low density residential areas and extensive open space. He asked whether the county assessor "would accept the city's judgment" on land use and reduce valuations.

Trumbull asked why longtime property owners "should have to convince you" not to rezone their high value land to a lower density use, after paying high property taxes for years.

He also complained at shrinkage of industrial lands compared to the city's existing, 1967 plan. He singled out the wrecking yard on Deer Island, and the Redwood land fill dump north of Novato as desirable industry sites.

Betty Machado charged that the staff had gone beyond the recommendations of the citizen committees in drafting the plan. She criticized a lack of unification of utility districts and other urban services, in the city plan.

The plan was defended by Mrs. George Barnwell, who urged "don't let Novato become another San Jose," and said "let's not push everybody up to Sonoma" to find a pleasant life.

Other speakers generally supported the proposed plan, but asked stricter control of creekside developments, preservation of larger Petaluma River and San Pablo Bay marsh areas and other conservation measures. Several asked that Bowman Canyon be shifted from the Novato area plan to the county-wide plan's "rural central corridor" and urged that Rancho Olompoli be designated an historic preserve.

Club Members Hear Ferry Plan

Amid many questions, preliminary plans for the Larkspur ferry terminal on Corte Madera Creek were presented to the Greenbrae Improvement Club last night by Robert Shields, chief engineer of the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Lee R. Miller, a club member, said members raised numerous inquiries about the traffic pattern of the ferry boats, and how they would turn around at the bridge district's terminal site.

District officials assured members, Miller said, that the ferries would not come very far into the creek's mouth, and would turn in their own "basin" near the quarry area.

Miller said Greenbrae Boardwalk residents were worried about waves from the ferries swamping their homes. Officials said this would be taken into account in planning.

Other concerns included car parking and the possibility of large-scale developments by T.I. Properties, which has acquired most of the developable land on the San Quentin Peninsula, Miller said.

Innocent Plea To Burglary

A 23-year-old Larkspur man, allegedly found in a musician's van at the Lion's Share rock hall in San Anselmo, has pleaded innocent to a burglary charge.

A preliminary hearing for Narry Francis Fergerstrom Jr. was set Wednesday for Nov. 31.

San Anselmo police said security guards at the night spot found him in a van where he claimed to be looking for a lost coat.

Panel Wants Jurisdiction On Impact

The Marin County Environmental Protection Committee recommended yesterday it become the hearing board to determine if proposed construction projects need environmental impact reports.

The committee, made up of officials from the planning, public works and parks and recreation departments, will forward the recommendation to county supervisors Tuesday.

Under a recent ruling of the state Supreme Court, environmental impact reports must be made for all development projects that may have a significant effect on the environment.

According to Marin County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, the procedure mapped out by county officials calls for the planning department to decide which projects will require impact reports.

If the planning department decides a project does not require a report, the matter automatically will go to the protection committee. The committee will have the authority to overrule the planning department's decision and require a report.

On the other hand, if the planning department decides a project must have a report, the developer may appeal to the planning commission and board of supervisors.

ROSS

tigate ways to buy Bald Hill, and it was approved unanimously.

Norman Walter, owner of the 55-acre parcel, confessed he was embarrassed by the sudden attention to the piece of land he bought years ago with the intention of subdividing.

"I can't really afford to have an opinion about it," he said, "I'd like to see it preserved — I can't take that kind of burden on my shoulders much longer."

Jones, who said Walter was paying $6,000 or $7,000 a year in property taxes on the land, proposed seeing "whether or not the residents of this town feel strongly enough to put their money where their mouth is" and buy the land.

Allen claimed the skyline land was impossible to build on because of access, sewage and water difficulties, and added that the town council could prohibit subdivision anyway by "putting so many restrictions on the property."

Walter disagreed, saying he took issue to the opinion that it was undevelopable, but added that he had never intended to speak at the meeting and had expected to remain "in an island of anonymity."

But a man in the audience stated that, like most other Ross residents, he had always walked on Bald Hill, thinking it was a public trail. He would like to thank Walter on behalf of the community for allowing them to do so.

Whereupon the embarrassed Walter was loudly applauded by everyone in the town hall.

Finley Lawsuit Not Dismissed

The Independent-Journal erred Saturday by stating that a lawsuit by bail bondsman Ralph Finley against competitor Joseph J. Pecora was dismissed in Marin Superior Court.

Finley's $200,000 suit charging he was assaulted by Pecora in the San Rafael building where they have their offices is still alive, according to Finley's attorney, John J. Davids of San Rafael.

What was dismissed was a countersuit by Pecora asking $11,000 for an alleged attack by Finley on July 21, 1971, two days after Finley claims to have been pushed down a flight of stairu and kicked in an incident in the Cheda Building.

Davids said Judge E. Warren McGuire threw out that suit because it was filed more than a year after the incident.

Military Affairs Committed Installs

Clifford S. Lund of San Rafael has been installed as president of the Marin Military Affairs Committee.

Installed with him at a dinner last Friday at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club were Robert A. Hedquist of San Rafael, first vice president; M. E. (Babe) Silva of Novato, second vice president; William F. Lennon of Novato, secretary; Jack E. Bucknum, treasurer, and Howard Bradley of San Rafael, corresponding secretary.

However, it would include private lands in Olema Valley, Marincello and 305 acres above Tamalpais Valley. Wolfback Ridge, sought by some Marin conservationists and public officials for inclusion, is not part of the bill.

Recreation area lands in San Francisco would include Aquatic Park, Ocean Beach, Alcatraz Island, Fort Point and part of the Presidio.

Innocent Pleas By Girl, 17

A 17-year-old San Rafael girl who was ruled not fit for juvenile proceedings pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to felony counts of burglary, forgery and forgery of a credit card slip.

A preliminary hearing for Deborah Bronson was scheduled for Tuesday, the date already selected for codefendant Richard A. Hickox, who is charged with four counts of burglary.

Miss Bronson, who faced 15 counts of forgery to obtain about $500 worth of merchandise July 25, was ordered to adult court by juvenile court referee Jack G. Blaine on Sept. 29.

In municipal court she is charged with burglarizing the home of Dr. Thomas Zavattero of 323 Prospect Drive, San Rafael, on July 25, then forging his name twice to use a credit card taken from his home.

Hickox, who lives in San Rafael, is charged with three other burglaries in San Rafael on July 16, 21, and 25, plus the breakin at the Zavattero residence.

Jury Convicts On Robbery

A Marin Superior Court jury has convicted Steven John Pappas, 21, of San Francisco, of second degree robbery after four hours of deliberation.

The jury before Judge E. Warren McGuire rejected a prosecution bid for a first degree robbery conviction. The prosecution had contended that Pappas was armed when he robbed Thomas Scott Robertson of Tiburon in Larkspur in April.

Robertson testified that Pappas and codefendant Richard Dean Guendner, 21, of Larkspur, used a knive to take $75 from him. But Guendner said there was no weapon and that Robertson gave him and Pappas the cash to buy him marijuana, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. John D. Posey Jr.

Guendner pleaded guilty to second degree burglary and was sentenced in August. He was given a suspended prison sentence and six months in jail.

McGuire set sentencing of Pappas for Nov. 1.

Redevelop Agency Is Opposed

The Novato Chamber of Commerce board yesterday decided to oppose the formation of a redevelopment agency in Novato until agency goals and areas under consideration are made public, according to secretary Billie Garl.

The board, in accepting a report from its legislative committee, said it wanted to evaluate financing if such an agency is formed. It also wanted the specific area defined, she said.

The board voted to have a champagne party from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Oct. 26 at Tankersley Realty, honoring Century Club members who contribute $100 or more annually. Other members may attend for a small charge.

Robert Lagle resigned from the board and Richard Oldham, owner of Empire Chevrolet Co., was appointed to replace him.

The chamber will solicit funds for the nativity scene for Christmas as no funds were allocated for it by the city, Mrs. Garl said.

Burglary Count To Higher Court

A 19-year-old Marin City resident, already facing charges of attempted robbery in Marin Superior Court, was bound over yesterday on a burglary charge.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court ordered Osborne O'Neill Turner to appear in the higher court Oct. 26.

Turner has been charged with burglarizing the home of Arleen Emmanuel at 115 Harrison Street, Sausalito, on July 14 in addition to the robbery charge.

He was arrested Sept. 22 with Barbara Ann Scott, 21, also of Marin City, on suspicion of trying to rob the clerk at Dan's Groceries and Liquors at 254 Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

Three persons armed with a pistol allegedly entered the store and asked for money, but fled empty-handed.

Cases Sent To Superior Court

Two San Francisco men, charged with trying to break into a San Rafael restaurant, were bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court and ordered to appear Oct. 25 by Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court.

Demetrius Tsiodoelus, 35, and Veselin George Radunovich, 42, were arrested July 5 by San Rafael police, who received a tip someone was trying to break into Jim Jam's restaurant at 810 Third Street.

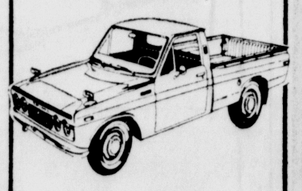

Police said pry marks were found on the restaurant's rear door.

Boat May Float Again, Owner Says

A pleasure boat — once a familiar sight on San Francisco Bay for 25 years but which now lies in 85 feet of water off Alcatraz Island — may float again.

The craft, a 40-foot cruiser converted from war surplus by Silvio Ruffino, struck a rock 200 yards offshore Oct. 4 and sank. Five Coast Guard units attempted to keep the vessel, named Pogie, afloat with pumps, but once freed from the rock she sank so quickly she took two pumps down with her.

Ruffino, of 62 Marina Boulevard, San Rafael, has commissioned a Sausalito salvage company for the job of raising the boat. If the Pogie is brought up, Ruffino will get all the radio and fishing equipment on board, worth an estimated $5,000, and the salvagers will keep the rest.

Ruffino said the boat's value, without equipment, was $20,000. She was insured only for collision liability.

Ruffino, one of the founding partners of Bianco Motors, then of Corte Madera, retired in 1960 and spent a lot of time since then fishing on the Pogie outside the bay. He regularly took friends with him, although he never rented the boat out.

"She's an old landmark," he said. "Everybody that has a boat knows her. When that boat went down, a part of me went down with it."

Some Damage To Grapes By Storm

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Wine Institute said Wednesday that the current Northern California rainstorm has caused some damage to vineyards.

But, Roy Taylor of the institute said, growers were optimistic about saving most of the grapes still on the vines.

"There will be some loss but we think it will be nominal," he said.

Taylor added that "with a few exceptions" vineyard owners had picked all but about 10 per cent of their grapes and the picking was expected to be completed by the end of next week.

"Only a continuous downpour" would halt the picking, Raylor said.

Peevey Issues Lists Of His Contributors

Michael R. Peevey, candidate for Marin County supervisor in the fourth district, voluntarily issued a list zesterday of 73 individuals and organizations who have contributed a total of $6,237 to his campaign since June 15.

In addition, he reported his own contribution of a $4,000 bank loan and $700 of his own cash.

State law requires such an itemized list, linking contributors with the amounts each gave, only for contributions of $500 or more.

A similar list was issued before the June primary election by Peevey's opponent, Gary T. Giacomini, but Peevey refused at that time to do so, as requested by a weekly newspaper. Peevey urged Giacomini to disclose his contributors to his November general election campaign as well.

The list included both conservationists and developers, Peevey noted, adding that "building a broad-based campaign organization is necessary, not only to win an election, but to be an effective supervisor who will represent all the people, not just a selected few."

Peevey reported eight contributions between $200 and $300 totaling $2,050. They were from the San Francisco Political Action Committee, Building and Construction Trades Council, Harold Heers, Charles Nygren, Vern Freeman, Kenneth Kehoe, Al Grossi and William Nave.

Three contributions totaling $550 were from Lou Della Valle, Retail Clerks Local No. 119 and Bill Barboni.

He also reported 29 contributions between $50 and $100 totaling $2,350, including contributions from: David Greenlee, executive director of the Marin Builders Exchange; Harry Heifetz, developer; A.J. Bianchi, West Marin rancher and a leader of Marin Property Owners Association; Marin Council for Civic Affairs, of which Peevey is vice chairman; Alfred Heller, president of California Tomorrow; Elmo Maggiora, contractor, and Vera Schultz, former Marin County supervisor.

Finally, he reported 33 smaller contributions totaling $587.

Longtime POW's Wife Remarries

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (UPI) —The former wife of America's longest held prisoner of war says she got a divorce and remarried because she "just fell out of love" with him.

Navy Lt. Everett Alvarez of Santa Clara, Calif., was married only four months to his wife, Tangee, now 32, when he was captured in North Vietnam eight years ago.

"I just fell out of love with Everett," the former Mrs. Alvarez said Thursday in an interview at the home of her attorney, Howard Silberman.

She said that two years ago she went to Tijuana and married the man she now loves. She got a Mexican divorce and the couple honeymooned in Carmel. They now have a daughter.

"I'm very happy now and I don't regret one bit what I've done," the attractive brunette said.

Democrats for Nixon

WELFARE ACTIVITY — While President Nixon was in Atlanta yesterday, a group of activists, angry over a Nixon campaign television advertisement and the administration's welfare program, took over a Washington, D.C., office of the Democrats-For-Nixon. No complaints were filed. The group said it would use the office as a lobbying point to organize a fight against the Nixon program.

McGovern Maps 7-Point Conduct Code

SEATTLE (UPI)—George S. McGovern charged today that "political money and special favors flow like Niagara" under the Nixon administration and proposed a seven-point program of standards of conduct for government employes.

McGovern proposed that Congress enact legislation assuring all candidates in general elections and primaries a federally financed campaign fund and added in a speech to the King County Bar Association that, "We must sever the link between political contributions and governmental action."

McGovern also proposed that all government employes making more than $15,000 a year make full public disclosure of their incomes, assets and liabilities and recommended the creation of an independent office of investigation with the power to look into charges of illegal activities made against members of the executive department or the White House staff.

Other points under McGovern's proposed "ethics in government" program would forbid any special interest group from pleading its case in secret meetings at the White House; legislation requiring prior public notice and public transcripts of all non-official meetings held by independent regulatory agencies; a requirement of a five-year wait before any government employe can take a job with a company with which he has had dealings on behalf of the government.

McGovern said, "I believe these reforms would go a long way toward restoring public confidence in the government of the United States.

"Those who hold public office for money or for power have had their day in America," McGovern said. "The time has come for those who want to serve."

He added that under the Nixon administration "the influence of big money has become so pervasive in Washington that the American people are being systematically denied the protection they deserve."

As he embarked on another swing through the West Coast states, McGovern said he feels "very encouraged that he can come from behind to defeat President Nixon. But his top strategists concede it will take a virtual sweep of the big electoral states in the north.

"We're all convinced we're on the way," McGovern said Thursday, carrying his campaign from the East Coast to the West Coast. "I'm still the underdog but we're moving very fast now."

He added, "It's a real feeling...I'm very encouraged." The feeling, he said, was based on the record-breaking crowds that have met him in places like Erie, Pa., Boston, and Minneapolis.

"I think the evidence is there," he said. "If most people thought this was a futile effort, we wouldn't be able to fill those city squares time after time."

His strategists say, however, that McGovern is still a "long shot" and that everything has to come together in the final 3 1-2 weeks, especially in the states with the big chunks of electoral votes.

McGovern's private polls now show him an average 12 points behind Nixon in the eight states with the most electoral votes—California, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Texas and New Jersey. That figure is comparable to the 16 point average revealed by the most recent Harris survey.

Of these eight states, McGovern's best proupects are in California where the personal poll shows the two presidential candidates even. The poll indicates he is in the worst shape in Texas, although no percentage figure is given.

McGovern must carry New York state to win, according to the scenario, but he could lose one of the other eight big states and still defeat Nixon.

In addition, the McGovern camp is counting on such states as Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut in the northeast. McGovern has said that if Nixon takes those three New England states, the President is headed for a landslide.

The McGovern campaign is also looking at Minnesota and Wisconsin, with a long shot possibility in Iowa. Oregon and Washington are possibilities on the West Coast, along with California.

McGovern begins a three-day campaign today on the West Coast before heading for Texas for two days.

ONE IN EVERY CROWD — Although thousands listened attentively to Democratic Presidential candidate George McGovern yesterday in Minneapolis, one fellow appeared to be pretty bored.

Two Agnew Stops In Southwest

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Vice President Spiro Agnew said Thursday no critic of George McGovern has been more eloquent than fellow Democrat Sen. Hubert Humphrey in attacking McGovern's proposals on national defense.

Agnew said Humphrey himself has stated if McGovern were elected president his proposals would result in idle factories, increased unemployment and dying communities.

Agnew said Humphrey had called McGovern's proposals "dangerous to the best interests of our national security."

The vice president spent the night in Oklahoma City during a campaign trip through the Southwest. Earlier Thursday he spoke in Roswell, N.M., where he pledged the administration's desire for Indian "self determination."

"Just as the President seeks to return power to state and local governments, he offers Indians the opportunity to exercise greater control over their own affairs," Agnew said at a downtown rally.

"The programs that this administration has designed to assist minorities have won common purpose —self-sufficiency," he said.

Auto Tools Stolen

Automobile tools valued at $400 were stolen yesterday from Boulevard Auto Parts, 827 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma, police reported. A sliding door was pried open to gain entry.

Atlantic Reception Buoys Nixon, But Presidential Duties 'First'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — His spirits buoyed by a big and friendly crowd in Atlanta, President Nixon went back to his White House desk today more convinced than ever that although he enjoys campaigning, he can win this year without doing much of it.

"This sort of thing is enjoyable—the chance to see people—I'll do as much of it as I can," Nixon said Thursday after riding down Peachtree Street past a host of admirers. "But I want to be President first."

Nixon's political game plan for this is to stay above the partisan rough and tumble as much as possible, descending to the hustings just often enough to make sure no one forgets he is a candidate for reelection. His overwhelming lead in the public opinion polls indicates the strategy is working.

With his only campaign trip in two weeks behind him, Nixon turned to a White House schedule which included a private meeting with National Security Advisor Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers to discuss Kissinger's five days of talks with North Vietnamese peace negotiators.

Nixon's campaign committee has purchased time for another nationwide radio speech this weekend.

Nixon's motorcade along Atlanta's famed Peacehtree Street through a blizzard of shredded paper thrown from the windows of buildings produced by far the largest crowd to see the President since he began his formal reelection efforts.

The size of the throng is in question. A police captain estimated it at 700,000 and a fire department battalion commander put the figure at 500,000. Both estimates are probably far too high—the population of the entire Atlanta metropolitan area is just 1.4 million—but it seems certain that more than 100,000 persons lined the motorcade route.

The crowd was overwhelmingly friendly to the President despite a well organized group of hecklers who paraded with some of the most imaginative anti-Nixon placards seen so far.

CROW LIGHT guide to "Light Whiskey" -the biggest whiskey news since Repeal!

Not a Bourbon. Lighter than Scotch. Smoother than Canadian.

It's an all-new category of whiskey, just authorized.

It's here. Now. Light Whiskey.

Not a brand. A revolutionary new class of whiskey—unlike Bourbon, Rye, Scotch, blends or any of the traditional whiskeys you've known.

Light Whiskey. The lightest, smoothest whiskey ever made in America!

Its own light taste

Light Whiskey is made possible by sweeping new U.S. Government regulations. They permit radically different distilling and aging techniques (see box) which produce a whiskey with a delightful character all its own.

One sip of CROW LIGHT will show you that Light Whiskey is a clean break with the past. Light without being thin. Mild without being bland.

Why "Light Whiskey" is the first utterly new whiskey in 40 years.

Since Repeal, the same strict regulations have controlled whiskey making in America.

But in 1968, to enable domestic distillers to make a whiskey with the lightness of Scotch and Canadian, the Government specified rules for a totally new kind of American whiskey—to go on sale this year.

The new regulations meant that Americans could, for the first time, distill whiskeys above 160 proof. And age them in seasoned oak barrels.

The result: the revolutionary, remarkably smooth, new class of products—Light Whiskey!

Nothing shy about it

Don't be fooled by CROW LIGHT's gentle manners though. This is real whiskey all right. Fully 80 proof. But it may well be the most civilized whiskey in history.

Great mixed—or neat

Pick up your first bottle of CROW LIGHT on your way home tonight. Start by pouring it straight, over ice cubes in a wide glass. Wait. Let it chill. Then take it slowly, one smooth sip at a time.

Ahhh.

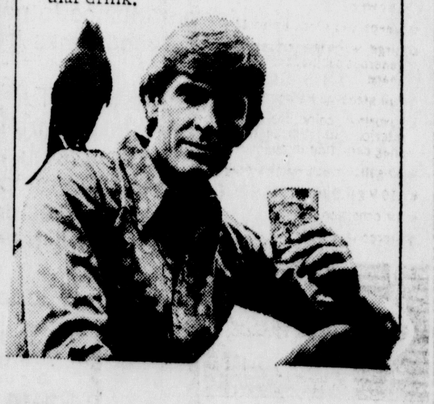

You can substitute CROW LIGHT, shot for shot, in all your favorite whiskey drink recipes. And it mixes better with fruit juices than do traditional whiskeys.

CROW LIGHT tonight

CROW LIGHT is every bit as good as our 157 years of experience can make it. Go ahead. Don't take our word for it. Try CROW LIGHT tonight. A clean break with the past.

Note: For Bourbon drinkers, there's always Old Crow

Don't confuse new CROW LIGHT with our famous Old Crow. They're entirely separate, different products. We make Old Crow—and plenty of it—for the millions who enjoy smooth, mellow Bourbon, America's most popular drink.

Try CROW LIGHT tonight.
A clean break with the past.

First FTC Slap In 'Truth' Areas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting for the first time under a new truth in advertising program, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has accused General Motors Corp., Volvo, Inc., and three air conditioning companies of using misleading and unfair advertising last year.

GM and Volvo immediately denied the complaints.

In a recently inaugurated program the FTC has been requiring advertisers in selected industries to document claims of safety, performance, efficiency, quality or comparative price.

In the case of all but Volvo, the complaints were filed — together with proposed remedies — after examination of the required documentation.

The specific FTC charges:

General Motors improperly advertised its Chevrolet Vega as the best handling passenger car ever built in the United States and its Buick Opel as having a chassis that never requires lubrication. GM replied that the Vega claim was a quotation from a well-known automotive writer and identified as such, and that technical data given the FTC supporting the "lubed for life" claim adequately substantiated it.

Volvo Inc., the U.S. distributor for the Swedish automaker, improperly claimed its cars were "substantially more economical to own and operate than competing makes of automobiles." There was no reasonable basis to make the claim, the FTC said. Volvo said it thought the complaint was unjustified and that it always tried to give buyers "concrete and accurate information."

The Fedders Corp., Edison, N.J., improperly claimed its ACL room air conditioners alone have reserve cooling power.

Rheem Manufacturing Co., New York City, improperly claimed its central air conditioning systems are "revolutionary" and the most efficient central cooling systems.

Whirlpool Corp., Benton Harbor, Mich., improperly claimed its "panic button" is not found on other air conditioners.

The firms have 10 days to decide whether to accept a settlement on FTC proposed terms or challenge them.

67-Mile Bikeway Opens Saturday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The first 67 miles of bikeway on the California aqueduct will open to the public Saturday.

State Water Resources Director William R. Gianelli said the opening of the path is the first step in constructing a bicycle trail extending more than 400 miles along state water project aqueducts.

The section opening Saturday will run from the reservoir near Tracy to near the San Luis Dam in the Los Banos area and will be open to both bicyclists and hikers.

Camping and fishing facilities are available at the San Luis and O'Neil Reservoirs.

BART Train Accident Delays Richmond, Concord Connections

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oct. 2 accident involving a Bay Area Rapid Transit train in Fremont is being blamed for a six-week delay in opening the Richmond and Concord BART lines.

The board of directors learned of the delay Thursday. The Richmond line had been scheduled to open in early December, but will have to wait until after the first of the year. The Concord line's February opening was pushed back to late March.

A spokesman explained the Fremont accident which sent a BART train off the end of the line has resulted in increased safety checks on cars now completed and delayed work on new lines.

But the directors got some good news, too.

General Manager B. R. Stokes reported heavy patronage in the first month of operation which exceeded expectations.

He said the first month's take came to $221,000. "It's far better than we had hoped," he said.

He also told the board the contract had been signed with Rohr Corporation in Chula Vista for 100 more cars with options for 200 additional in 1975 and 1976. This could swell the BART rolling stock to 550 cars.

Ferry 'Stretched'

LONDON (UPI)—Hoverlloyd, a company which operates air cushion vehicle ferry services across the English Channel, has announced it would "stretch" three of its craft to enable them to carry 288 passengers and 37 cars. Hovercraft operating now have a capacity of 250 passengers and 30 cars. They make regular Channel crossings.

Judge Upset By Late Litigants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Municipal Judge Albert C. Wollenberg, Jr., irked because litigants were showing up late, decided to teach them a lesson Thursday. He ordered the doors to his courtroom locked just after the start of business.

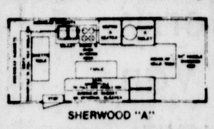

Bailiffs told tardy lawyers and clients to return later in the day or Friday.

"They'd better have some good excuses," Wollenberg said. "I've held people in contempt of court before."

A New Store In A New County Means Another Grand Opening Sale

Our new San Rafael store is open and all our stores share in the sale prices we're celebrating with. The savings will stagger you. The San Rafael store also has an exclusive four-channel show by Pioneer, which you won't want to miss. So if you come to Pacific Stereo this week you'll be able to get great gear for unusually low prices. You can sit down with a cup of coffee and talk to some knowledgeable people who will help you select what's really best for you. When you do choose, we make sure all the equipment is in good working order before it leaves the store. And of course, our five-year written no hassle warranty will apply to any system, as well as our 60-day exchange option and one year speaker trial, all as explained in detail at the bottom of the page. In fact, you'll find a lot of interesting details down there, after you've looked over the Grand Opening sale items you'll find on the way down.

1 AN ENTICINGLY LARGE SAVING ON A $500 PIONEER SYSTEM. If you're at all familiar with the high quality of Pioneer components, the chance to save $136 on a system with the versatile Pioneer 727 AM/FM stereo receiver should tempt you a great deal. With the 727, you can later expand your system to include three sets of speakers, two tape recorders with monitoring for both, two record players, stereophones and a microphone. The 727's versatility is matched by its performance. Our tests show 72 RMS watts of power cleanly delivered, and the tuner section achieves 50 decibels of quieting with an FM signal of 2.6 microvolts, so you should get noise-free reception of any station on the air. A full range of controls is provided, including separate bass and treble controls for each channel and separate signal strength and center channel meters for precise FM tuning. The Pioneer 727 usually sells for $349.95.

Garrard's SL65B automatic record player has a viscous damped cueing and pause lever that makes it awfully hard to scratch a record even accidentally, an adjustable anti-skate control to keep the needle in the center of the groove, and a tubular aluminum tonearm with an adjustable counterweight so you can set the tracking pressure for minimum record wear. Equipped with an ADC 220X cartridge and a base, it normally sells for $85.90.

Quadraflex Q55's are almost certainly the best $200 a pair speaker systems you've heard. Their sound is clean as can be, and their deep bass response and power handling capacity leave very little to be desired. Each walnut finish enclosure has a ten-inch high compliance linear motion bass speaker, a 4½-inch midrange in an acoustic suspension isolation chamber to prevent interference between elements, a three-inch wide dispersion treble speaker, and special taper controls for balancing the three drivers.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's 5-year warranty
PIONEER Garrard Quadraflex	To purchase these separately you would pay: Pioneer 727 .....$349.95 Garrard SL65B with base & cartridge.....85.90 Quadraflex Q55 (pr) 199.90 TOTAL $635.75	PACIFIC'S SYSTEM PRICE $499.95 SAVE $135.80

$225 ALTEC MADRIDS FOR $169.95

2 Altec Madrids have the same drivers as the popular Altec Santana speaker systems, but they're in different cabinets and, because of our Grand Opening Sale price, a good deal less expensive. They consist of a two-way "biflex" 15-inch bass speaker and a treble speaker in an extremely handsome floor standing cabinet. The overall sound is the kind that has distinguished Altec Lansing over the years. Altec's price is $225 apiece. You save a lot if you hurry. $169.95

3 OVER 1/3 OFF ON NIKKO'S BEST RECEIVER SAVES YOU $110 The 9010 is Nikko's top-of-the-line AM/FM stereo receiver, with 60 watts of RMS power and a highly sensitive tuner section. Volume, balance, bass and treble are regulated by slider type controls while piano-key switches control mode, tape monitor, loudness and interstation noise muting. The loudness control assures full and satisfying bass response at low volume levels, while the muting provides clean intervals of silence between FM stations on the dial. Noise filters eliminate high frequency scratch or low frequency rumble from incoming signals. The 9010 also has circuit breakers, an earphone jack and provision for switching two sets of speakers. It's a good value at its $309.95 nationally advertised price; at our Grand Opening Sale price of $199.95 it's a value indeed. But we have only a very limited quantity, so hurry! $199.95

4 AN INCREDIBLY LOW INTRODUCTORY PRICE ON MEMOREX TAPE. Memorex makes just about the best low noise/high output tape you can get for your reel-to-reel recorder. Now they have a new series that's even better than the tape we've been selling for $4.99. That should tell you how incredible our Grand Opening introductory price really is for these 1800' seven-inch reels. . . $1.99

5 SPECTROSONIC'S NEWEST RECEIVER IN OUR LOWEST-PRICED SPECTROSONIC SYSTEM EVER. The 55-4 is Spectrosonic's newest receiver, and it has almost all the features of the other Spectrosonics. But it has a lower price, and that's what makes it ideal for a budget-saving system. With its 16 RMS watts of wide-band power, it outperforms any receiver on the market under $200. It has full tape monitoring facilities, switching for two speaker systems, tuning meter, and complete 4-channel adaptability — features usually found only in much more expensive equipment. And its direct coupled amplifier circuit gives the purest possible sound. The 55-4 forms the heart of a system that is one of the best values we have ever been able to offer. The walnut case is optional.

The popular Garrard 40B is also an outstanding value. It's a totally reliably record changer with a cueing lever to gently put the arm and the ADC 220X cartridge on your records for you. With this cartridge and the base, the 40B's normal price is $55.90.

KLH 32 speaker systems sell like gangbusters. One reason is their tiny $99.90 a pair price and another is that they sound awfully good. What's inside is an eight-inch acoustic suspension bass speaker and a two-inch treble speaker. What's outside is clean, wide range sound. It's the first time we've been able to offer KLH quality in such an inexpensive system.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's 5-year warranty

We'll be able to answer all your questions about these components and about four-channel sound in general.

RIP-OFF AT THE OLD JAIL

As a bulldozer wreaks havoc in the background, Ronald Gaddis of the Sausalito Public Works Department inspects a barred window from the old, long abandoned Marin County Jail, being razed as a hazard. Efforts by various citizen and historical groups to save the structure, located on Bee Street, were in vain.

China's New Look: Calm, Mellow

(EDITOR'S NOTE: John, Hughes, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, is with a group of 22 American editors touring mainland China. The group last weekend had a lengthy meeting with Premier Chou En-lai in Peking and discussed a wide range of topics. Following is Hughes's report of that meeting.)

By JOHN HUGHES
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

PEKING — China is preparing a collective system of leadership to succeed its aging revolutionaries, Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

After a jarring internal power struggle, it is seeking a period of calm and stability at home and is striving to project an image of relative mellowmess in foreign policy.

These impressions, garnered during a visit to the People's Republic of China, were underlined by Premier Chou En-lai himself in a marathon session with American newspaper editors lasting into the small hours of the morning.

Chou expressed cordiality toward the U.S. but allowed as how neither he nor Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, who is studying English, are planning American visits.

His jabs were reserved for the Soviet Union, whose leaders and policies were the subject of several scathing criticisms. This accords with diplomatic and other expert analyses that the Soviet Union now has become China's enemy No. 1.

During a visit to Peking University I saw students building air-raid shelters alongside dormitories. Air-raid-shelter construction also was going on in the compound of China's state news agency, Hsinhua, and is continuing in conjunction with Peking's subway system. However, Chinese officials stress that these are purely defensive measures against Soviet attack.

The interview took place in the Fukien Room of the Great Hall of the People, a high-ceilinged salon covered with a seemingly endless expanse of rich, rose-colored carpet and hung with misty scenes of the exquisite Chinese countryside.

During the three hours and 40 minutes interview, Chou exchanged badinage about various American newspapers and personalities. At one point, paying tribute to the diplomatic skill of Henry A. Kissinger, he said the presidential adviser was a man who could talk for 30 minutes without revealing a single fact.

He faulted the American newspaper delegation for its all-male composition and said a return delegation of Chinese journalists to the U.S. would include women.

He also indicated that on the Chinese side the initiative for rapprochement with the U.S. came from Mao Tse-tung and that Mao prodded his subordinates to move more forcefully than they had proposed on the ice-breaking invitation to an American table-tennis team to visit China.

Chou refused to reveal the whereabouts or status of the disgraced former head of state, Liu Shao-chi.

He spoke at length about the former defense minister and Mao's designated successor, Lin Piao, reported earlier by Chinese sources to have been killed in an air crash in Mongolia. But by agreement these remarks cannot be reported until receipt of an official transcript.

Clearest indication that Mao and Chou are looking to collective leadership to succeed them came when Chou said the "very fact of making one successor of Mao" had been a "plot" of Lin Piao. If one looked closely, said Chou, one could see there were "tens of millions of successors" to the early revolutionary leaders.

Commenting on gaps in the Chinese Communist Party's Politburo and Central Committee following the political purges of the "cultural revolution," Chou said that though there might be a paucity of leaders well-known abroad, there were in fact many able individuals in the "leading strata."

We are, he said, "making special efforts to see middle-aged and younger men get leading posts at earlier ages."

Despite this confident view, foreign observers see a good deal of fluidity still in China's leading ranks. Of five members of the Politburo's standing committee, only Mao and Chou are left. Of 21 members of the Politburo, only 10 are left. The Central Committee has been decimated and many ministerial positions are vacant. First step in a program to plug many of these holes would be summoning of the National People's Congress, but there is no hint that is about to take place.

It is generally assumed that Mao and Chou on the one hand clashed with Lin Piao on the other when Lin brandished the power of the army. This was dangerous heresy in Maoist terms, which hold that the army is always subordinate to the party.

In foreign policy, Lin is alleged to have opposed the Mao-Chou plan for detente with the U.S. Lin lost out.

But although the losers in China's power struggle now seem plain, less clear are the ultimate victors who will rule China once Mao and Chou have passed from the scene. It is for this transitional period that collective leadership now is planned.

Chou spoke about the initial kind of administration the Communists would impose upon the Nationalist-held island of Taiwan. Peking claims Taiwan as an integral part of the People's Republic. Taiwan's economy is a thriving capitalistic one, and the Premier concedes that it would not be possible "immediately" to make it conform to China's Communist system. He proposed a step-by-step program.

The Chinese leader sought to allay fears that his country's vast population might cause it to "expand outwards." Despite the worst drought in northern China in nine years this year, he said, China would reap a satisfactory 250 million tons of food grains this year. It could improve its facilities for grain storage and develop additional land within its borders. He said land presently under cultivation in China was only 12 to 13 per cent of the total.

He spoke warmly of developing Chinese-American relations and promisingly of increasing exchanges of scientists and journalists. However, he said the presence in the U.S. of newsmen from Nationalist China posed obstacles to the establishment of resident American correspondents in Peking.

The Soviet Union was the target of his sharpest thrusts. Soviet actions along China's borders he described as provocative. He was disparaging on a number of occasions about their intelligence system.

In analysis of China's internal political system, he said jovially, the "CIA branch in Hong Kong" was ahead of the Soviet Union, "whose methods are rather poor, even though their embassy in Peking is the largest, and they have the greatest number of cars."

Felony Drunken Driving Suspect Is Arrested

A 27-year-old Mill Valley woman was arrested yesterday on suspicion of felony drunken driving after her car allegedly plowed into the rear end of another car on East Blithedale Avenue in Mill Valley.

Mill Valley police arrested Barbara Jean Morgan, of 97 Buena Vista Avenue, after she reportedly failed a roadside sobriety test.

Her car, police said, crashed into a car driven by Alfred Biggio, 71, 83 Locust Avenue, Mill Valley, at the intersection of East Blithedale Avenue and Camino Alto.

According to police, Biggio was treated at Marin General Hospital for a sprained neck and back pains.

Mrs. Morgan was booked into Marin County Jail where she posted $1,200 bail. She was scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday.

Wine Guide Available For Visits

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Persons who wish to tour California's wine-making areas can obtain a helpful guide from the Redwood Empire Association.

A burgundy-tinted brochure can be obtained from the association's headquarters, 476 Post Street.

The folder is a second, updated edition printed two years ago. It furnishes names, locations, tasting-tour hours and a guide map.

Late fall and winter is a good time to visit the southern Redwood Empire, starting in Tiburon and ending as far north as Ukiah. Harvest and grape-crushing are complete, and the winemakers have time to visit and seek visitors' reactions to the new vintage.

Napa County, remains the queen of the crop: 23 wineries to visit, mostly along State Highway 29. A wine library for scholars is open weekdays in St. Helena.

Therapeutic Drug Group Is Available

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI)— The Upjohn Co. today announced the world's first commercial availability for therapeutic use of a new drug group—the prostaglandins.

Prostaglandins were described by Upjon as naturally occuring substances "which may signal the beginning of a new era in the therapy of problems connected with reproduction, inflamation, blood pressure, gastric secretion and metabolism."

Two of the 14 substances, named prostin E2 and prostin F2 alpha, have been cleared for marketing in the United Kingdom, through the firm's subsidiary , Upjohn Ltd., according to Dr. William N. Hubbard, Jr., executive vice president of the pharmaceutical firm.

These compounds (E2 and F2 alpha) are for use by physicians in the induction of labor and the termination of pregnancy. Initially, the compounds will be made available for use only in selected hospitals and clinics.

Hubbard said the novelty of these compounds requires that physicians have adequate time to familiarize themselves with the new agents.

Apartment Building Reported At The Peak

The apartment house building boom is now at its peak and will begin dropping, and the home construction industry in general will decline by 27 per cent next year.

These predictions were made last night by Ted D. Gibson, research officer for Security Pacific National Bank at the last of the three-evening lectures on taxes and tax saving tips. The series, presented by the Society of California Accountants, was held at Dominican College in San Rafael.

San Rafael public accountant Ernest T. Stair, moderator for the series, said last night's turn-out of 22 persons was somewhat disappointing, but the overall turnout for the three evenings was a big improvement over the previous tax conference held at College of Marin last January. The three sessions this week drew a total of almost 150 persons.

Speakers last night included Gibson; Clark G. Allen, tax auditor for the Franchise Tax Board, and Ortwin Ross, Internal Revenue agent.

Speakers on Wednesday night were San Rafael public accountants James P. Calandra and Roland D. Hellman, and Leland H. Dibble Jr., attorney and public accountant from Santa Rosa.

Cosponsors of the series were the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, Dominican College, Independent-Journal, San Rafael and Corte Madera Chambers of Commerce, Marin County Board of Raltors, and Marin Builders Exchange.

Israeli Resort Bank Bombed

NETANYA, Israel (UPI)—A bomb apparently planted by Arab guerrillas exploded outside a crowded bank at this seaside resort today in the second such attack in Israel in two weeks. Police said no one was hurt.

First reports by witnesses said the bomb exploded inside the bank and injured several persons. Police erroneously announced that version before investigation.

Policemen raced to the scene and took dozens of Arabs into custody, including one who was attacked by bank customers following the explosion. A spokesmen said tw other Arabs were seized near the staircase where the bomb went off.

WORD-A-DAY

Foreclosed Housing Warranties Extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government announced yesterday it will repair defects in foreclosed housing it has resold to the public for a full year, instead of six months, after the home buyer has taken possession.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) previously offered a six-month warranty against major defects to persons purchasing one to four-unit dwellings which were acquired by the agency through foreclosure of federally insured mortgages.

A HUD spokesman said the doubled warranty period was being offered to increase consumer protection and make the housing more attractive to prospective buyers. The six-month warranty had been in effect since 1963.

HUD took over more than 50,000 housing units in the 1972 fiscal year. In the previous year, the last on which figures were complete, HUD resold nearly 25,000 homes.

Housing found to be defective within a year after the sales closing will be repaired by HUD-employed contractors. The warranty covers structure, heating, cooling, plumbing and electrical systems. Defects in equipment such as stoves, refrigerators or laundry equipment remain under warranty for 15 days after possession.

The money to pay for the repairs comes out of proceeds from the federal mortgage insurance program.

Scent is the most important of the several message systems of mammals.

Honolulu To Buenos Aires Non-Stop

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—A McDonnell Douglas DC10 Trijet made aviation history yesterday by completing the first non-stop flight from Honolulu to Buenos Aires.

The flight, spanning 7,800 statute miles, took exactly 14 hours and 18 minutes from take-off to touch-down and its average speed was 615 miles per hour, said chief pilot, Capt. George R. Jensen.

"It was a magnificent flight and we had no problems whatsoever," Jensen said. The $20 million aircraft was on automatic pilot, he said, for most of the flight to this Argentine capital on the southeastern coast of South America.

The Trijet bore the colors of Northwest Airlines and will be delivered to that U.S. carrier in Los Angeles later this month.

There were 29 persons aboard, including the crew. Virtually all the passengers were McDonnell Douglas executives or representatives.

Company spokesmen said the purpose of the first non-stop flight from Hawaii to Argentina was to demonstrate the "intercontinental capabilities" of the Trijet as a passenger plane.

This was the second leg of a vast trans-Pacific journey that the Trijet began last Sunday in Hong Kong. It also flew nonstop over the 7,684-mile course from Hong Kong to Honolulu.

After demonstration flights and exhibition here the plane will continue on to Rio de Janeiro and the Brazilian capital of Brasilia Friday for further demonstrations in both those cities. Then it will fly to Los Angeles, company spokesman said.

Cancer Course Set At College

Marin County teachers, school nurses and others will learn how to teach their students facts about cancer in a two-day course sponsored by Sonoma State College and the American Cancer Society.

The course, to be held Oct. 28 and Nov. 4 at the College of Marin in Kentfield, will give one semester credit to school personnel and students, according to Gwin Lister, education director for the cancer society. The course also will be open to the public. Registration fee is $24.

Registration may be made at the College of Marin on Oct. 28, or by calling the state college in Rohnert Park.

ROOF SHRINKS, RAIN ENTERS

Drip buckets line the hallways as Civic Center maintenance man Michael Bryan swings a mop to keep apace of rainwater dripping through the administration building's plexiglass sunroof. Leakage in the multimillion-dollar building occurs during heavy rainstorms — such as yesterday's — when cool temperatures cause the plexiglass to contract leaving cracks in the roof. No plan is afoot to correct the situation.

Turner Follower Tells Life Style

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI)— In Glenn Turner's "Dare To Be Great" program, enlistees are urged to buy sharp new clothes, big air conditioned cars and act like they've got a pocket full of money.

"Fake it till you make it," Dare To Be Greaters are told.

They even get some pointers on how to float loans to buy into the motivational program and purchase their new trappings.

The life style of converts to Turner's system was described Thursday by a former Dare To Be Great field lieutenant who decided to turn state's evidence and testify against his former boss.

William F. Humphries III, an articulate 23-year-old college graduate, was a key prosecution witness in the securities violations trial of Turner and David Baumann, 25, of St. Petersburg, a regional director of Dare To Be Great.

Granted immunity for his testimony, Humphries told how a person may buy a Dare To Be Great course at the top level for $5,000 and collect a $2,000 commission on each course he sells to others.

He said the sales pitches prepared at Turner's headquarters in Orlando tell prospective buyers they can average $40,000 a year with a two-month vacation if they work hard in the program.

"The inducement to buy a motivational course was obviously to make more money," said Humphries, who originally was charged along with Turner and Baumann.

The prosecution contends Dare To Be Great memberships should be classed as securities under Florida law because they are sold as an investment with a profit motive.

Turner and Baumann are charged with a total of 86 counts of violations of the state's Uniform Sale of Securities Act for selling unregistered securities and failing to register as securities dealers.

The defense scored a major victory Thursday when Judge Robert L. Williams reversed himself and ruled it is up to the jury to decide whether the memberships are securities.

But the judge added that "if the documents presented in the trial make it clear they are securities, then this court will decide on it as a point of law."

Turner is scheduled to go on trial on similar charges in Jacksonville Monday, but that trial may be delayed if the litigation here continues into next week as expected.

Fraud Report In Welfare Areas Hit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A social workers organization Thursday accused the Reagan administration of an "unethical manipulation" of figures in reporting a 41 per rate of apparent fraud among highest wage earners in the needy families welfare program.

The California Council of the National Assocition of Social Workers charged that release of the figures by state Social Welfare Director Robert B. Carleson was designed "to inflame the public."

Carleson said that first returns from the state's new computerized "earnings clearance system" showed that 41 per cent of the top 10 per cent of wage earners in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program apparently received welfare fraudulently last October, November and December.

He reported that preliminary figures indicate the same rate of apparent fraud among wage earners on AFDC who were not included in the top 10 per cent.

Look Trial Warnings By Judge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The judge Thursday had to admonish both an editor for Look Magazine and the attorney for San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, suing the defunct publication for $12.5 million.

Alioto filed the action after Look published an article in 1969 that tried to link him with the Mafia. An earlier trial ended in a hung jury.

"I lectured you both before noon," U.S. District Judge Russell E. Smith told attorney James F. Boccardo and Martin Goldman, former managing editor of Look.

"I'm not going to do it again or there'll be some sanctions around here," the judge warned.

He said Boccardo's "cracks" and Goldman's "hostility" were "making a shambles of this hearing."

"There'll be no more or I'll strike this whole testimony," he said before noon.

The editor accused Boccardo of using "compound questions and loaded words."

"Did somebody tell you I was some kind of Mickey Mouse?" the attorney demanded. "You are very careful lest I mislead you. Fear not, you'll take care of it!"

"This is an important case to me because freedom of the press is involved," Goldman insisted. "Alioto is trying to exert a chilling effect on a free press."

Boccardo at one point interrupted Goldman's testimony and asked the judge to "tell him we don't need a Fourth of July speech."

At another time, Goldman said the lawyer was trying to "upset" him.

"You're driving me out of my mind," Boccardo replied.

1972 Northstate Fire Season Comes To End

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Forestry officials Thursday announced the close of the 1972 fire season in Northern California.

U.S. and state forestry officials said at least 4,260 fires were reported during the season, burning about 50,500 acres of timber, brush and grassland in Northern California.

The season was brought to a close by heavy rainfall during the past few days and a relatively cool autumn, officials said.

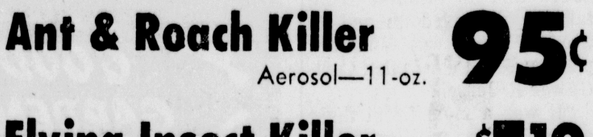

The officials said there were "significant increases" in the number of fires started by children playing with matches and by the use of machines. Man-caused fires increased by 500 from 1971.

Last year 2,960 blazes in Northern California scorched 23,870 acres.

Although the fire season was officially closed in Northern California Thursday, officials said hazardous fire conditions still exist in Southern California.

Bail Denied For Corona, But Incarceration Rapped

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI)— Juan Corona was denied release on bail Thursday during his trial for the murders of 25 farm workers, but a new attempt was expected to end his confinement of almost 17 months.

Superior Court Judge Richard Patton turned down the appeal by Richard Hawk, attorney for the 38-year-old defendant. But at the private hearing in his chambers, Patton said he might hear a bail motion later if the prosecution is given sufficient notice.

Hawk told newsmen later Corona's rights have been "badly violated" during his incarceration which began May 26, 1971, six days after the first of 25 bodies was dug from crude graves along the banks of the Feather River near Yuba City, Calif.

Testimony before the jury of 10 men and two women centered on two receipts that were allegedly found near one of the victims.

The prosecution said the receipts were signed by Corona and dated May 21, 1971, four days before the body of Melvin Sample was dug up by Sutter County sheriff's deputies. Sample's was listed as the third body exhumed by deputies.

Hawk said the sheriff's department worked so sloppily that it mixed up the bodies in the recovery process and was confused over which body was found in the grave.

The body found in the third grave, he said, had been dead much longer than Sample.

Russell Parmer, a latent fingerprint analyst for the California Department of Justice, testified that a card bearing fingerprints purportedly taken from the third victim matched those of Sample.

JOB APPLICANT

In the beginning and in the end, all political issues boil down to a job that has to be done — and no matter what any applicant for that jobs tells you, his willingness to meet with you on a one to one basis and the kind of sense that meeting makes, is all you have to go on. Being in disagreement with his views is not as important as having the option to disagree — with him — in person. In this way, he has committed himself to you and the democratic process of evolving a solution has begun. Anything else is equivalent to lies on an application form — purely to get the job.

Gary Giacomini believes in the fact that whatever way you see things, you're going to want to take issue with him at one time or another — and when you do, he'll be there — because he knows that that's what it's really all about.

Catholic Church Dispute Over Education Methods

By BARRY JAMES.

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Some churchmen called it another example of the "psychological split" existing between the Vatican and the reform-minded Roman Catholic Church of the Netherlands. This time, the dispute centered on a controversial method of religious education.

The Vatican banned the method—or catechism, as Catholics know it—by ordering two Dutch bishops Thursday to withdraw their sponsorship of it immediately. Churchmen in the Netherlands said the two men already have complied.

It was the latest in a series of quarrels between Rome and the Dutch church, often at odds over such subjects as celibacy, the role of women in the Church, traditional religious teaching and theology.

In the catechism case, Vatican sources said, churchmen were upset over several things, including one part of the educational text which raised the question of the spiritual nature of Jesus.

The Vatican, in its action Thursday, issued a statement aimed specifically at two Dutch bishops who allowed a question —"Why is there no reason for you to call Jesus God?"—asked in Catholic high schools under their control.

The statement said the Vatican has ordered the immediate withdrawal of a teaching method sponsored by Bishop Johannes W. M. Bluyssen of St. Hertogenbosch (Bois-le-Duc) and Bishop Hubertus C.A. Ernst of Breda.

Last March, the Vatican's department for the Doctrine of the Faith, once the feared "Holy Office," issued a statement attacking theologians who cast doubts on the dogma that Jesus is God. That statement also was aimed at the new cathechism, Vatican sources said at the time.

Yugoslav Cardinal Franjo Seper, head of the Doctrine of the Faith department, was one of two Vatican prelates who ordered the banning of the catechism. The other was Cardinal John J. Wright, former bishop of Pittsburgh and now head of the Vatican department which handles clergymen and catechisms.

The Vatican statement said the Dutch catechism, in use since 1970, was "gravely deficient from many points of view." Some of the sources said the Vatican statement apparently was designed to pressure school principals into dropping the course entirely.

Some Vatican sources said the schools catechism—which is distinct from the also controversial "Dutch Catechism" published several years ago—indicated what could almost be described as a "psychological schism" (split) between the Dutch church and the Vatican.

They said the catechism casts doubts on several items of basic Catholic teaching. For example, whereas the Catholic Church claims to be the one true Church, the catechism teaches: "No church can pretend to truly correspond to the one form proposed by Christ."

The catechism questions basic Church teaching on the Resurrection, the Trinity, the Eucharist and the pope. It asks children to consider whether such men as Protestant reformer Martin Luther or Colombian guerrilla priest Camilo Torres were right or wrong in their beliefs and actions.

Vatican sources said Bluyssens and Ernst defended the catechism on the ground it gave children a questioning mind about religion rather than a blank acceptance. The sources said the bishops never considered the catechism other than as an experiment.

Awards totaling $100, $50 and $25 will be offered to three students in Marin deemed good citizens.

Winner of the $100 award will be eligible to compete for a $1,000 regional and $1,500 national Soroptimist award. Applications are available at local high schools.

Record State Voter Turnout Predicted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. predicts a record 10.2 million Californians will be registered to vote in the November election.

Brown reported Thursday that 847,837 new voters had registered between the June 6 primary election and Sept. 14 for a record registration of 9,953,124.

Most POWs Said Now In China

TYLER, Tex. (UPI)—Comedian Bob Hope, quoting "hearsay", said Thursday all but 100 American prisoners of war had been moved from North Vietnam to China.

"I had heard that they (the North Vietnamese) had transferred most of the prisoners to China and there were only about 100 left (in North Vietnam)," Hope said. "My source is just hearsay, but it was supposed to be from a fellow from Vientiane in Laos.

"I've heard this story before. Whoever said it thought it was a good idea because they thought they'd get better treatment in China," Hope said.

Hope made the statement that "there are no more than 100 POWs still in North Vietnam" while he was making appearances at Dallas and Tyler Thursday.

In Washington, a Defense Department spokesman said he had never heard any reports of U.S. POWs being shipped to China.

Hope, who has participated in past unsuccessful attempts to negotiate with the North Vietnamese on the release of POWs, said "I hope and pray the imprisonment of the POWs will be over in a couple of weeks."

Wisconsin in 1911 applied the first successful state income tax.

Pay Accord In Last Two Teacher Strikes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

New wage contracts were negotiated Thursday night in the last two remaining teacher strikes in Pennsylvania.

Approximately 160 public school teachers in the Clairton School District near Pittaburgh ratified a new three-year wage contract, and classes for the district's 3,000 students were to resume today.

A new two-year contract was agreed on by negotiators for the faculty and the board of trustees at the Philadelphia Community College.

The 220 faculty members, who went on strike five weeks ago, were to vote on the agreement during the weekend, and faculty negotiators said approval was likely. In that event, classes were to resume for the college's 6,000 students Monday or Tuesday.

In Conklin, N.Y., a strike by members of the Susquehanna Valley Teachers Association continued despite a court order. A union spokesman said picket lines were being manned at the district's schools, where officials attempted to conduct classes with substitute teachers and parents.

A temporary restraining order against the strike, which began last Friday, was issued Wednesday. More than 3,000 students were affected.

In Hempstead, N.Y., 270 teachers in the Roosevelt District on Long Island stayed off their jobs for the second straight day, ignoring a court order to return to work.

The New York disputes centered on wages.

The Clairton teachers walked off the job Aug. 28. Details of their new agreement were not disclosed.

The Philadelphia settlement was announced by Judge Harry Takiff, who entered the negotiations after student groups filed for an injunction to prevent trustees from closing the college for the fall term.

Takiff said the new contract provided for 5.5. per cent wage increases this year and in 1973 and for a faculty promise not to strike in 1974 when a new contract is to be negotiated.

A major issue in the dispute was the teachers' work load.

Earlier Thursday, 83 teachers in the North Cambria School District in western Pennsylvania obeyed a court order and returned to work while negotiations for a new wage contract continued. The court order was to remain in effect until Nov. 1. The teachers went on strike Aug. 29.

HAPPINESS IS AN ELEPHANT

Little Cindy Botasso, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Michael Botasso of Corte Madera, shows off her sculptured elephant that took first prize at an "Art Day" sponsored by the San Francisco Children's Zoo. It was only natural for 3-year-old Cindy to choose an animal as her subject, since her father is a veterinarian. She told the judges her elephant was modeled after Taji, the zoo's baby elephant.

Green Light For Mobile Home Park

Plans for an 80-acre mobile home park with 600 units were approved last night by the Rohnert Park Planning Commission.

Diversified Communities was granted multiple-zoning on the 80 acres north of the city golf course abutting on Santa Rosa Avenue.

Commission secretary Sandra Nelson said the park will be developed in two phases of 40 acres each. Representatives proposed 60 per cent of the first 300 units be allotted to families with children and the entire second phase be limited to adults.

The commission balked at the suggestion, saying there was no assurance the adult-only phase would actually be built, and directed the entire development to contain no more than 30 per cent children.

The commission said 60 per cent of families with children in the first phase would be too high a concentration of children and would create problems for the already overcrowded Cotati School District.

In granting the rezoning and use permit, the commission said it would be contingent on submittal of an environmental impact study.

The Rohnert Park Planning Commission also:

CONDOMINIUMS — Approved the tentative map for 358 condominium units on Rohnert Park Expressway at Country Club Drive as requested by Forhim Corp.

APARTMENTS — Approved architectural design of 32 apartment units as requested by Olaf Gross and Patrick Taylor.

SIGN — Denied without prejudice the TG and Y store at Park Plaza Shopping Center. Commissioners said the proposed sign should be reduced in size.

Conservatives Back Common Mart

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI —Britain's ruling Conservative Party today patched up years of internal strife over membership in the Common Market and called on the government to take a "positive" lead in development of the Market after Britain joins Jan. 1.

The party's annual rank-and-file convention took the almost unanimous action after Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home pledged the government's determination to help make the new enlarged Common Market "a partnership for peace."

The vote was in stark contrast with the feuding and divisions over market membership that marked the opposition Labor Party's convention here last week.

The Labor Party ended up by promising to try to renegotiate Britain's membership terms when it returns to power and promising a referendum vote by the nation.

Douglas-Home said Britain will go in on Jan. 1 and that there will be no referendum.

The nearly unanimous action contrasted sharply with convention activities Thursday when there was pandemonium in the normally well-mannered Conservative Party.

"This government has broken its pledges on immigration," said Enoch Powell Thursday, gripping the lectern so hard his knuckles were white.

Powell, the maverick former Conservative government cabinet member who broke with Prime Minister Edward Heath over race and colored immigration, stood white-faced and defiant at the rostrum.

Above him on the platform Heath and his ministers sat grim and unsmiling.

From throughout the hall welled up waves of cheering, booing, catcalls and stamping.

A noisy group of Young Conservative Association members hung a banner from the balcony with the words: "A Promise Kept."

Middle-aged ladies in flowery hats applauded ecstatically.

Red-faced retired colonels bellowed "that's the stuff."

"Liar, boo," roared back Young Conservatives.

"It would take a braver man than me to get down among this crowd," remarked conference chairman William Harris.

Heath pursed his mouth—looking angry and flushed.

"The pledge to assist all those immigrants who wish to return home has been broken in a way that can only be described as cynical," Powell snapped. "The electors will not forgive a party which averts its gaze or a government which leaves its promises unfulfilled."

He stepped down to return to his seat. His supporters started an ovation. Anti-Powellites booed furiously.

It took Home Secretary Robert Carr to take the heat out of the meeting.

"I reaffirm unequivocally that the government is determined to control immigration even more strongly. But it also is determined to honor to the full its obligations to the British Asians from Uganda," he said, referring to 50,000 Asians holding British passports and who have been expelled from the African nation.

Amid fresh uproar a resolution backing the government's immigration policiesand its decision to give refuge to the Uganda Asians was passed by a large show-of-hands majority.

Diehard Powell supporters shouted for a roll call vote. But it went against them 1,721 to 736.

"That is as much as I could have hoped for," Powell said later.

A Roundup Of Stray Dogs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A city official disclosed Thursday that a task force has been sweeping through the Sunnydale area rounding up stray dogs because residents reported wild dogs were roaming the streets.

Eneas J. Kane, executive director of the San Francisco Housing Authority, said sweeps have been carried out this month by a force of police, humane officers and city housing agents.

Kane told the Authority directors that a 3-year-old boy was "viciously attacked and bitten" by a dog in the Sunnydale area last month.

A petition signed by residents was sent to City Hall the same day the boy was attacked. It complained that "the area is infested with dogs that often attack in packs."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There were 125 actual and attempted bombing incidents in the nation during September, bringing the total this year to 1,486, the FBI said today.

Twenty-one persons have been killed and 133 injured, including two deaths and five injuries in September.

The FBI said leading targets during the month were residences, with 31 attacks. Other targets included commercial operations and office buildings, 29; vehicles, 15; schools, 8; and law enforcement buildings and equipment, 3.

Explosive type bomby were involved in 71 incidents and incendiary devices in 54.

Geographically in the first nine months of the year, the Western states reported 581 bomb incidents, the North-Central states 378, the South 339, the Northeast 156, Puerto Rico 28 and the Virgin Islands 4.

Larkspur Trustees Opposing Prop. 14

The Larkspur School District board, following in the footsteps of other school districts in the county, last night unanimously opposed passage of the Watson tax initiative on the November ballot.

"Passage of the initiative (Proposition 14) will mean a loss of $165 per pupil in our district," Supt. Milton S. Cohen said today. "The board was very concerned that the measure does mean a reduction in Taxes, because others would have to be increased," he said.

Cohen called the measure an "unsound taxation method".

The complex proposal would reduce property taxes by 40 per cent and shift the burden of financing such programs as welfare and local education to the state. Legislative consultants have estimated the measure would trigger a $1.3 billion increase in other taxes to offset the loss of local property taxes.

The Larkspur School District Board Also:

HALL SCHOOL — Received a letter from the state Department of Education praising the district's use of the "open classroom" or unstructured learning environment program at Henry C. Hall School.

TESTING — Announced district sixth graders would undergo a statewide testing program this month.

REDEVELOPMENT — Opposed the concept of redevelopment for cities, saying such projects rob school districts of tax revenues.

INSURANCE — Instructed staff to cut the district's insurance program with an eye to keeping loss of coverage minimal. The district insurance program, which cost $12,000 three years ago, now costs $15,800, according to Cohen.

RESOURCES — Announced the district had joined the San Mateo Educational Resources Center, a program providing teachers with resource information.

PARENTS — Was told that parents literally packed district schools during a series of back-to-school nights held two weeks ago.

MAINTENANCE — Said the district's summer maintenance program, which involved upkeep of school facilities, was outstanding.

GUIDELINES — Adopted the Marin County "basic course of study," a county curriculum guideline for teachers.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to a special meeting on the district reading program scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26.

Experiments For Amtrak Funded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved $9.1 million to finance seven experimental passenger runs for Amtrak — the National Railway Passenger Service.

This item was part of a $57 million supplemental appropriation passed Thursday night for Amtrak for this fiscal year. The remainder includes $32 million for upgrading tracks, and $15.9 million for purchase of turbo trains.

The operations money would finance continuation of runs in southern Montana and Parkersburg, Wash.; and the new run through New England to Montreal, Que.; and finance three new runs.

Call Issued On Bank Conditions

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government's three bank regulatory agencies issued a call today for statements of condition of all banks as of the close of business Oct. 10.

The order applies to banks supervised by the Federal Reserve, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the comptroller of the currency.

The announcement was one of two annual surprise calls in which banks must open their records for examination by the federal agencies. There also are two regularly scheduled examinations on Dec. 31 and June 30.

Delta Push Halts Planes To S. Viets

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force today abruptly halted the turnover of the last of its A37 Dragonfly dive bombers to the South Vietnamese Air Force because of a serious Communist threat to the Mekong Delta, military sources said.

The action was unprecedented in the 3-year-old troop withdrawal program.

The halt in the withdrawal of the planes will keep 170 pilots and crewmen at Bien Hoa Air Base, 14 miles northeast of Saigon.

Until Oct. 1, the men were members of the Air Force's 8th Special Operations Squadron. Pilots flew their last missions Sept. 30 and during a stand-down ceremony that day colors of the squadron were turned over to a representative of a squadron at Clark Air Base, Philippines, being redesignated the 8th Tactical Fighter Squadron.

The U.S. Command said the 170 men were being "temporarily" assigned to the 377th Air Base Wing at Bien Hoa. The wing is a ground unit to which operational combat planes are not normally assigned.

A military source denied that Communist troop activity within 15 miles north of Saigon resulted in halting the scheduled departure. He said it was the threat in the Mekong Delta, mentioning the takeover of a large segment of Cambodia along the South Vietnam border.

Planes of the unit made their first air strikes Thursday, destroying Communist gun emplacements 6 and 11 miles southeast of My Tho, 34 miles southwest of Saigon.

A major battle was reported in that area Thursday. The South Vietnamese command said its militia in fighting which ranged from one to four miles northwest, northeast and southeast of the provincial capital of Ben Tre killed 57 Communists with the help of air strikes and artillery fire. South Vietnamese casualties were eight dead and 25 wounded.

Ben Tre is in Kien Hoa Province at the mouth of the Mekong River. The river islands which comprise it are the richest farmland in South Vietnam, but the province was the birthplace of South Vietnam's Communist Party and the capital was overrun during the 1968 Tet offensive. An American adviser said at that time, "We had to destroy the city to save it."

To Attend Convention

Chief Joseph J. Brusatori of San Rafael police will attend the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police beginning tomorrow in Salt Lake City. Following the four-day convention, Chief Brusatori will take a few days of his annual vacation before returning to work late this month.

Mollenhoff, Ziegler Engage In Dispute Over Report Accuracy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and Pulitzer Prize winning reporter Clark R. Mollenhoff engaged in a tense confrontation Friday over the accuracy of a quote Mollenhoff attributed to Ziegler last week.

"I'm challenging you on a specific point of accuracy," said Mollenhoff, a former White House adviser who heads the Washington bureau of the Des Moines Register.

But as Mollenhoff repeatedly pressed his challenge, Ziegler replied blandly each time, "I've issued a statement and I stand by it."

Mollenhoff, in a dispatch last week, quoted Ziegler as admitting that funds to finance the alleged bugging of Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate complex in Washington had come from the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

"There is no question but that the money came from the committee," Mollenhoff quoted Ziegler as saying.

Ziegler subsequently issued an angry denial in which he said the story was "a misinterpretation of what I said and placed totally out of context."

It was that statement that Ziegler refused to elaborate on in his impromptu debate with Mollenhoff Friday during the press secretary's regular midday news conference.

Mollenhoff opened by telling Ziegler, "I want a confrontation out here where we have witnesses. My story has been questioned."

After Ziegler replied that he had issued a statement, Mollenhoff attempted to reconstruct his earlier private conversation with the press secretary.

"We had just gone over the $1,600 that Liddy had in his possession," said Mollenhoff. "We had just gone over the $3,500 that Hunt spent for electronic devices. At that point you said there was no question that the money came from the committee."

G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, both former White House employes, have been indicted in the Watergate break-in but have not been brought to trial.

Earlier in the briefing Ziegler announced Nixon would make a radio broadcast Sunday afternoon on the subject of crime.

In a parting shot, Mollenhoff asked Ziegler, "The speech Sunday on crime —will that include the Watergate?"

"You'll have a text Sunday," Ziegler replied.

Victim Of Rock Throwing Faces Loss Of One Eye

An Alameda girl faces possible loss of sight in one eye due to a rock-throwing incident following a football game at San Rafael High School Sept. 22.

Elizabeth Murray, 16, has been in Marin General Hospital undergoing treatment since the incident, according to her father, Frederic. "That rock cut the pupil of her right eye and we don't know it it'll clear up or not. There's going to be some kind of permanent damage," he said.

Murray said surgery may be required and that his daughter might miss up to a semester of shcool. The girl was listed in good condition today in Marin General.

According to police, the girl was struck by a rock which flew through an open bus window following a football game between Alameda and Terra Linda high schools. Several youths wearing Terra Linda athletic jackets were seen pelting the bus, police said.

The Independent-Journal, at request of San Rafael police, is offering a $100 reward through its Secret Witness program for information leading to discovery of who threw the rocks.

Informtion should be addressed to Secret Witness, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael 94902. The Secret Witness report should not be signed, but the writer should put the same five-digit number in each lower corner of the page, then tear off one corner and retain the number. If the information leads to discovery ot the perpetrators, the reward can be claimed by presenting the torn-off corner bearing the matching number.

Cocaine Trap Backfires; Trio Killed In Motel

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal undercover agent and two men identified by officials as suspected cocaine dealers were shot to death in a West Side motel last night when a trap laid by narcotics agents backfired and a gunfight ensued.

A supervisory agent was critically wounded.

A Bureau of Narcotics spokesman said the two men had agreed to sell the undercover man 10 kilos of cocaine for $160,000 but then, in a double-cross, tried to rob the agent without delivering the drugs.

The dead agent was identified as Frank Tummillo, 25, who had been with the bureau for four years. Officials said he had made contact with the two men two weeks ago.

They agreed to sell Tummillo the cocaine and a meeting was set up for last night.

Two Policemen Are Advanced

The departure of Sgt. Duffy L. Midyett of the Belvedere Police has moved two other policemen in the department up the ladder.

Midyett, 37, resigned as of Sept. 30 to return to Truckee.

His sergeant's post will be filled by Terrance V. Zink, 26, a patrolman since 1967. Zink's spot will be filled by John E. Lundquist, 20, formerly a police cadet. The cadet's job has been filled by S. Bert Johansson, 18.

A Plea On Rail Right-Of-Way

A committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday appealed to the Town of Corte Madera to do nothing that could jeopardize the existing but abandoned railroad right-of-way through its marshland waterfront.

Zoning along the railway has been changed by the town to permit development of a huge shopping center, and bridge district officials fear the right-of-way may be lost in the development.

The 150-foot-wide right-of-way was earmarked two years ago by the district for future transit use.

Plans by the town envision using much of the right-of-way for a six-lane road, leaving some room for transit as well. The town's construction of San Clemente Drive, however, consumed almost 100 feet just for four lanes. A six-lane extension of the roadway presumably would leave as little as 25 feet for a two-way transit system that will have to be elevated for grade separation.

The Cherokees Hit Columbus

CHEROKEE, N.C. (UPI)— Christopher Columbus was "a trader in Indian slaves" and it is a "racist insult" for the nation to honor him with a holiday, according to a newspaper published by the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.

The current issue of The Cherokee One Feather calls editorially for the abolishment of Columbus Day, which is "symbolic of a canerous attitude that must be excised.

"Can American youngsters ever lose racist attitudes as long as their nation and their schools celebrate Columbus Day?" the newspaper asked.

"History can only say that he set into motion a massive migration of Europeans to North America. History can add that he was also a trader in Indian slaves."

The alarm was sounded by the bridge district's joint transportation and finance-auditing committee, which agreed to call a meeting soon with town officials to discuss the possible threat to the district's transit plans.

The committee, in related business, authorized the district's attorney to negotiate a renewable one-year lease with Northwestern Pacific Railroad for the right-of-way.

The Golden Gate Bridge District's joint transportation and finance-auditing committee also:

SONOMA — Set Sonoma County's payment toward the district's transit system this fiscal year at $425,000, the money to come from the county's share of the new state sales tax on gasoline.

SECRET — Met behind closed doors for 45 minutes to discuss condemnation and values of several properties in San Francisco for parking buses.

SHELTERS — Recommended the district apply to the federal government for a $150,000 grant to match the $75,000 Marin County has accumulated for bus shelters from sales tax revenue on the district's bus fleet. The bridge district should be responsible for construction and maintenance of the shelters, the committee recommended.

GREYHOUND — Received without comment a protest from Greyhound Lines to a proposal that the district subsidize charter bus service for Sonoma County commuters. The service would divert riders from Greyhound's Sonoma buses, the company said.

Marine Lab Open House Is Tomorrow

The combined Marine Minerals Research Center and Tiburon Fisheries Laboratory at the old Naval Net Depot on Paradise Drive in Tiburon will throw open its doors to the public from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. tomorrow.

The open house will feature exhibits of live fish native to California, a demonstration of the effects of oil on fish; a film entitled, "Why Biologists Dive;" a diving tank, and a display of research apparatus used by the center's scientists.

One half of Building 36 will house displays of the minerals center while the other half will be devoted to marine life.

Research has been going on at the 77-acre center for about 10 years but the facility recently underwent sweeping reorganization. In 1970, both the center and laboratory were placed under newly created national oceanic and atmospheric administration, which in turn, falls under the department of commerce.

Since the reshuffling, the centers have launched several research projects.

The fisheries laboratory is concentrating on three areas of study: the effect of oil spills on marine life; a sweeping look at the entire San Francisco Bay with an eye toward understanding the impact that man-made changes in the bay might have on marine life, and comprehensive research on the interaction of marine and plant life, particularly of sea urchins and kelp.

Filante Will Host Arrigoni, Boxer

Both candidates in Marin's Second Supervisorial District, incumbent Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and challenger Barbara Boxer, next week will attend a coffee hosted by the candidate they both defeated in the June primary election.

Dr. William J. Filante will hold the joint coffee at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at his Kentfield home, 33 Wolfe Grade.

Fragging Trial To Reconvene

FT. ORD (AP) — The trial of Army Pvt. Billy Dean Smith, accused in the hand grenade slayings of two officers in Vietnam, will not reconvene until next Thursday, the Army has announced.

"It is anticipated that the defense will begin the presentation of its case at this time," Maj. J.D. Coleman said yesterday.

The trial was recessed Oct. 5 after the prosecution completed its case.

Smith, 24, of Los Angeles, is charged with the 1971 fragging deaths of Lts. Thomas A. Dellow of Choteau, Mont., and Richard E. Harlan of Dallas, Tex., and the wounding of 1st Lt. Peter S. Higgins of Harrison, N.J. at the Ben Hoa, Vietnam base.

Ross Cool To Bicycle Path

The county's proposed bicycle paththrough Ross met a very cool reception from the Ross Town Council last night, and councilmen predicted it would be a "bike freeway." (Another Ross Council story, page 1.)

Mayor Frederick S. Allen told county park planner Donald Rolph: "You are suggesting a throughway. They want to put a concrete creek through here and a bicycle throughway. They want to widen Sir Francis Drake. Nest thing, there's going to be a rapid transit without any stop."

Rolph showed maps of the path's route through Ross, linking the path already under construction from Larkspur through the College of Marin with San Anselmo at Bolinas Avenue.

The route would follow the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project right-of-way as far as the parking lot behind Ross post office, cross Lagunitas Bridge, then run along Sylvan Lane and Shady Lane.

A new wooden bridge would be constructed across the creek on Shady Lane, he said.

Councilmen most objected to the county's proposal to run the path along the sidewalk on the west side of Shady Lane, blacktopping the existing surface.

"Shady Lane looks very like a bike freeway," commented Councilman Alan P. Maginis.

Councilman Roy Farrington Jones urged Rolph to consider running the bike path along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, despite Rolph's protestations that there is too much traffic and it is too narrow.

A woman in the audience said she thought the proposal would be "very advantageous for the town and the Ross children who cycle to school" but Mayor Allen said it would turn out to be "a throughway from San Francisco to Point Reyes."

The council set an "informal public workshop" on the plans for Oct. 28, when the Ross Town Hall will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for display of the route plans, County park planners will be on duty to answer questions from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Ross Town Council Also:

OPEN SPACE — Adopted an interim open space plan to comply with state requirements; the interim plan is actually that adopted by the county on June 27, which includes the Ross corporate limits — the town has hired planning consultant James Campbell to prepare a general plan before June 1973.

POLICE — Voted unanimously to inform county authorities of its disagreement with the 1971-72 Marin County Grand Jury's recommendation of study of a consolidated police department, adding that there are "no advantages, only disadvantages."

ENVIRONMENT — Adopted guidelines modeled on those set by the city of San Rafael last week defining projects which would have a "trivial" environmental impact, and thus escape the necessity of environmental impact studies before building permits can be issued.

COUNTY PLAN — Decided every member would try to attend Thursday's hearing on the proposed countywide general plan at 8 p.m. at the civic center after councilman Roy Farrington Jones said it had "so many ramifications" and was "the first step to midwifing a City and County of Marin."

CREEK — Heard Allen explain that debris trapped in the sluice at the junction with the concrete flood control channel of the Corte Madera Creek was piling up and it was Ross's responsibility to police cleanup until Zone 9 of the flood control advisory board acquired jurisdiction, probably in December.

SIGN — Passed an emergency ordinance extending the times on the "no left turn" sign at the intersection of Bolinas Avenue and Shady Lane; from 8:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., so traffic will be curtailed while children are arriving at school.

CHURCH — Approved an application by St. Anselm's Church to erect a sign on Sir Francis Drake Blvd. and Bolinas Avenue saying "St. Anselm's Catholic Church One Block."

FIRE — Instructed town clerk Virginia Stott to write letters of commendation to all fire departments involved in halting a huge fire Saturday at the Ross border.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned at 11:50 p.m. to the next regular meeting at 8 p.m. on Nov. 9 at town hall.

INCHING TOWARD THE SEA

After five days on the beach, the Shamrock VI is moving inch-by-inch toward the sea — thanks to the help of tractors and boats at Santa Cruz. The large boat was purchased recently by Rocco Cardinale of Santa Cruz from its former owner Dr. Jeremiah J. Wolohan of Kentfield. Rains this week from the current stormy weather pattern have slowed salvage operations.

Uruguayans Grumble Over Ban On Beef

By JAMES N. GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Uruguayans, accustomed to having huge quantities of beef on their dining tables, are grumbling as never before following imposition of a four-month ban on beef consumption.

Across the estuary of the Rio de la Plata, Argentines continue to grumble about their country's beef ban which takes place every other week.

And across the Andes Mountains, Chileans also are complaining about beef bans and shortages.

For three countries which have traditionally been major beef producers and consumers — the Argentine traditionally eats more beef than any other people in the world — the beef ban is particularly galling.

They know all the reasons for the ban — basically a desire on the part of governments to conserve beef for export to earn needed foreign exchange. But whenever governments take away beef from their tables, they are bound to complain.

The bans, for the most part, are only on beef, with lamb, pork, and other meats readily available.

The ban is called a "veda" — a suspension of sales in meat markets and in restaurants. Of course, some fortunate households have freezers and can store meat for the meatless days, but the majority of homes in this part of the world cannot afford such luxuries.

Moreover, there are stiff penalties for anyone found disobeying the ban on beef sales and consumption.

The governments of both Argentina and Uruquay argue that these bans are necessary if cattle raisers are to sell their animals for export. Right now, the international demand is high and the price for exported beef is good also. But supply remains limited.

Much of the problem stems from the failure of Argentina and Uruguayan cattlemen to increase their herds. In Uruguay, for example, the number of cattle out on the grazing land today is no larger than it was in 1908 — somewhere between 8.5 million and nine million head.

Final Plans Ordered By MMWD

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District have authorized three engineering firms to prepare final plans for a $28 million project to treat and dispose of waste from communities in Southeast and Central Marin.

John T. Schulte, project manager for Improvement District A, said the firms — J. Warren Nute Inc., Jenks and Adamson and Yoder-Trotter-Orlob and Associates — recently completed preliminary plans for the massive project.

They have now been asked to make a project report which will include a complete description of the proposed system and will be used as the basis for grant applications.

The water board acted Wednesday on the recommendations of the district A advisory committee which thought work on the project report should begin as soon as possible. District A was formed by the water district more than two years ago to plan for the consolidated waste treatment sytem up to the point of a bond issue.

Schulte said the engineers' report will also include studies of the project's financing, administration and environmental impact. The water district board is expected to contract those studies out to consultants at its Oct. 25 meeting.

Priests Held In Philippines On Martial Law Violations

MANILA (UPI)—Two American Roman Catholic priests doing missionary work in the Philippines have been arrested and placed in military camps on charges of violating the martial law decree, the government said Friday.

One of the priests, the director of a radio station in the central Philippines, was charged with "inciting to rebellion." The other missionary was charged with continuing broadcasts despite an official ban.

At the same time, the Philippine government announced a ban on travel abroad by permanent foreign residents and those on certain working status.

President Ferdinand E. Marcos gave the order in a letter of instruction to the secretaries of foreign affairs, justice, finance and national defense and to the governor of the Philippine Central Bank.

The president said travel clearance should not be given to permanent alien residents holding immigration certificates of residence or certificates of registration for prearranged employes.

The only exceptions, the president said, are those traveling on official missions, scholars, immigrants, those with work contracts abroad and crews of ships or planes. The president earlier banned travels by Filipinos abroad with similar exceptions.

It was believed the order was issued to enable the government to investigate foreigners engaged in subversive activities. President Marcos proclaimed martial law last Sept. 23 in the face of what he termed a foreign supported Communist uprising.

The government said the two Americans under arrest were Rev. Bruno Hicks, 43, and Rev. John Peterson, 35, both members of the Franciscan Order assigned in the Philippines.

Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad told a news briefing that Father Hicks was charged with "inciting to a rebellion," an offense subject to trial by a military tribunal. Tatad, however, said it was not yet definite the priest would face a military trial since investigation was still going on.

Father Peterson was detained for continuing unauthorized radio broadcasts despite the closure order under President Marcos' martial law proclamation.

The two priests are the only known Americans under martial law detention.

The two also are the only clerics still reported in detention in two military camps outside Manila along with more than 200 persons.

Rev. Kiernan Kilroy, who said he was an associate of Father Hicks, told newsmen in Los Angeles that Father Hicks was arrested Sept. 26 and Father Peterson last Sept 29. He said Father Hicks was director of a radio station known as the "Voice of the Voiceless" on Negros Island in the Central Philippines.

A Message to Carriers:
"YOU'VE GOT SOMETHING ON THE BALL"
says Johnny Bench

"SO YOU'RE A NEWSPAPER CARRIER!"

Nobody knows pitching better than a catcher. So when Cincinnati Reds star Johnny Bench talks about "something on the ball," he's thinking of every successful pitcher he knows.

But "something on the ball" isn't restricted to the ball park. You can say it about people who have that something special that leads to success. Helpfulness. Willingness to work. Pride in accomplishment.

BENCH-marks of a star:
Born in Oklahoma and was a newspaperboy there. High school valedictorian, active in 4-H Club. Little Leaguer starting at age 7. Twice on all-state H. S. baseball team. All Star catcher in three minor leagues, and '67 Minor League Player of the Year. National League Rookie of the Year and Jim Thorpe Foundation Award winner '68. National League Most Valuable Player and Major League Player of the Year '70. Golden Glove Award winner '71. National League All Star catcher five straight years – with a '72 vote total that was tops for both leagues.

Add in a few more items like "performs in all kinds of weather," and "likes to give friendly service to the customer," and you've got a pretty good description of your newspaper carrier.

Chances are that thriftiness is part of the picture, too. Thousands of newspaper carriers set aside part of their earnings each month for college and other important future needs. U. S. Savings Bonds are one of their favorite ways to build that "tomorrow fund," just as they are for their parents and millions of other Americans.

So Johnny Bench is not alone in his tribute to carriers. Uncle Sam, through the Treasury Department, salutes them too. And now that it's Newspaper Carrier Day again, maybe you'd like to join in.

San Rafael Gets Its Town Meeting

San Rafael residents — as many of them as want to give a day to discussion of local public problems — will gather in Angelico Hall of Dominican College at 9 a.m. tomorrow for San Rafael's first town meeting.

The idea of trying to revive the New England town meeting concept for greater citizen involvement in public issues has been tried already in several other cities in Marin, with varying degrees of success.

THE SAN RAFAEL version got its start last May, spark-plugged by Priscilla Bull of 117 San Rafael Avenue. Mrs. Bull felt there is lack of citizen participation on San Rafael issues, and that the old "Chinese wall" of Puerto Suello Hill separating the old part of town is largely responsible.

Plans for the town meeting were laid at a May 24 gathering at City Hall. Subsequently, committees were appointed to work up agenda items and prepare for the hoped-for large assemblage. Much work has gone into the preparations during the summer and early fall. Its effectiveness will be tested tomorrow.

THE TOWN MEETING idea is a good idea. But it has its pitfalls.

The greatest pitfall is that a town meeting may be taken over by a group of like-minded people who have their own "axe to grind" and who may represent only a small minority of the residents.

Since most citizens don't follow public affairs very closely, it is relatively easy for an activist few to prepare themselves so that they can dominate discussions. What the town meeting comes up with then becomes the views of these activists, with seeming endorsement of a much larger number.

On the other hand, if the gathering really follows the pattern of the old New England town meeting, where all citizens met together and anyone could "sound off" on any subject, it is unlikely to produce any sort of consensus. What worked in small communities, in days of less complicated public problems, simply won't work in a city the size of San Rafael in the 1970s.

THE RECENT Corte Madera town meeting showed one way of attempting to resolve the problem. The gathering divided into several workshops, each tackling a particular area of interest. Then they met together for the whole attendance to hear the workshop reports and accept or reject them.

It didn't quite work out. By the afternoon general meeting, too many had gone home — having given up as much of the week end as they felt they could spare for the purpose, or having had their say in a workshop on the only subject in which they were deeply interested. There was no discussion of the reports.

A similar format is planned for the San Rafael meeting. We hope it turns out better.

It will if enough people take part. For that is the essence of the town meeting. Only if there is participation by many who had no hand in its organization can it produce consensus that will have much meaning.

So how about showing up at Angelico Hall tomorrow to take your part in some grassroots democracy?

Strangling Roots

We plant our fuchsias in redwood tubs in our back garden. In this case it is a horticultural necessity, not a mere aesthetic thing. The roots of the periwinkle ground cover invade the fuchsia roots and suck most of the nourishment from the soil. The fuchsias simply cannot compete with the barbaric invasions of the periwinkle.

Even in the tubs, the fuchsias often look pale and sickly and do not bloom well. When this happens, we have learned to turn the tubs on their sides and clip the periwinkle roots from the bottom. This simple operation causes an immediate flourishing of the fuchsia.

In Fall Of Election Year The Roads Get Patched

By RUS WALTON

You can tell election time is almost here.

The leaves are starting to turn and there's a nip in the air. The first rains of autumn have arrived and that crazy crab apple tree is having another false pregnancy.

What's more, the guys in those big orange dump trucks are out fixing the county roads. Robins come in the spring but the road crews come in the fall. Every four years they come — every time our county supervisor runs for reelection.

The county road by our place has been full of chuck holes for the past three years. The ruts by the bridge have been getting deeper for the past 18 months.

Folks have been kicking and screaming and writing letters — but the holes get deeper and the ruts get bigger and the politicians get busier, with other things.

BUT NOW the "Vote" signs are sprouting on the telephone poles and the fence posts are plastered with election cards. And, surewenough, the road crew is parked down by the bridge with its pea gravel and its tar.

Any day now we'll be getting a letter from the incumbent supervisor. Four years ago we got one. It said that nothing was too good for us constituents. And, that's what we have been getting: nothing. Nothing but higher taxes. Every year the rent we have to pay the county for living in our own little house is getting steeper and steeper.

Oh, well. Autumn is still the best of all times. Even if the political campaigns intrude.

Here in the foothills of the Mother Lode country the leaves are turning red and gold and the apples are turning to cider. Soon the hills will be green velvet from the winter mists. In the meantime, nature wears her best plaid skirt to the high school football games.

I don't care what those ecology folks say, there's nothing like the smell of burning leaves — or hot tar.

PICKED UP another splinter from the seat of government last week.

Seems Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti is all shook up about an advertisement opposing Proposition 20 — the coastal zoning initiative. He says the ad is deceitful and calculated to confuse the voter.

Moretti — one of that growing covey of birds who want to be Governor come 1975 — is advocating a review of all political advertising. He also proposes a law that would require all such ads to be truthful.

His lieutenant, Assemblyman Henry Waxman, D-Los Angeles, was quick to jump through the hoop. This week, as chairman of the Assemhly Elections committee, Waxman is holding hearings on the issue of political ads and campaign professionals.

Truth in politics would, indeed, be refreshing. But such a law as Mr. Moretti suggests should be handled with great care lest it become a witch hunt of censorship and a vehicle for even more campaign propaganda.

"A Bromo? At a $1,000-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner?"

"You tell me a better way to decide on all these propositions."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Town Meeting Will Discuss Redevelopment

This refers to your editorial of Sept. 28 which was headlined, "Redevelopment Plan Needs Close Look". The editorial opens by stating, "San Rafael residents will get their only chance to sound off about the city's proposed redevelopment plan at a public hearing set for Oct. 26 at 8 p.m. in City Hall."

While the San Rafael Town Meeting scheduled for this Saturday, Oct. 14, at 9 am on the Dominican College campus is not a public hearing as such, it certainly will afford residents an opportunity to sound off about redevelopment plans and a wide variety of subjects affecting their general welfare.

It is expected that the redevelopment agency workshop will draw widespread interest at the town meeting. The redevelopment agency executive director along with several others with differing points of view have agreed to attend this session. It should be interesting, and may provide the input about which the city has been asking.

Your editorial point is well taken. The total program not only represents considerable sums of money, but also will establish fundamental long-range objectives for the city in the process. This is obviously a large order for a single public hearing.

The city administration has indicated that they have received very few citizen ideas about the redevelopment agency. This may not be especially surprising since not all citizens wish to attend city council meetings or enjoy writing letters. We are hopeful that the town meeting format will provide a basis for the registration of public opinion and viable suggestions for the agency's consideration.

Distortion In Paper, Not In County Plan

In your editorial of Oct. 2, you discussed the alleged threat to democracy in the countywide plan. George Quesada, chairman of the City-County Planning Council, has appropriately responded to the errors contained in the editorial.

Your reference to Hitler's national socialism shows either a willful distortion of history, or an appalling lack of knowledge. Distortions were, of course, rather common in "Der Sturmer," and in "Der Volkische Beobachter," but I am sure the Independent-Journal did not intend to sink to the level of papers of that ilk.

If, then, it was lack of knowledge, you should have foregone the reference. Your statement might offend those who survived the horrors of national socialism. Those who did not are beyond offense.

TODAY'S WORLD

Water Fluoridation And Mottled Teeth

In discussions of water fluoridation the term "mottling of teeth" often crops up. What does it mean?

Mottling is a color change in tooth enamel ranging from barely perceptible to brownish spots. It does not occur from drinking water fluoridated at one part per million. Mottling is a side effect of excess fluoride intake which has been continuous for several years. It is common in varying degrees in areas where the water has a high natural fluoride content. People living in these areas don't complain about it, because they have almost no dental decay — and prefer it that way. Very few of them would trade their mottled teeth for filled or artificial ones.

With a fluoride level of one part per million in the water, you can have your cake and eat it too — decay prevention without mottling. . .

JOHN T. SMITH, D.D.S.

San Anselmo

Disappointed That Water Not Fluoridated

It is a disappointment to find, after moving to Marin from Palo Alto, that the water here is not fluoridated. I have always been proud of Palo Alto progressive spirit and now I feel even more so because Palo Alto authorities studied the pros and cons of fluoridating water and the people decided for the sake of all their growing children to add fluorine to the water supply at a very low cost.

Rumors here indicate that the reason why fluorine is not being added to the water in Marin County is that the people voted against it. Obviously, they were not sufficiently informed or they would not have thrown away such an opportunity to have better health and a saving of dental expenses. In Palo Alto, the reduction of dental decay is very evident to all and no one ever heard of harm of any kind. . .

JEANNE HSU

Tiburon

Some Questions About Fluoridating Water

Continuing emotional outbursts and accusations that people who express concern over fluoridation are telling lies certainly does the cause of the fluoridators a disservice.

Since the issue has become a political football, scientific and dental aspects can no longer be the name of the game. Common sense is. So, rather than attempting to engage in a contest over which authorities claim what, may we consider some basics here?

What research has there been to determine how much fluoride people are taking into their diets from many sources today, in order to find if the total amount is within the tolerance limits for this toxic chemical? This is a project which will take years to complete, if indeed it's possible at all. But should fluoride be deliberately added to public water anywhere until there is such a survey, particularly sodium fluoride, or even worse, the by-product hydrofluosilicic acid, now being used in many communities?

What's the most efficient, safest way of administering fluoride as an anti-decay agent, in a manner that will least pollute the environment? Is mass dosing, which provides no control of the amount of fluoride water each person drinks daily, a logical way? Chidlren drink relatively little water.

Do alternatives (drops in water, topical application, brush-in programs, fluoride supplements) provide a risk of serious side effects, compared to public water fluoridation? Can they be discontinued immediately if necessary? What happens when the water is fluoridated and reactions occur? Can one really avoid fluoride under such circumstances just by buying bottled water, when an entire community is fluoridated?

Compared to all other methods now available, and considering all things involved, does artificial fluoridation make sense? Not to me!

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

George McGovern Fully Sincere Despite Many Shifts Of Stance

WASHINGTON — There is one kind of poll which does Senator McGovern an injustice and that is the survey which bears on his personal qualities. Is he trustworthy, straightforward, credible?

The polls which show him far behind do not disturb him very much. He takes them in his stride, confident that he can with persistence close the gap in the election campaign as he did in the campaign for the nomination.

But the Gallup Poll which by a margin of 2-to-1 finds that the American people feel that Mr. Nixon is more "sincere and believable" than McGovern is — this distresses him beyond measure. He boils with righteous anger. He prizes his credibility above all else. It has been his lifelong possession. He avows he has not told a falsehood to anybody in this election campaign, and yet today the polls show that twice as many voters doubt McGovern as doubt his opponent. He feels they are grossly unfair.

ARE THEY? Would a detached verdict agree they are unfair?

My view is that on this point the polls are accurate but misleading and therefore unfair to McGovern.

There is no reason to doubt that the polls reflect the public's feeling that McGovern has greatly impaired his credibility and sincerity in the campaign.

The question isn't whether the polls are wrong but wether the public has made a just perception.

I have had a professional relationship with George McGovern every since he came to Washington in 1963 as director of the Food for Peace program under President Kennedy. I always found him candid, credible and reliable.

Now, in the middle of the presidential campaign, the majority of voters suddenly perceives him as lacking in candor and credibility.

Is this a just diagnosis of the McGovern character?

MY REASON for believing it an unjust diagnosis is this: It seems to me that voters are displeased by McGovern's judgment and, when asked by pollsters whether they consider him sincere, they equate lack of judgment with lack of sincerity.

I think that McGovern was sincere when he proposed that the government give $1,000 a year to every American and sincere when he withdrew the proposal.

He was sincere when he advocated substantial redistribution-of-wealth tax reforms and was sincere when he muted those proposals in his Wall Street speech.

He was sincere when he said he would withdraw all U.S. forces in the Vietnamese war and he was sincere when he said he would keep air power in Thailand and naval forces in the Gulf of Tonkin.

He was sincere when he said that "if I had known every detail (about Sen. Tom Eagleton's hospitalizations) he would still have been my choice" — and then changed his choice. And McGovern was sincere when he said he "backed Eagleton 1,000 per cent" and he was sincere when he dropped him the next day.

THERE IS NO DOUBT that to be seen as sincere, straightforward and credible is the most crucial possession of any man in public life. It is perilous to have the public perceive him as lacking in those qualities.

I believe McGovern is sincere when he says one thing one day and something different a little later. He has altered his judgment, not his character.

But here there is a nearly equal peril to McGovern. When a presidential candidates shifts, shades, mutes or changes his positions too often, then judgment itself becomes a voter concern.

It seems to me that it is the judgment issue which is hurting McGovern most.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Eunice Shriver At Bull Roast Learns About Party Loyalties

BALTIMORE — The bull roast is a tradition in organization politics around Baltimore the way barbecues are in Texas and fish fries are in Tennessee. And while it is an old institution, it is still growing — it has social mobility.

The quintessential bull roast is one thrown by a city political boss in a part of town where the League of Women Voters, Common Cause and outfits like those have minimal influence. As exhibit A, I submit the one in the name of state Sen. Joseph Staszak of East Baltimore, who dared schedule his on a Sunday afternoon when he knew well the Colts were playing San Diego a few miles away at Memorial Stadium. (Whether he would have dared on a day when they were out of town, and thus on television, is another matter.)

This one will stand not only as a typical bull roast, but in broader terms as a symbol of what has happened to the Democratic Party in the year of Sen. George McGovern. Others in my trade have conducted vast national surveys to find out what they could have seen clearly while having a beer at Joe Staszak's bull roast on Eastern Avenue.

UNDERSTAND, FIRST, that Stazak is a Democrat. His has always been a Democratic district. But Staszak also is an astute politician. This year he is not a McGovern Democrat. He and his organization are Nixon Democrats.

Also understand that the Staszak organization is a highly personal affair. It is run out of Staszak's bar. When he throws a bull roast, it is not billed as an East Baltimore Democratic Club bull roast or by any other misleading name. It is Joe Staszak's bull roast, and everybody who pays $7 a ticket to get in knows that.

A hallful of them arrived early and got a head start on the barbecued beef, sauerkraut, chili, slaw, beans, marcaroni salad, beer and games of chance. At every long table there was at least one man with a protable radio at his ear, reporting the downward progress of John Unitas and his colleagues. The band played mild rock, slow dances, and an occasional polka.

Near the door stood the minor politicans, shaking hands, exchanging gossip and waiting for a chance for 30 seconds with Staszak. Jack Pollack, who is a district boss from the other end of town, confided that he was having a meeting Wednesday where he was going to disclose that he at least was sticking with McGovern. His district is mostly black and Jewish, and he like Staszak is still an astute politician. But in Staszak's district the voters are mostly white, and Polish, tUkrainian, Lithuanian and Italian. They are not sticking with McGovern.

THAT IS WHY the few who knew Eunice Shriver was coming were curious how she would be received. She was uninvited, and as the wife of McGovern's running mate she was representing this year's bad guy. But she also is the sister of the late John Kennedy.

So she arrived. A few people along the edges of the room recognized and shook hands with Mrs. Shriver. But when she got to the stage she was boxed in among the birthday announcements and the door prizes, the microphone did not work and when it did it was taken away from her, and the lights were so that anybody more than 10 feet away could not see her face anyway. There were a few hand claps and a few boos.

Her entourage was aggrieved, and certrainly it had not been a very courteous display by the host politicians. But that brings up the question of whether you are technically a host when the guest is uninvited but insists on coming anyway.

When she was gone, the wheels were still spinning toward the lucky numbers, the band came back to play and ladies to dance, and the minor politicians were still buttonholing each other. Joe Staszak's crowd, assembled by him in his name, still belonged to Joe Staszak. And Mrs. Shriver knew more than she wanted to know about this fall's prospects for the bull roast vote.

Fewer than 1,000 persons showed up in the rain for a program dedicating the Marin County Civic Center.

The body of Rep. Clem Miller was buried in a knoll on Point Reyes National Seashore, for creation of which he was largely responsible. Stewart L. Udall, secretary of the interior, represented President John F. Kennedy at the rites.

Two polio deaths occured within 24 hours in Marin County, bringing the toll for the disease to three since Jan. 1.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

If ecologists want to halt pollution they'll have to do something about nature, which produces 10 times as much carbon monoxide as autos and factories.

The Argonne National Lab says decaying organic matter makes three billion tons of the poison gas a year. There ought to be a law!

Pollution can't be all bad —or nature wouldn't do so much of it.

It's praiseworthy to have concern for your surroundings but when was the last time the environment did something nice for you?

The best things in life are free. Trouble is, this also seems to apply to the worst things.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Candidates' Nights Don't Offer Time To Fix Leaky Faucets

Democracy at the grass roots is a fascinating thing to contemplate, even though it doesn't get the attention it should during the interval between elections. Having gone through 18 of the blood-hoisting affairs, perhaps a comment might be allowed.

A recent candidates' night brings back a thought I have had from time to time. When there are so many candidates, some of whom are not in competition, plus propositions that are incident to the offices being sought, there is rarely enough time during an evening meeting to properly cover the ground.

I REMEMBER one year, at such a meeting, we were told at the start that we would only have so many minutes for answers to questions and that the timekeeper would rise to warn us when we had just one minute left.

One of the questions submitted required a complete answer, which couldn't be finished in the allotted time. The chairman refused to let me continue. Seeing the bind I was in, three different people in the audience requested the floor and each repeated the question until I was able to answer it properly.

It was quite amusing to read that the incumbent supervisor for the Ross Valley district seemed to be slightly confused as to the office he was running for again and discussed to some extent high school matters and dwelt on the manual training, such as le ky faucets and burned-out fuses. He also spent some time on home financing.

He was reported as saying, in a seeming defense of his daily commuting to his job in San Francisco, "Full time doesn't mean sitting out at the Civic Center from nine to five and harrassing department heads."

It has been my experience that department heads appreciated having a supervisor taking an interest in the workings of the department, instead of being harassed by an administrator. And of course it wasn't just the smartest thing for a man who works on preparing the county budget which the taxes are predicated on to be discussing home financing, leaky faucets and fuses being blown.

SOME WEEKS AGO I commented that it was hard to believe that taxpayers up Novato way would have any desire to be paying for the purchase of open space, way down on the Tiburon hills. Inversely the same thing would logically be the position of the Tiburon folks.

Well we now know that Tiburon has voted a bond issue for its area, as has San Rafael. My home town, San Anselmo, is reported to be about to have a bond issue for the purchase of open space here.

There is a feeling of maintaining community identity that would be lost with the proposed park district to be on the ballot at the November election. The voters in the 11 cities are beginning to realize that the title of that proposition is misleading, that it is for open space, and that the purchase of open space by the county would have priority list of sites to be purchased which would require the different communities to stand in line and take their turn even though they were paying into the county-wide kitty.

IT CERTAINLY behooves all of us to take a good look at what is being proposed for immediate action: open space, redevelopment, the general plan, together with the cost of county and city operation needs.

Even though the board of supervisors only has legislative authority over one-third of the count, the taxpayers in the cities of the county are paying two-thirds of the bill. This I have never felt was out of line. What I have tried to emphasize is that because of this relationship there is an obligation of no mean proportion that the supervisors become more involved in the entire county picture, not just attending the board meetings.

Annual Root Beer Bust Is Tomorrow

The Belvedere Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its annual root beer bust for community children at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the fire station.

Fire Chief L. T. Mersereau will speak on fire prevention. Rides on the fire trucks will be offered and free root beer served.

Public Hearing Set On Quentin Peninsula

After months of on-again, off-again action on planning for the San Quentin Peninsula, the Larkspur Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on a gneral plan for the land at 8 p.m. Wednesday at city hall.

At issue is the way the city east of Highway 101 will be developed in the future. T. I. Properties, the giant Los Angeles-based investment firm, has acquired nearly all of the land, inluding the Hutchinson Rock Quarry and the adjoining Remillard lands. The Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry terminal is slated to go into operation in the area by late 1974.

Hoping to build high density housing and commercial developments, T.I. Properties has paid planning consultants Dan Coleman and Associates to make a study of the area.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathrust said Coleman's study will be discussed at Wednesday's public hearing. He added the city council would attend the session, then hold its regular meeting afterwards.

Bathurst said T.I. Properties's application to rezone its holdings from industrial and study classifications to commercial and high density housing uses also is on the agenda. "But the planning commission probably won't take any action on that yet," he predicted.

The rezoning application was endorsed by the planning commission at its Sept. 12 meeting, but the action was rescinded after the Larkspur Town Meeting challenged the validity of the 2-1 commission vote.

Ross School Pay Hikes To Be Asked

The Ross School District board will be asked to give Ross School teachers a 1.5 per cent salary raise above the 1.36 per cent hike approved in June at its meeting at 7:45 p.m. Monday at the school.

Members of the district teachers' association have asked that $5,000 removed earlier from the district budget be used for the raise. The $5,000 was taken out when kindergarten teacher Rena Safford retired in June and her replacement was employed at a lower salary.

Teachers say the extra 1.5 per cent, retroactive to the beginning of the school year, would cost $4,700.

Trustees also will review a revised Civil Defense disaster plan and accept the resignation of district secretary Helen Butner, who is moving to Reno.

Terzich To Be Honored Oct. 26

Mill Valley Police Chief Dan Terzich, retiring Oct. 31 after 19 years on the police force, will be honored at a testimonial dinner Oct. 26 at Sabella's of Marin.

Terzich, who celegrated his 65th birthday yesterday, has been police chief since 1961.

Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales will be guest speakers at the dinner, to begin at 7:30 p.m. A no-host cocktail hour will begin at 6:30 p.m.

IN LOS ANGELES for a two-day course on Newborn Intensive Care for Nurses at the University of Southern California Medical School, Marin General Hospital intensive care unit nurses utilize a coffee break to question Dr. Bijan Siassi, director of the Newborn Intensive Care Unit at LA-USC Medical Center. NEWBORN CARE

Special Area Is Reviewed

I-J Special Report

Five nurses in Marin General Hospital's new intensive care nursery flew to Los Angeles recently to participate in a two-day course on Newborn Intensive Care for Nurses at the University of Southern California School of Medicine. This was part of Marin General's program to update the skills required to care for infants with special problems continuously.

The concept of intensive care for high risk infants only took hold about five years ago, and educational preparation n this new concept is still a very new field.

Prior to the mid-1960s, according to Dr. Louis Gluck, a prime mover in developing the modern concept of intensive care for the newborn, "vast numbers of sick infants were just kind of stuck in isolation somewhere. This was because people were afraid of infection.

"THE MORE babies were dispersed in hospitals, the less adequate the care became and the less one could assure that the babies were receiving even an adequate level of care — much less the best kind of care. One had to concentrate these babies into a place were the best personnel with the best equipment could take care of them."

This concept was the beginning of modern intensive care for babies.

Equipment, while very expensive, could be obtained. Nurses for such a unit were difficult to find, as they needed additional preparation.

About two years ago, when Drs. Paul R. Ferrari and Robert F. Frederickson became interested in developing a Newborn Intensive Care Unit at Marin General Hospital, clinical nurse specialist Gail Moore was recruited.

NOW ONLY a few babies — heart patients or those needing a respirator — must be sent to San Francisco for special treatment.

"I was recruited," said Miss Moore, "with the idea that nursery care was changing in infant intensive care and somebody was needed to teach nurses these changes.

"To develop an intensive care nursery you need not only the equipment and the physicians, but staff development, in-service training and upgrading of the nursing care to a certain level.

"To accomplish this we added a few more nursing staff, most of whom had been coronary care or adult intensive care nurses.

"Then Dr. Ferrari and Dr. Frederickson taught infant and fetal physiology through a series of classes which we held three times last year. I helped by applying and teaching these concepts in the clinical settings," she said.

FOR NEARLY eight months Gail Moore worked alongside the nurses on all three shifts, giving maximum care to critically ill infants along with the doctors' help.

"When their competence had approached a relatively sophisticated level, the nurses began going out to other hospitals — an experience which I think has been invaluable," said Miss Moore. "This experience gave them several ways of doing things so they can find the best for their situation."

Nurses Pat Lord and Terry McMahon went to Children's Hospital, Carol Werschky went to the University of California Medical Center and Sandy Rund went to Stanford for a conference.

"It's more difficult for our intensive care nurses to keep up their high level of skill than for someone who's doing it every day in a large unit," Miss Moore observed.

"When we have lull periods it is up to them to maintain a certain level by reading and going to conferences. Most of this they do on their own time. I think they are as current on everything as nurses who work in large intensive care units. They are really a dedicated group.

"WE'D TAPPED about every educational resource in the area and were beginning to think how wonderful it would be to hear some of the people from out of this area we read about. Last month we heard about a Newborn Intensive Care course at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

The North Bay Chapter of the March of Dimes gave us a grant to pay for transportation and tuition for five of our nursers. At the last minute one nurse found she was able to pay her own way. "With the extra money we're sending three nurses who work in the labor and delivery room to a conference," said Miss Moore.

THE NURSES finished work at midnight, flew to Los Angeles, and took in the first day's session without any sleep.

Nurse Lord of San Rafael was fascinated by the presentation of Dr. Joan E. Hodgman, professor of pediatrics on the USC faculty.

"Since intensive care has really only been in effect five years, none of the studies can give any results prior to that time. The statistic that Dr. Hodgman gave us, which boggles my mind, is the percentage of mental retardation before this type of unit was between 40 to 60 per cent. Now figures show a drop to between 10 and 15 per cent where infant intensive care is available."

During a coffee break the nurses zeroed in to talk with Dr. Bijan Siassi, director of the 120 crib Newborn Intensive Care Unit at Los Angeles-USC Medical Center. He had lectured on respiratory distress and a recently perfected treatment for what is called hyaline membrane disease. This disorder claimed the life of President John F. Kennedy's son, Patrick Bouvier, in 1963.

Marin General Hospital expects to acquire a continuous positive airway pressure unit for treatment of this problem in the near future, and the nurses wanted more information from Dr. Siassi.

ON THE second day of the session, they were taken on a tour of the Infant Intensive Care Unit of the LA-USC Medical Center. With their host, Dr. Paul Y. K. Wu, they discussed experimental equipment being used in the unit as well as their concern as to whether or not infra-red warming lights may have an effect on an infant's eyes.

At a luncheon following the tour, the nurses exchanged ideas with Pat Hirby, head nurse of the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit of the University of Chicago — Wyler Children's Hospital. She had been sent to the course by the American Association of Critical Care Nurses. They compared notes on how often an isolette was sterilized or cribs changed in Chicago and Marin County.

Marin's nurses take pride in their knowledge and part in the development of the expanded Intensive Care Nursery at Marin General Hospital.

As Terry McMahon pointed out, "With our training in caring for babies with special problems there is a much higher level of care for normal infants born at the hospital, too."

Gail Moore agrees. "Just the other day we had what was supposed to be just a normal caesarean delivery. Our nurses were astute enough to feel the baby seemed to be 'pulling' kind of hard — not breathing quite the way he should.

"The baby was immediately put into an isolette and the doctor called. The baby ended up with hyaline membrane. We were able to care for him with oxygen for a good four or five days until the crisis was over and he was all right."

A NEW OUTLET

Poetry Is Used In Drug Therapy

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hannelore Hahn is pioneering something unusual in therapy for drug addicts —writing and listening to poetry.

Poetry seems a natural outlet for the addict, according to Mrs. Hahn, who is not one.

"The addict is up to his chin in life experiences," she said. "It's just a question of getting it out."

Mrs. Hahn, a writer, researcher, teacher and translator, says a shattering experience in her own life started her writing poetry as one way of recovering her balance.

SHE'S RELUCTANT to detail the experience, but suffice to say that it was the breakup of a long-time romance that "took the wind out of me."

In 1968, she began writing poetry early each morning. In 1969, Phoenix House, hearing of her work, asked if she would read some of her poems to one group.

Phoenix House, started in 1967, calls itself the nation's largest therapeutic community where drug addiction is treated as a personality disorder that does not respond to traditional psychiatric methods and cannot be cured simply by transferring dependence from one drug to another.

Phoenix House has 15 centers located in New York City and State and a branch in England. It serves about 1,200 persons, 44 per cent of them under 21.

Mrs. Hahn's first reading was an experiment —no one was certain poetry would go over with worldly-wise residents who in many instances stopped hitting the books when they started hitting the drugs.

MRS. HAHN recalled, in an interview, that after each poem "we talked about what it meant to them ... I got a marvelous feeling of communication."

"Somehow the poems touched the deep experience of everyone in the room ... the poems were not about drugs," she said, "They were about the pain of life, but with a tough attitude, not a self-pitying one."

The young people then began to use Mrs. Hahn's poems in their drama workshop and asked for more. It wasn't long until she'd volunteered to form a Phoenix House Poetry Workshop which has been thriving since.

Now another workshop is in operation at the Repertory Theater at Lincoln Center, under direction of Mrs. Hahn and Joseph Siracuse.

For Mrs. Hahn, the workshops still are a volunteer project but she would like to see them funded so "we could spread the gospel."

She believes the reading writing idea is workable in drug rehabilitation centers around the nation.

MRS. HAHN thinks poetry caught on with the addicts at first because "I was revealing myself to them, talking about my life to them. It was wonderful, when at one session, someone dug deep into his jeans and said, 'You know, I wrote something the other day.' "

As one girl in the group said later, "I painted ... but had never written anything and Hannelore said I could write and then I wrote."

"Our bond," said Mrs. Hahn, "was the experience of suffering, and the intense desire to start life over. You don't have to be an addict to understand one. Addiction is rooted in human problems."

Mrs. Hahn, a native of Dresden, came to the United States in 1938 as a refugee from Hitler's Germany. Currently, she's teaching pre-schoolers in one of the New York City Parks Department recreation centers.

Previously, the tiny blonde had been a researcher for the U.S. Information Agency on travelling exhibits including the U.S. Pavilion at Expo 67 in Montreal.

She was writer-researcher for numerous publicatons of the city Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Administration and served as Thomas P. F. Hoving's speechwriter when he was parks commissioner.

SHE IS author of "Take a Giant Step" (Little, Brown & Co.), a picture book for children. And she's translated "The Scientific Correspondence of Albert Einstein," comprising some 5,000 letters, from German into English for the Institute for Advanced Studies, Princeton, N.J. It's to be published next year.

Mrs. Hahn sees writing poetry as something especially suited to women when adversity strikes, disillusionment occurs —"This is where a woman can do her own thing in this man's world," she said.

Dedication Of Special Park Set

The dedication of Anita Koenig Memorial Park at the corner of Harrison and Santa Rosa Avenues on Sunday at 4 p.m. in Sausalito, will honor the memory of the late Mrs. John Koenig.

Mrs. Koenig died Aug. 27, 1971, at the age of 81. She is survived by a son, John E. Koenig of Sausalito, and a daughter, Mrs. Robert J. Deardoff of Seattle.

Mrs. Koenig was a member and past president of the Sausalito Woman's Club, and was well known in Sausalito for her work as chairman of the Sausalito Woman's Club tree committee.

Mrs. Koenig was a founding member of the Sausalito Nursery School, was active on the Sister City Committee and the Sausalito Library Board. She was a member of Christ Episcopal Church, St. Brigid's Guild and St. Margaret's Guild. She was nominated for Marin Senior Citizen of the Year in 1968.

The park, designed by Sausalito architect Don Olsen, was created by the City of Sausalito under the direction of Sausalito Woman's Club Enhancement Chairman, Mrs. Jean Dyk. A feature of the park is a bench designed by Olsen and made in Fairfax.

Mrs. George A. Sears is chairman. Rev. John S. Thornton will give the invocation, and Mrs. John A. Sweeny, mayor of Sausalito, will make the dedication.

After the ceremony there will be a reception at Campbell Hall, parish house of Christ Episcopal Church. Mmes. Brookner W. Brady and John B. Ehlen are tea chairmen; Willard A. Hall, decorations; George Chapman, Paul D. Case, Alan Conner, M. Justin Herman, Bernard J. Gratama, Howard Sievers, Frank B. Williams, John Russell Sutthoff and Porter M. Griffith, hostess committee.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Couple Will Mark 63rd Anniversary

By MOLLY MARIN

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sutherland Constable of Sausalito will observe their 63rd wedding anniversary tomorrow.

The anniversary will be a quiet one, because Mrs. Constable is not very well. Mr. Constable is 87, and his wife 89.

The couple was married at St. Peter's Bywell in Northumberland, the northernmost county in England. Parts of the ancient church were built before the Norman Conquest of 1066. Mrs. Constable is the former Frances Weighell.

The pair met when Constable was 15. "She was my first sweetheart," he said. He was studying architecture and Miss Weighell was attending the University of Newcastle when they met. She taught school in Northumberland for a few years before their marriage.

They moved to Sausalito in 1923, and still live in the house they acquired at that time. They have two sons, Francis Arnold Constable of Sausalito and Kenneth Constable of Capitola, and two grandchildren, Kenneth Addison Constable of Capitola and Mrs. Lavinia Spivey of Arizona.

Mr. Constable formed his own architecture firm in San Francisco in 1928. In 1923, when the Constables came to the Bay Area, he was assigned by the Washington firm by whom he was then employed, to be the architect of St. Dominic's Church in San Francisco. Later he designed Guzman Hall on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael and was the architect for several smaller buildings on the campus.

They are members of Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito and Mr. Constable has served on the vestry.

Their Oct. 14 wedding date has been the cause of some merriment to the husband and wife through the years. As native Britishers they recall that was the date of the Battle of Hastings in 1066.

SHERRY HOURS hosted in individual homes will precede the gala dinner and evening at the Ralston White Retreat in Mill Valley tonight. Members and guests of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley will attend the pre-dinner gatherings and then go on to the party.

Hosting the sherry parties will be Mr. and Mrs. Barton Shackelford, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Don W. Dunn; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Kew, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. John Harman; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jessup, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taylor, assisted by Mrs. Ray Winfrey, and Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Cope, assisted by Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Hammond.

MR. AND Mrs. Jack Kidder of Novato were honored at a surprise party on Oct. 1 at the home of Ed Jones of Novato, stepfather of their son-in-law, Wayne Lint. The Kidders celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary yesterday. In charge of the party were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lint of Oxnard, and Jim, Georgette, John and Joyce Kidder, all of Novato.

What Has Happened To Social Dating—No Strings Attached?

DEAR HELEN:

Having survived a bad marriage and moved into a new area, I was interested in social dating without obligations, as I enjoy my new freedom. I moved into an apartment complex of single working people and got the shock of my life. Very few women are interested in social dating — they either expect a marriage proposal, or they're against men.

One girl here has decided that, at 26, she is too old for marriage and dates — she turns everybody down. Another locks herself in her room and reads. A third says she does not date because she is overweight — and makes no effort to reduce. A fourth parties every night, comes home smashed, hates herself and distrusts men.

I was amazed to learn that women often refuse dinner invitations because they assume the man will expect repayment in bed — or that someone will think they are seriously involved. One girl told me if you date a fellow over a month, people either have you living with him or announcing your engagement.

I attend church, where I am supposed to meet the right people, but most of the unattached women there are divorced with one to four children and are looking for someone to provide them with a home.

What's happened to social dating, no strings attached? Whatever happened to old-fashioned evening drives, picnics, casual friendship between man and woman?

Perhaps enough of your single readers agree with me so that they will form social dating clubs where the membership is interested in good times without expecting sex or marriage as prime requisites. — FOR PUTTING THE FUN BACK IN DATING IN SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR FOR:

Read your local paper. It runs a weekly "Strictly For Singles" column which lists dances, outings, clubs, card parties — and it has never once mentioned sex or marriage 'though participants aren't required to check their private thoughts at the door).

In most singles clubs, women outnumber men — and many of these gals aren't looking for anything more than a compatible date. Good luck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Would you please devote part of a column to "Grandparents — Keep Quiet"?

I like my in-laws a lot, but they just can't stay out of things when we discipline the kids (or - in their eyes - fail to discipline them enough). I can't say "Shut up." They're very sensitive and think they're "helping." But when I give orders to the children, and they chime in with further orders or criticisms, it's like having three bosses, and the kids tune us all out - or else play one against the other. They're good, well-trained youngsters, but by my in-laws' 1930 standards, we're "overpermissive."

Example: they come up with, "Are you going to let Sissy get away with that?" (About a minor infraction like leaving her shoes in the kitchen.) This puts us all on the defensive. I must either say "Yes," which lets Sissy think being sloppy is okay, or I must get tougher than necessary, which makes her balky.

Grandma and Grandpa read your good column, so maybe a few words about staying on the sidelines would save me from exploding with words I'll regret later on. — MY TURN TO BE A PARENT, NOT THE IRS.

DEAR MTTBPNT:

You said it all in your signature.

Grandparents everywhere (and this includes the Bottels when their turn comes): You've at last reached that wonderful non-responsible stage of life where you can be a passenger on the family bus — and hop off any time you wish. For heaven's sake: don't ruin it with backseat driving. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Write to Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

'Touching' An End In Itself

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — The double standard will continue to exist as long as parents persist in teaching young children that touching members of the opposite sex is wrong, according to sex researchers Dr. William H. Masters and Virginia Johnson Masters.

"The lesson is taught early in life and remains deeply ingrained. 'Don't touch,' is a childhood litany. . .when children are still too young to understand why they must do so, they learn to restrain the impulse to reach out to someone of the opposite sex," Masters said.

Studies conducted by the Masterses at the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation in St. Louis have shown that adolescent girls actually assume the role of "surrogate parents" in early sexual encounters, they reported.

"They are the ones who say 'don't touch,' thus echoing their parents and tacitly conceding what society at large has maintained all along: that sex is indeed dirty, and touching means sex — so its hands off.

"In other words, the double standard has been smuggled into still another generation. Girls expect boys to be sexually aggressive and boys expect girls to resist. Obviously, male sexual vitality is honorable; female sexual vitality is not. Sex seems to be a contest of wills — if the boy wins, the girl loses . . . Reaching out, which has already been sharply limited as a spontaneous way of expressing affection and solidarity, is now stripped of all significance except that of sexual provocation," he said.

The pair said this early "conditioning" makes girls more inclined to let themselves be touched than to do the touching, affirming the role of the male as the initiator or aggressor.

Even if she rejects society's dictum that sexual activity for her is dishonorable, the idea is deeply embedded in her consciousness; so that long after she has changed her ways of thinking, she still has to contend with stubborn feelings, according to the researchers.

Describing touching as a "primary form of communication," a "sensual pleasure," Dr. and Mrs. Masters urged both men and women to "avoid the fundamental error of believing that touch is a means to an end. It is not. Touch is an end in itself."

The Maternal Mortality Rate Drops

Since 1945, the maternal mortality rate in the United States has dropped 80 per cent, according to a survey made by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The survey, comparing rates of mothers dying in childbirth at three 10-year-intervals, 1947 and 1948, 1957 and 1958 and 1967 and 1968, showed that between the earliest and latest dates mortality dropped from 125.8 to 26.3 maternal deaths per 100,000 live births.

The greatest decline occurred between 1947 and 1948 and 1957 and 1958, when the rate dropped from 125.8 to 39.2.

In each period the maternal mortality rate among non-white women has been markedly higher than that of white women. In 1947-48 the maternal death rate among white women was 99.3, as compared with 317.2 deaths per 100,000 live births for non-white women.

ON BEING BLACK

Many Say No To Vasectomy

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

"Oh no, I wouldn't want my husband to have one. Not only that," admitted the black mother of four matter-of-factly, "he wouldn't agree to it in a million years."

The Planned Parenthood rap session group, a racially integrated group of women of various ages, was discussing vasectomy (male sterilization) as a form of birth control.

All the black women, without exception, felt their husbands or boyfriends would not consent to a vasectomy. All agreed their mates were in favor of birth control, but felt the responsibility was the woman's.

In a random survey of 35 black adult males, 32 said they would not consider a vasectomy as a personal form of birth control, two said "maybe" and one said "yes." Of 35 white adult males queried, six had already had vasectomies, 17 stated they would seriously consider it, five said "maybe" and seven said "no."

THE WHITE males seemed more responsime to the attitud that the responsibility of birth control should be equally shared by both partners. The pervading attitude of black males was, "It's up to the woman to 'protect' herself."

Black women on a higher educational level reasoned that men should be equally responsible for birth control, but joined their less educated sisters in having serious reservations about the psychological and emotional ramifications of vasectomy for black males.

According to medical experts, vasectomy is a fairly simple surgical procedure. It is cheaper than the traditional methods of female sterilization, and there is no physical change in sexual performance as a direct result of the operation. Sterilization is not castration, but many black men seem unable to comfortably divorce the two.

Such attitudes have tragic historical bases. For generations the black American male was "boy" throughout his adult life and many black lynch victims were also castrated.

Some blacks still contend that birth control of any kind is a part of the "white devil's" plan of black genocide. But regardless of the veracity of this allegation, increasing numbers of black women on all economic levels are seeking some form of birth control.

VASECTOMY, OF course, has certain disadvantages. It is in most cases irreversible. Sterilization eliminates the "option" to have children at a future date. For far too long, blacks have had too few "options" in regard to controlling their lives.

Black males seem to reject vasectomy because they would be deprived of the ability to impregnate a woman — an ability that is so intricately woven into their masculine self-image tht the two appear to be inseparable.

Among blacks there is a general negative attitude about surgery of any kind.

"No way I'm gonna let anyone cut on me —especially there."

Very likely vasectomy will not be highly utilized until black males become securely entrenched in their positions as men in this society. Regardless of the historical backgrounds of these attitudes, birth control should be a concern for both sexes. A wanted child is a miracle and a joy. An unwanted child can be a tragedy for all concerned.

MANY SEEK REFUGE

The 1970s Look For Families: Parents Should Have 'Retreat'

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — If the 1960s produced "togetherness" for families, the 1970s are making a smart contribution toward healthy "apartness." As the Home Furnishings Council, sponsor of the nationwide Debut '73 store promotion, says "The family that plays together often goes buggy together if members don't escape from each other occasionally."

That doesn't mean that "family rooms" are being downgraded.

It does mean that exhausted parents are these days beating a hasty retreat away from the roar of rock music, teen-age telephone natterings, raids on the icebox and the ongoing battle for control of the living-room television set.

Parents have, in short, sought refuge in their own "inner sanctum" — a sort of all-purpose bedroom-sitting room-study where they can listen in peace to their own choice of television and radio programs, favorite records and read their books, magazines and papers in comparative quiet.

BEDROOM DESKS invite bookkeeping and letter writing, and many a breadwinner insists on a small office-at-home niche of his own where he can spread out work, do house accou 's and attend to other homework.

This haven for parents takes bedrooms out of the sleeping room, dressing room category, broadens their function and entails a whole new ambience.

That stiff, traditional "bedchamber" setup consisting of bed, dresser, chest, bedside tables and a few lamps, has gone by the boards in many households. The master bedroom has become, instead, an adult retreat full of distinctive new personality.

Youngsters approve of the new arrangement by commenting, "Parents are on deck, but now we don't have them breathing on us." Parents like it because it provides the privacy they so sorely need. One father claims he has trained his children to respect his closed door and to knock always before they enter.

The new role of "living" bedroom has been aided by wall systems that organize storage, by a rash of armoires that tidy up personal belongings, and by dual-purpose stacking pieces and tables that can be used as well in other rooms of the house.

SMALL-SCALED loveseats and chaises provide the comfortable seating for reading, lounging, and televiewing that the setting requires. A tea table or small round table in a window or a corner provides adequate space for breakfast, snacks and midnight feasts. The well-equipped adult hideaway also boasts a minirefrigerator (perhaps a whole miniature kitchen), and a washer-dryer-equipped closet not too far away.

These new study-bedrooms, with their relaxed informal atmosphere, also provide a place where people can surround themselves with personal collections and mementoes — such as small decorative boxes, sea shells, minerals, photographs of family and friends. Etageres and hanging wall shelves yield fine display space for these small treasures. Many love living plants or fresh flowers in bedrooms.

While most people still tend to buy "suites" for bedrooms, many decorators claim they are the perfect place to experiment with the popular "eclectic" look — a mixture of woods and styles put together in a highly individual manner.

THIS NEW breed of "bedsits" also gives perfect background to old trunks and unusual baskets picked up at craft fairs.

Certainly these newly evolved rooms are ideal places to show off stunning fabrics and wallpapers and most people agree with the New York decorator who says, "When you get out of bed and step down, there shouldn't be just a cold slab of floor underneath your feet."

A carpeted bedroom isn't luxury any more — it's necessity. And the hottest carpeting on the market right now, of course is the "body shag" — a thick, plushy shag with a firm body and lots of bounce. This fall it comes in such new colors as deep coppery rust, sunny persimmon, raspberry sherbet, pink, batter gold, and a bunch of neutrals including oyster, late-afternoon-sunlight gold, celadon green and "cream" — "meringue" and "toffee."

Favorite Place For Accidents

The bathroom is a favorite for accidents. Prevent slipping by using a rubber suction mat in the tub and a bath mat on the floor. Have a handrail for support while getting in and out of the bathtub. Electrical appliances are a hazard in a bathroom particularly should they fall into the sink or tub or be touched with wet hands. Don't leave young children alone in the tub.

Keep only what you need in the medicine cabinet and keep all medicines out of children's reach.

Cut Costs And Retain Quality

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Consumers are learning that the way money is spent is as important as the way it is earned, according to consumer expert Sidney Margolius.

There are techniques for cutting costs without giving up quality, according to Margolius.

Smart consumers plan ahead and never buy on impulse. Keep track of annual and semiannual sales at department stores and only then make major purchases of clothing and furnishings for the home.

To reduce food bills 10 to 12 per cent, check all market advertisements in the newspaper before leaving home, and base shopping lists and menus on the best buys. Learn to cut up meat and poultry. Buying whole chickens saves about eight cents a pound. Chops can be taken from inexpensive cuts of pork and beef.

Buy in bulk because larger packages usually cost less, unless the item is perishable. Pool purchases with others or join a consumer cooperative to take advantage of wholesale prices.

Always read the labels on cans and packages. If beef is listed before vegetables on canned stew, it is a good buy.

When purchasing appliances, study the warranties. When buying on credit, find out about carrying charges beforehand, then shop around to get the best deal.

Should an appliance need repairs, get the estimates in writing.

The contest is sponsored nationally by the National Wool Growers Association to motivate girls in sewing skills.

Hand-knitted and hand-crocheted garments will be admitted for the first time because of the increased interest in handcrafts.

Girls aged 10 to 13 enter only at district level with pants, skirts or jumpers. The junior and senior category entrants may enter dresses, coats and suits.

All garments must be made of 100 per cent wool or yarn.

District winners in the junior and senior divisions will enter the state competition. From that a national contest will be held in Washington D.C.

The district contest will be held Dec. 9 at El Rancho Tropicana in Santa Rosa.

For information and entries, contact Mrs. Henry Anderson, 6560 Petaluma Hill Road, Santa Rosa. Entries must be received by Dec. 1.

Top national winners will receive European vacations. Other prizes include scholarships and sewing machines.

WORLD'S SMALLEST

This is Somerset Bridge in Sandy's Parish, Bermuda, believed to be the world's smallest drawbridge. A sailboat skipper wishing to pass under the bridge has a passenger or passerby lift with a crowbar the hinged planking topside (which is only 18 inches wide) and also halt oncoming traffic until passage is completed.

Kentfield Hospital Is Facing Medi-Cal Accreditation Loss

Center Medical Hospital in Kentfield is one of 12 California hospitals which face the loss of their right to treat Medi-Cal patients because of alleged failure to meet minimum medical standards, a state official disclosed yesterday.

Dwight Geduldig, director of the state Health Care Services Department, revealed that Center Medical did not win approval by the California Medical Association following a recent survey.

Approval by either this body or the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals is necessary now for Medi-Cal privileges.

A spokesman at the 99-bed Kentfield hospital said today that only the 27 beds in the facility set aside for the acutely ill had failed to meet standards.

Troy Spurgeon, the hospital's assistant administrator, said the CMA report was vague and that patient care had not been a factor in the lack of approval.

Rather, he said, the association, which reported on the survey about a month ago, said Center Medical did not meet standards for staff meetings.

"We have restructured our meetings to meet their requirements," Spurgeon said. He also said the hospital has asked for a new survey.

Center Medical is a corporation owned by four persons, Spurgeon said. President is Russell Reese of San Rafael.

Geduldig said his department had notified all California's 541 hospitals a year ago they had to be approved by the CMA or the joint commission to qualify for Medi-Cal patients.

He said the state has initiated suspension proceedings against Center Medical and 11 other hospitals which failed to obtain the necessary approval. The hospitals will have a chance to contest the action.

A state official in Sacramento said today he could not give the reasons why Center Medical did not receive CMA approval because the medical association does not pass its records on the state.

Geduldig yesterday urged the state legislature to tighten up hospital licensing laws which he said are impotent when trying to halt shoddy medical care at ill-equipped hospitals.

Withdrawal of Medi-Cal privileges is the strongest weapon against a substandard haopital that the state now has, he said.

The only other Northern California hospitals named among the 12 were Valley West General in Los Gatos and Rone in Santa Rosa.

Bay Open Space Agency Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Planning Commission has been urged to work for the establishment of a regional agency to acquire, preserve and manage the Bay Area's open space.

The recommendation was made Thursday in a proposed open space and recreation addition to the San Francisco Master Plan.

The document, consisting of 24 pages, said preservation of open space areas ample enough for the city's population was not just a San Francisco problem.

Sit-In Concert Moved To School

Due to the weather, tomorrow's Sit-In Concert for Children has been moved to the Ross School on Lagunitas Road, according to Thelma Schultz of the sponsoring Marin Symphony Association.

Reservations through the symphony association are required for the concert, which was to have been held in the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Attendance At Meeting Being Urged

San Rafael parks and recreation commissioners were urged last night to attend the city's town meeting scheduled for 9 p.m. tomorrow at Dominican College.

Parks director Andrew J. Snyder Jr. said he told commissioners the meeting would be "the most important of the year as far as parks and recreation in San Rafael is concerned." He said the town meeting would give residents an opportunity to meet with city officials to discuss "any matter regarding San Rafael," including parks and recreation and open space.

Snyder told the commission he would chair a parks panel at the meeting, along with Edward Adams, Novato's parks director, and Donald Dimitratos, Mill Valley's parks director.

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission also:

TENNIS COURT — Was told the tennis court project at Vallecito-Don Timoteo School would be completed this winter.

RAINS — Deferred resurfacing projects at several city parks until spring due to recent heavy rains.

BID — Said the city council would award a bid for construction of a utility storage building at Albert Park. The commission also announced that two baseball fields would be added to Albert Park after engineering work is completed.

AQUATICS — Hired aquatics instructor Karen Costecki at $2.40 per hour.

GENERAL PLAN — Learned from Snyder that nine San Francisco State students majoring in recreation would help prepare the parks and recreation portion of the city's general plan. The senior college students will inventory parks and recreational facilities for class credit, then prepare reports of their studies.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Nov. 9.

Tiburon Project List Explored

In a joint meeting last night, the Tiburon City Council and the city planning commission reviewed a list of upcoming planning projects and established an informal timetable for their work during the coming year.

No formal action was taken by the two groups, which met primarily to establish better communication with each other.

The groups discussed city progress on its general plan and agreed that its first priority should be the completion of the open space element.

According to director of community development Richard G. Arjo, many other elements in the plan will fall into place after the open space element is adopted.

The chairman of the city's year-old housing committee, Richard Weinstein, told the two groups that his committee had formulated goals and standards for future housing in Tiburon. His committee will present the recommendations in a report that will probably form the basis of a draft for the city's housing element, Arjo said.

The groups turned their attention to revisions in the zoning ordinance and agreed that any changes in zoning ought to encourage developments that would have a minimal impact on Tiburon's environment.

The council-commission concern, according to Arjo, was in part a reaction to a recent state Supreme Court ruling which requires all developers whose projects may have more than a trivial impact on the environment to file impact statements before the projects can be approved.

The council and commission discussed the city's R-3, or apartment, zone, with an eye toward reducing permissible housing density in those areas.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning told the groups "a fairly broad" survey area should be designated as a prelude to establishmentof a redevelopment agency in Tiburon to improve the downtown area. The city council took the first step toward such an agency at its meeting Tuesday night.

The two groups then looked at the city's present subdivision ordinance and decided that it needed refinement to clear the confusion that currently surrounds the conversion of rental apartments to privately-owned condominiums. They agreed to consider changes in the ordinance that would recognize the physical differences between apartments and condominiums.

Finally, at the request of the county planning staff, the two groups scheduled another joint meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 26 to hear from county planning staff on the proposed countywide general plan.

Big Aleutian Quake Recorded

BERKELEY (UPI)—A strong earthquake in the region of Fox Island in the Aleutian chain was recorded Thursday night by the University of California seismographic station in Berkeley.

The quake was recorded at 9:42 p.m. and registered 5.3 on the Richter scale of 10, a station spokesman said.

The quake was located in the vicinity of Fox Island, which is in the Aleutian chain of Alaska, he said.

Hakodate, the chief seaport on the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido, was founded in the 13th century. It was a small fishing village when Commodore Matthew Perry visited in 1854 and observed that Hak odate boasted one of the finest natural harbors in the world.

ART REVIEW

Photos Capture The Open Space

By ADA GARFINKEL

Poignant nostalgia, a direct appeal for preservation and a keen eye for composition are the three-fold components of a photography exhibit at the Marin Civic Center Gallery.

Sponsored by People for Parks and Open Space, a group supporting the Nov. 7 ballot to create a Marin Regional Park District, the exhibit is the result of a photo contest judged by Marin photographers Ernest Braun, Michael Bry and Emme Gilman.

With such a knowledgable jury of topflight photographers, the artistic merit of each entry is unusually high. Each photo identified the location and there is a sensitive feeling for the land throughout.

The case for concern is strikingly illuminated in Francis Hanson's "Past Dreams, Present Memories". Taken on Lucas Valley Road, the scene is of decaying dairy barns, dry, parched, over-grazed land, and a few distant cattle. And the potential for regeneration is symbolized by the glistening eaves on Eucalyptus tree which frames and offsets the situation.

As if to dispel the stark reality, Dennis Youka's "House of Peace", Inverness, which received an honorable mention, presents a silhouette of glassy stillness and calm grace. And the award presented to Donald Loomis for "On Ring Mountain to San Francisco" is for a sequence of vistas with a slim San Francisco skyline at the uppermost edge and clusters of sparsely settled housing interspersed among Marin's many hills.

Honorable mentions were also awarded to Virginia Smoot and Jane Brenlin for lyrical studies of Bolinas Ridge, the Tomales coastline, and Marin Headlands areas. A second prize was won by John Starkweather's pictorial drama in Surrounding Hills, while both a first and second prize went to Homer Rail for dramatic shots of the underbrush at Keil Cove and a distant view of Keil Cove Ridge.

A special exhibit of early Marin scenes which adjoins the exhibit provides contrast of dramatic proportions. On loan from the private library of Roy Farrington Jones of Ross, the display includes photos of San Anselmo, 1915; the San Rafael Ferry, 1900; snow-covered mountains in Mill Valley, 1913; the original Kent home, 1872; San Rafael from Reservoir Hall, 1862; Sausalito, 1882; and the sparse and scattered dwellings in Corte Madera in 1900, and a number of others.

The display may be viewed from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays.

College of Marin To Present 'Madwoman'

Betty Besuner has been cast as the lead in "The Madwoman of Chaillot," to be presented by the College of Marin's Drama Department at its first offering of the 1972-73 drama season.

She will play Countess Aurelia, the madwoman of the title, in Jean Giraudoux's social fantasy. Directed by Harvey J. Susser, the comedy will be staged at the college's Fine Arts Theater on Oct. 19, 22,825, 29 and Nov. 1, 4 at 8 p.m.

Other lead roles will be taken by W.H. Teed as the ragpicker, Jack Powell as the president, Robert C. Hansen as the prospector, and Cathy Carter and Sara Scatena as the madwomen of Passy and St. Sulpice.

Other cast members include James Riordan, Leon Galleto, Karyn Hikas, Mark Schwarz, Robin Gould, Kristin Fay, Lisa Britt, Christopher Murphy, Bruce Goodenough, Abe Kalish, Gregory Brockbank, Brian Harlow, William C. Walsh, Renee Losk, Dale Klein, Nito Wilson, Scott Burton, David Silverman, B.J. Tomsky and Mona Ram.

The college box office is open for tickets from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

"The Madwoman of Chaillot" is the first of three major productions already scheduled by the drama department. "Oliver" will be produced during the Christmas holiday season, followed by "Fiddler on the Roof" in the spring.

Aged Problems Series To End

The final workshop in a series on problems of the aged will be held Tuesday from 7:45 to 10 p.m. at the Marin Senior Coordinating Council building, 930 Tamalapis Avenue, San Rafael.

The workshop is sponsored by the Department of Public Social Services, the Marin chapter of the Aemrican Red Cross, te Volunteer Bureau of Marin and the Marin Senior Coordinating Council.

A film, "Death and Dying," will be shown. Admission is free.

Hearing Set In Attack Case

A preliminary hearing for a 19-year-old soldier living in San Rafael on a charge of attempted rape has been set for Oct. 27 in Marin Municipal Court.

James Allan Mueller, a specialist four assigned to a medical unit at the Presidio of San Francisco, was arrested Saturday by Sausalito police after he allegedly tried to rape a hitchhiker he picked up.

A 21-year-old San Francisco woman told police she rolled out of Mueller's rolling car and held him off with a broken glass bottle on a dirt road near the Sausalito rock quarry.

She was rescued by two youths riding motorbikes in the area, police said.

Mueller was booked into Marin County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail, but was released without bail to the Army Wednesday.

FAMILY

"What's Up, Doc?" — A diverting comedy set in San Francisco is fast moving and slapstick. A kooky girl chasing an eccentric young man and three men chasing their identical suitcases.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butterflies Are Free" — A blind boy's striking out for independence from a domineering mother is both funny and touching thanks to a clever script and intelligent direction. It will be enjoyed by youth and parents since it presents both sides equitably and can lead to a discussion of values.

"The Candidate" — A downbeat story, so timely, is told with great flair. An idealistic young lawyer is corrupted by the political machine. Fine acting, direction and photography adds impact.

"Elvira Madigan" — Set in the late 19th Century a Swedish officer deserts the army and his family because of his love for a young circus performer. Their lack of funds and the scorn they suffer when recognized leads to a tragic end to this tale.

"Gone With The Wind" — A pictorial history of the Civil War and of a civilization "gone with the wind." A true classic updated to the super screen with stereophonic sound.

"Joe Kidd" — A violent western with trouble over land grants given to Mexicans in New Mexico. Some senseless plot twists and lack of character development but picturesque photography.

"Magnificent Seven Ride" — This sequel to a western series has similar plot but different cast. An ex-gunfighter turned sheriff defends a border town, with the help of six pardoned criminals, against Mexican bandits.

"Money Talks" — Allen Funt's second "Candid Camera" feature takes a lighthearted look at money and people's reaction to the unexpected.

"The Other" — A strange gothic tale about a little boy who is possessed by the evil spirit of his dead twin brother and a series of horrors that befall the afflicted household. Much of tale is gripping and disturbing but horror piled upon horror finally proves anti-climactic.

"Skin Game" — Clever comedy of pre-Civil War days. Two friends, one white, one black, are partners in a clever skin game which outwits the slave traders. Foul language and sex scenes make it unsuitable for children.

"Sometimes A Great Notion" — A tense, dramatic adventure about the dangerous logging operation in a timber wilderness of Oregon. A family feud adds to the situation. Some violence and rough language.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"The Burglars" — A French crime caper with modern, computerized technique of safecracking. An easy-going jewel thief and a corrupt sadistic Greek cop play a cat and mouse game that leads to some wild car chases. Nudity. English dubbed.

"The Go-Between" —A turn of the century love story, a high born beauty and a handsome lower class lover and their doomed affair as seen through the eyes of a 12-year-old boy. Beautiful photography. Sex scenes.

"Harold and Maude" — A heavy-handed film about Harold, a poor little rich boy, who spends time attempting suicide and going to funerals, then he meets 80-year-old Maude and she shows him how to be happy. One-note plot soon palls.

"Mephisto Waltz" — Taken from Fred Mustard's supernatural novel tells of an aspiring pianist who sells his soul to the devil. Several nude scenes. His wife kills members of the cult to break the spell.

"The New Centurions" — A rookie policeman is teamed with the old pro in a squad car on duty in Los Angeles. Story then turns to personal lives of main characters and how when they handle their problems falter on their jobs. Nudity and cursing.

"Petulia" — A far-out comedy about an illicit love affair between a young bride and a jaded recently divorced older doctor. Imaginative photography but with repeated use of flashbacks are exceedingly confusing.

"Play It Again, Sam" — Woody Allen recreates his Broadway role in this one-joke comedy about a neurotic movie buff, and his sex problems.

"Slaughterhouse Five" — Unusual production that mixes tragedy of war, trivia of middle-class life and fantasy of science-fiction. Fine acting and direction save it from being just slick satire. Some nudity and cursing.

"Summer of '42" — Three adolescent boys spending the summer with their families on an island are enlightened about sex by reading a medical book. They then proceed to apply the knowledge they have acquired.

"Virgin and the Gypsy" — A romantic adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's story about a free-spirited girl in the 1920s who tries to escape the confines of her narrow-minded family. Her love affair with a gypsy is handled quite tastefully.

ADULTS ONLY

"Catch 22" — Film graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Sexual license, depravity brutality and sheer stupidity are the order of the day. Bloody, gruesome deaths are shown explicitly. Episodic structure with flash-forwards and back are very confusing.

"Klute" — A police officer and a call girl follow a clue given in an obscene letter which eventually leads them to a psychopathic killer. It is a sordidly explicit film that does not spare the audience.

WORLD'S SMALLEST

This is Somerset Bridge in Sandy's Parish, Bermuda, believed to be the world's smallest drawbridge. A sailboat skipper wishing to pass under the bridge has a passenger or passerby lift with a crowbar the hinged planking topside (which is only 18 inches wide) and also halt oncoming traffic until passage is completed.

Attendance At Meeting Being Urged

San Rafael parks and recreation commissioners were urged last night to attend the city's town meeting scheduled for 9 p.m. tomorrow at Dominican College.

Parks director Andrew J. Snyder Jr. said he told commissioners the meeting would be "the most important of the year as far as parks and recreation in San Rafael is concerned." He said the town meeting would give residents an opportunity to meet with city officials to discuss "any matter regarding San Rafael," including parks and recreation and open space.

Snyder told the commission he would chair a parks panel at the meeting, along with Edward Adams, Novato's parks director, and Donald Dimitratos, Mill Valley's parks director.

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission also:

TENNIS COURT — Was told the tennis court project at Vallecito-Don Timoteo School would be completed this winter.

RAINS — Deferred resurfacing projects at several city parks until spring due to recent heavy rains.

BID — Said the city council would award a bid for construction of a utility storage building at Albert Park. The commission also announced that two baseball fields would be added to Albert Park after engineering work is completed.

AQUATICS — Hired aquatics instructor Karen Costecki at $2.40 per hour.

GENERAL PLAN — Learned from Snyder that nine San Francisco State students majoring in recreation would help prepare the parks and recreation portion of the city's general plan. The senior college students will inventory parks and recreational facilities for class credit, then prepare reports of their studies.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Nov. 9.

Tiburon Project List Explored

In a joint meeting last night, the Tiburon City Council and the city planning commission reviewed a list of upcoming planning projects and established an informal timetable for their work during the coming year.

No formal action was taken by the two groups, which met primarily to establish better communication with each other.

The groups discussed city progress on its general plan and agreed that its first priority should be the completion of the open space element.

According to director of community development Richard G. Arjo, many other elements in the plan will fall into place after the open space element is adopted.

The chairman of the city's year-old housing committee, Richard Weinstein, told the two groups that his committee had formulated goals and standards for future housing in Tiburon. His committee will present the recommendations in a report that will probably form the basis of a draft for the city's housing element, Arjo said.

The groups turned their attention to revisions in the zoning ordinance and agreed that any changes in zoning ought to encourage developments that would have a minimal impact on Tiburon's environment.

The council-commission concern, according to Arjo, was in part a reaction to a recent state Supreme Court ruling which requires all developers whose projects may have more than a trivial impact on the environment to file impact statements before the projects can be approved.

The council and commission discussed the city's R-3, or apartment, zone, with an eye toward reducing permissible housing density in those areas.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning told the groups "a fairly broad" survey area should be designated as a prelude to establishmentof a redevelopment agency in Tiburon to improve the downtown area. The city council took the first step toward such an agency at its meeting Tuesday night.

The two groups then looked at the city's present subdivision ordinance and decided that it needed refinement to clear the confusion that currently surrounds the conversion of rental apartments to privately-owned condominiums. They agreed to consider changes in the ordinance that would recognize the physical differences between apartments and condominiums.

Finally, at the request of the county planning staff, the two groups scheduled another joint meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 26 to hear from county planning staff on the proposed countywide general plan.

Hakodate, the chief seaport on the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido, was founded in the 13th century. It was a small fishing village when Commodore Matthew Perry visited in 1854 and observed that Hak odate boasted one of the finest natural harbors in the world.

Kentfield Hospital Is Facing Medi-Cal Accreditation Loss

Center Medical Hospital in Kentfield is one of 12 California hospitals which face the loss of their right to treat Medi-Cal patients because of alleged failure to meet minimum medical standards, a state official disclosed yesterday.

Dwight Geduldig, director of the state Health Care Services Department, revealed that Center Medical did not win approval by the California Medical Association following a recent survey.

Approval by either this body or the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals is necessary now for Medi-Cal privileges.

A spokesman at the 99-bed Kentfield hospital said today that only the 27 beds in the facility set aside for the acutely ill had failed to meet standards.

Troy Spurgeon, the hospital's assistant administrator, said the CMA report was vague and that patient care had not been a factor in the lack of approval.

Rather, he said, the association, which reported on the survey about a month ago, said Center Medical did not meet standards for staff meetings.

"We have restructured our meetings to meet their requirements," Spurgeon said. He also said the hospital has asked for a new survey.

Center Medical is a corporation owned by four persons, Spurgeon said. President is Russell Reese of San Rafael.

Geduldig said his department had notified all California's 541 hospitals a year ago they had to be approved by the CMA or the joint commission to qualify for Medi-Cal patients.

He said the state has initiated suspension proceedings against Center Medical and 11 other hospitals which failed to obtain the necessary approval. The hospitals will have a chance to contest the action.

A state official in Sacramento said today he could not give the reasons why Center Medical did not receive CMA approval because the medical association does not pass its records on the state.

Geduldig yesterday urged the state legislature to tighten up hospital licensing laws which he said are impotent when trying to halt shoddy medical care at ill-equipped hospitals.

Withdrawal of Medi-Cal privileges is the strongest weapon against a substandard haopital that the state now has, he said.

The only other Northern California hospitals named among the 12 were Valley West General in Los Gatos and Rone in Santa Rosa.

Big Aleutian Quake Recorded

BERKELEY (UPI)—A strong earthquake in the region of Fox Island in the Aleutian chain was recorded Thursday night by the University of California seismographic station in Berkeley.

The quake was recorded at 9:42 p.m. and registered 5.3 on the Richter scale of 10, a station spokesman said.

The quake was located in the vicinity of Fox Island, which is in the Aleutian chain of Alaska, he said.

Bay Open Space Agency Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Planning Commission has been urged to work for the establishment of a regional agency to acquire, preserve and manage the Bay Area's open space.

The recommendation was made Thursday in a proposed open space and recreation addition to the San Francisco Master Plan.

The document, consisting of 24 pages, said preservation of open space areas ample enough for the city's population was not just a San Francisco problem.

ART REVIEW

Photos Capture The Open Space

By ADA GARFINKEL

Poignant nostalgia, a direct appeal for preservation and a keen eye for composition are the three-fold components of a photography exhibit at the Marin Civic Center Gallery.

Sponsored by People for Parks and Open Space, a group supporting the Nov. 7 ballot to create a Marin Regional Park District, the exhibit is the result of a photo contest judged by Marin photographers Ernest Braun, Michael Bry and Emme Gilman.

With such a knowledgable jury of topflight photographers, the artistic merit of each entry is unusually high. Each photo identified the location and there is a sensitive feeling for the land throughout.

The case for concern is strikingly illuminated in Francis Hanson's "Past Dreams, Present Memories". Taken on Lucas Valley Road, the scene is of decaying dairy barns, dry, parched, over-grazed land, and a few distant cattle. And the potential for regeneration is symbolized by the glistening eaves on Eucalyptus tree which frames and offsets the situation.

As if to dispel the stark reality, Dennis Youka's "House of Peace", Inverness, which received an honorable mention, presents a silhouette of glassy stillness and calm grace. And the award presented to Donald Loomis for "On Ring Mountain to San Francisco" is for a sequence of vistas with a slim San Francisco skyline at the uppermost edge and clusters of sparsely settled housing interspersed among Marin's many hills.

Honorable mentions were also awarded to Virginia Smoot and Jane Brenlin for lyrical studies of Bolinas Ridge, the Tomales coastline, and Marin Headlands areas. A second prize was won by John Starkweather's pictorial drama in Surrounding Hills, while both a first and second prize went to Homer Rail for dramatic shots of the underbrush at Keil Cove and a distant view of Keil Cove Ridge.

A special exhibit of early Marin scenes which adjoins the exhibit provides contrast of dramatic proportions. On loan from the private library of Roy Farrington Jones of Ross, the display includes photos of San Anselmo, 1915; the San Rafael Ferry, 1900; snow-covered mountains in Mill Valley, 1913; the original Kent home, 1872; San Rafael from Reservoir Hall, 1862; Sausalito, 1882; and the sparse and scattered dwellings in Corte Madera in 1900, and a number of others.

The display may be viewed from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays.

College of Marin To Present 'Madwoman'

Betty Besuner has been cast as the lead in "The Madwoman of Chaillot," to be presented by the College of Marin's Drama Department at its first offering of the 1972-73 drama season.

She will play Countess Aurelia, the madwoman of the title, in Jean Giraudoux's social fantasy. Directed by Harvey J. Susser, the comedy will be staged at the college's Fine Arts Theater on Oct. 19, 22,825, 29 and Nov. 1, 4 at 8 p.m.

Other lead roles will be taken by W.H. Teed as the ragpicker, Jack Powell as the president, Robert C. Hansen as the prospector, and Cathy Carter and Sara Scatena as the madwomen of Passy and St. Sulpice.

Other cast members include James Riordan, Leon Galleto, Karyn Hikas, Mark Schwarz, Robin Gould, Kristin Fay, Lisa Britt, Christopher Murphy, Bruce Goodenough, Abe Kalish, Gregory Brockbank, Brian Harlow, William C. Walsh, Renee Losk, Dale Klein, Nito Wilson, Scott Burton, David Silverman, B.J. Tomsky and Mona Ram.

The college box office is open for tickets from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

"The Madwoman of Chaillot" is the first of three major productions already scheduled by the drama department. "Oliver" will be produced during the Christmas holiday season, followed by "Fiddler on the Roof" in the spring.

Aged Problems Series To End

The final workshop in a series on problems of the aged will be held Tuesday from 7:45 to 10 p.m. at the Marin Senior Coordinating Council building, 930 Tamalapis Avenue, San Rafael.

The workshop is sponsored by the Department of Public Social Services, the Marin chapter of the Aemrican Red Cross, te Volunteer Bureau of Marin and the Marin Senior Coordinating Council.

A film, "Death and Dying," will be shown. Admission is free.

Hearing Set In Attack Case

A preliminary hearing for a 19-year-old soldier living in San Rafael on a charge of attempted rape has been set for Oct. 27 in Marin Municipal Court.

James Allan Mueller, a specialist four assigned to a medical unit at the Presidio of San Francisco, was arrested Saturday by Sausalito police after he allegedly tried to rape a hitchhiker he picked up.

A 21-year-old San Francisco woman told police she rolled out of Mueller's rolling car and held him off with a broken glass bottle on a dirt road near the Sausalito rock quarry.

She was rescued by two youths riding motorbikes in the area, police said.

Mueller was booked into Marin County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail, but was released without bail to the Army Wednesday.

FAMILY

"What's Up, Doc?" — A diverting comedy set in San Francisco is fast moving and slapstick. A kooky girl chasing an eccentric young man and three men chasing their identical suitcases.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butterflies Are Free" — A blind boy's striking out for independence from a domineering mother is both funny and touching thanks to a clever script and intelligent direction. It will be enjoyed by youth and parents since it presents both sides equitably and can lead to a discussion of values.

"The Candidate" — A downbeat story, so timely, is told with great flair. An idealistic young lawyer is corrupted by the political machine. Fine acting, direction and photography adds impact.

"Elvira Madigan" — Set in the late 19th Century a Swedish officer deserts the army and his family because of his love for a young circus performer. Their lack of funds and the scorn they suffer when recognized leads to a tragic end to this tale.

"Gone With The Wind" — A pictorial history of the Civil War and of a civilization "gone with the wind." A true classic updated to the super screen with stereophonic sound.

"Joe Kidd" — A violent western with trouble over land grants given to Mexicans in New Mexico. Some senseless plot twists and lack of character development but picturesque photography.

"Magnificent Seven Ride" — This sequel to a western series has similar plot but different cast. An ex-gunfighter turned sheriff defends a border town, with the help of six pardoned criminals, against Mexican bandits.

"Money Talks" — Allen Funt's second "Candid Camera" feature takes a lighthearted look at money and people's reaction to the unexpected.

"The Other" — A strange gothic tale about a little boy who is possessed by the evil spirit of his dead twin brother and a series of horrors that befall the afflicted household. Much of tale is gripping and disturbing but horror piled upon horror finally proves anti-climactic.

"Skin Game" — Clever comedy of pre-Civil War days. Two friends, one white, one black, are partners in a clever skin game which outwits the slave traders. Foul language and sex scenes make it unsuitable for children.

"Sometimes A Great Notion" — A tense, dramatic adventure about the dangerous logging operation in a timber wilderness of Oregon. A family feud adds to the situation. Some violence and rough language.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"The Burglars" — A French crime caper with modern, computerized technique of safecracking. An easy-going jewel thief and a corrupt sadistic Greek cop play a cat and mouse game that leads to some wild car chases. Nudity. English dubbed.

"The Go-Between" —A turn of the century love story, a high born beauty and a handsome lower class lover and their doomed affair as seen through the eyes of a 12-year-old boy. Beautiful photography. Sex scenes.

"Harold and Maude" — A heavy-handed film about Harold, a poor little rich boy, who spends time attempting suicide and going to funerals, then he meets 80-year-old Maude and she shows him how to be happy. One-note plot soon palls.

"Mephisto Waltz" — Taken from Fred Mustard's supernatural novel tells of an aspiring pianist who sells his soul to the devil. Several nude scenes. His wife kills members of the cult to break the spell.

"The New Centurions" — A rookie policeman is teamed with the old pro in a squad car on duty in Los Angeles. Story then turns to personal lives of main characters and how when they handle their problems falter on their jobs. Nudity and cursing.

"Petulia" — A far-out comedy about an illicit love affair between a young bride and a jaded recently divorced older doctor. Imaginative photography but with repeated use of flashbacks are exceedingly confusing.

"Play It Again, Sam" — Woody Allen recreates his Broadway role in this one-joke comedy about a neurotic movie buff, and his sex problems.

"Slaughterhouse Five" — Unusual production that mixes tragedy of war, trivia of middle-class life and fantasy of science-fiction. Fine acting and direction save it from being just slick satire. Some nudity and cursing.

"Summer of '42" — Three adolescent boys spending the summer with their families on an island are enlightened about sex by reading a medical book. They then proceed to apply the knowledge they have acquired.

"Virgin and the Gypsy" — A romantic adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's story about a free-spirited girl in the 1920s who tries to escape the confines of her narrow-minded family. Her love affair with a gypsy is handled quite tastefully.

ADULTS ONLY

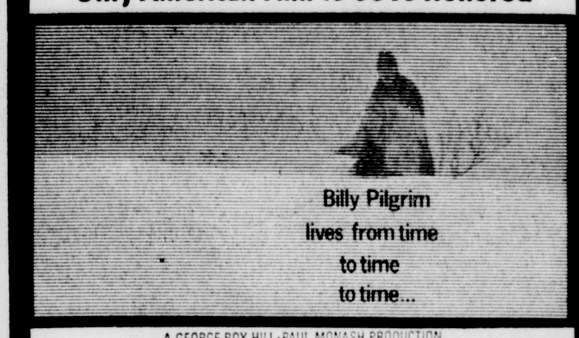

"Catch 22" — Film graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Sexual license, depravity brutality and sheer stupidity are the order of the day. Bloody, gruesome deaths are shown explicitly. Episodic structure with flash-forwards and back are very confusing.

"Klute" — A police officer and a call girl follow a clue given in an obscene letter which eventually leads them to a psychopathic killer. It is a sordidly explicit film that does not spare the audience.

THEY'RE CROWNED—BUT A WEDDING

A Russian Orthodox priest (hidden) holds silver crowns over the heads of Carmen Posadas-Montero, daughter of the Uruguayan ambassador to the Soviet Union in Moscow, and Rafael Ruiz Cueto, a Spanish aristocrat, during the couple's wedding in Moscow by a Roman Catholic priest. Special permission was granted by Patriarch Pimen, primate of all Russia, to hold the ceremony which was performed yesterday, in the 18th Century Church of Holy Trinity in Lenin Hills area of Moscow. Also special dispensation was given to Father Joseph Richards, Catholic chaplain to Moscow's American community to perform the rites — a first in Russia.

Trustees Oppose Watson Initiative

The San Anselmo School District board last night voted to oppose passage of the Watson tax initiative on the November ballot after being told the measure would decrease district revenues by $625,000.

The action came on a 4-1 vote even though all trustees opposed the measure, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott. He said that trustee Mary H. Olive dissented, saying that the preamble to the resolution passed by the board was confusing.

"I do not support the Watson initiative, but I thought our resolution didn't include a strong enough statement on loss of local control," Mrs. Olive said. "It was just a typical case of confusion," she said.

Elliott said the board postponed discussion of the possibility of a district tax election — needed to raise funds for the upgrading of school programs — until after the Nov. 7 vote on the Watson measure.

The Watson initiative, also known as Proposition 14, would reduce property taxes by 40 per cent and shift the burden of financing such programs as welfare and local education to the state. Legislative consultants have estimated the measure would trigger a statewide $1.3 billion increase in other taxes to offset loss of local property taxes.

The San Anselmo School District board also:

STUDENT — Invited one student representative from each intermediate school to attend board meetings to stimulate student participation in district affairs. The representatives —to be elected by each school — will be given an opportunity to address the board at the beginning of each meeting.

TENNIS COURTS — Approved an agreement whereby the district and the city will each provide $8,000 for the construction of tennis courts at Red Hill School.

PERSONNEL — Approved dismissal of custodian Stephen Hooper for "inefficient work" and accepted resignations from custodians James Fritchlee and James Jossa.

BUS SERVICE — Approved shuffling $1,900 from the district's consultant fund to a bus fund to pay for additional bus services.

TRANSFER — Approved transfer of student Parker Kaufman from the San Anselmo to the Fairfax school district.

FIELD TRIPS — Extended for one month the district's current policy of allowing students to travel by private automobile, bus or walking to field trips, pending study of an insurance policy.

REPRESENTATIVES — Named Kentfield trustee Sally Rakow the district's choice for assembly representative to the California School Board Association, and appointed trustee Millard Morgen to the county school committee on redistricting.

POSTPONEMENT — Deferred consideration of the employees annuity program; discussion of implementation of the Stull Act; review of a salary increment program for classified personnel and discussion of insurance matters. These items will be considered at the board's next meeting, Oct. 26.

Survivor Of 'Worst Car Crash' Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A survivor of San Francisco's worst traffic accident was found dead yesterday in his parked car, the apparent victim of a drug overdose.

Coroner's deputies identified him as Carleton Campbell, 23, a process server. They said narcotics paraphernalia were found in the auto.

Campbell was one of nine teen-agers riding in a car which collided headon with another auto on a San Francisco approach to the Golden Gate Bridge in July 1970.

Ten died in the crash.

The car loaded with youths was headed to a San Rafael music performance, while the other vehicle was returning from Sausalito.

Bay Area Council Opposes Prop. 20

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco BaySoArea Council today declared its opposition to Proposition 20, the coastal initiative on the November ballot.

The council, an economic development and civic organization, predicted that passage of the measure "would mean economic disaster within the area of jurisdiction around the bay." It would create a "de facto moratorium over development" within the 1,000-yard shoreline jurisdictioc of the coastal agency that the proposition would create, the council said.

(The measure exempts the 100-foot shoreline band under the jurisdiction of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, but apparently does not exempt from the proposed agency's control the remaining 2,900 feet. The agency would have control over virtually all development during the four years given it to draft a master plan.)

The council's board of directors, with 31 of its 50 members present, approved the position of opposition almost unanimously. Twenty-nine voted "yes," one "no" and one abstained.

Meeting Postponed

A meeting of the San Rafael Sanitation District board originally set for next Wednesday has been postponed to 5 p.m. Oct. 25, Virginia H. Congdon, board secretary, announced today.

Worker Walkout At Three G.M. Plants

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Workers at three General Motors Corp. assembly plants walked off their jobs today, idling more than 14,500 employes and threatening shutdown of all the automaker's assembly plants in North America.

Disputes at Mansfield, Ohio, Doraville, Ga., and St. Louis, Mo., ranged from production standards to a breakdown of negotiations on a new local agreement with the General Motors Assembly Division. A strike at a Van Nuys, Calif., plant was averted with an early morning settlement.

The main Fisher Body stamping plant was struck at Mansfield at 12:01 a.m. today when 2,350 members of United Auto Workers Local 549 walked out in a dispute over work standards.

"Continuation of the strike will result in the curtailment of nearly the entire automotive production throughout the corporation, and also affect many thousands of outside firms," a GM spokesman said.

GM said the plant manufactures all parts for each of the automaker's car lines except the Pontiac Firebird and Chevrolet Camaro.

Workers at GM's St. louis assembly plant walked off their jobs at 9 a.m.

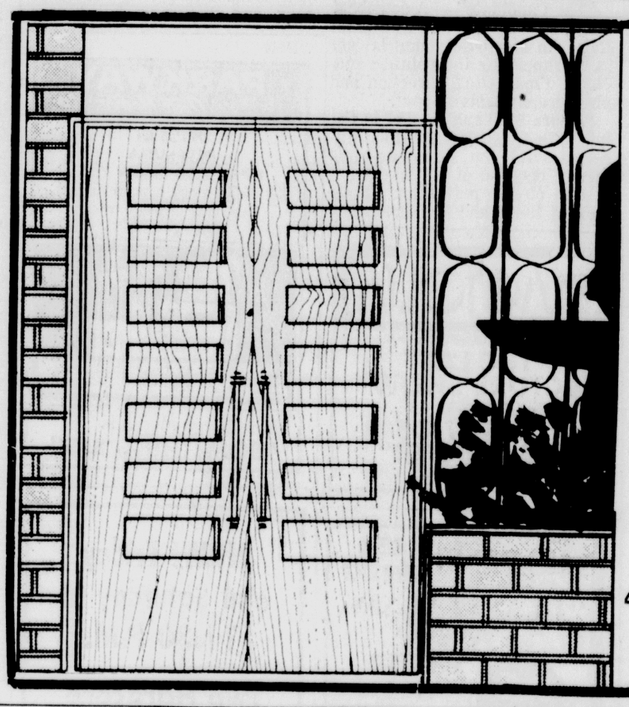

Picket lines formed at St. Louis and 8,500 members of UAW Local 25 charged GMAD with delaying agreements on a new contract.

CREA Elects New President

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richard C. Van Valer of San Jose, president and owner of Van Vleck Realty, has been elected 1973 president of the California Real Estate Association.

The directors also elected a first vice president, C. Larry Hoag of Downey, during the closing session yesterday of the 63,000 member group's annual convention here.

In an unprecedented move, the Association said the directors elected two honorary presidents, Reg Dupuy of Long Beach and Henry G. Beaumont of Los Angeles.

Skip Sommer's Ideas Pay Off Very Well At Lark Creek Inn

Every so often (but not too often) a new restaurant appears that seems to be different from all others.

Because it is different it tends to arouse two opposite viewpoints — favorable or unfavorable. As time goes on and presuming that customary opening problems are corrected or reduced, these diverging viewpoints will probably move closer together, merging into one general appraisal.

What that appraisal turns out to be depends on just how the problems are treated. Giving them just a lick and a promise is risky. The worst thing that can happen is creating an attitude of lukewarm interest, causing the restaurant to stagnate in its own mediocracy. Better it should have strong likers and dislikers.

Now in a difinite period of ascendency is the Lark Creek Inn at Larkspur, so Skip Sommer, whose brainchild it was, must have done all the right things without sacrificing his original basic ideas of operation.

The other evening I found the food especially satisfying. In fact, I would have been quite content with the soup (turkey-vegetable), the bread (which is fresh and you slice at the table) and the wine, of which there are several good labels.

But then to a filet of beef brochette, which was superb - even though it overfed me. Skip prides himself on the quality of his beef — prime rib every night, New York steaks and filets mignon.

There's a good East Indian curry, too — but don't order it if you can't stand it hot as all get out. Roasted Sonoma turkey and specialty casseroles are other nightly offerings. New additions are a vegetarian plate and minisilver salmon flown in from Washington. Kitchen manager Steve Friend does a nice job in the food department.

Not an extensive menu, but this was never intended.

Guitarist Jan Tangen (a pupil of Charles Bird) gives up his own teaching on Friday and Saturday nights to provide entertainment in the Lark Creek lounge. He'll play just about any style of guitar you name.

Roast sandwiches, several beefburgers, shrimp louis, cold cut platter, a pastry shell of sherried chicken and mushrooms and a few other items make up the luncheon fare. Not this week — but when the rain is over and the ground is dry — try eating it outside under the trees.

Lark Creek Inn appears to attract a wide variety of people of all ages. Skip has strived for this and says it is good for business. He must be right. There doesn't seem to be any lack of it.

AT THIS WRITING, Swiss restaurateur Ernie Meier planned to have his new Cordon Bleu at 81-85 Red Hill Avenue, San Anselmo, open by tonight.

Serving European fare, (fondues, steak Tartare, veal cordon bleu, wienerschnitzel, Hungarian goulash, sauerbraten, beef rouladen, veal scallopini and piccata and a number of other dishes), Ernie will feature dinners from $3.50 between 5:30 and about 11 p.m. six nights a week. His day of closing will probably be Sunday for the time being. This may be changed later, according to how the traffic flows in. He also plans to serve take-home food.

The location is on the Miracle Mile where the Persian Room used to be. The place has been remodeled. There is a wine and beer license.

AN IDLE RUMOR sometimes can be a vicious thing when it is applied to an individual or a business with no basis in fact for its origin except an inaccurate reading of a newspaper article.

SKIP SOMMER
Lark Creek Inn host

But it seems to be human frailty for people to distort a bit of information carelessly read or heard and pass it along without regard to the inconvenience or actual harm the inaccuracy may cause an innocent party.

There is no truth to the report that McKee's Hofbrau on Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was obliged to close it doors. Actually this bit of misinformation was responsible for serveral customers discontinuing to go there without seeking verification.

On the contrary — Jim and Jean McKee are still in business as much as ever. In fact they expect to hold another of their famous party celebrations early next month — this one in observance of their 10th year of operation.

Someone should have told them that today would have been a good excuse for a party. There won't be another Friday the 13th for several months.

Copies Of Final Budget Available

Copies of Marin County's final budget for fiscal 1972-73 are available at the auditor-controller's office, room 209, Civic Center.

Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said the county also is supplying those interested with a booklet showing tax rates for all Marin districts.

IF YOU SEE a new face — or one that is vaguely familiar — behind the bar at Le Chalet Basque in Santa Venetia, it will be that of Michael Monje who used to work here several years ago as a busboy. He's there Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. For the past four years he has been serving in the Army and is now ready to take up his restaurant career where he left off. Owner Raymond Coscarat believes he will do well at it — not just in the bar but also in the dining room.

And if he's smart he'll also take a course in restuarant management and operation at City College in San Francisco. There are always opportunities in this business and the City College course has turned out some successful restaurant men.

Getting back to Le Chalet Basque, new on the wine list is a quality brand that is commencing to appear on a few of the better shelves in Marin and also in restaurants — the Jesuit Novitiate wines of Los Gatos. You'll find them very enjoyable, but at this time they are bottled only in fifths. No small splits.

Menuwise at Le Chalet Basque, we'd suggest any of the veal dishes — scallopini, parmigiana, veal skoblianka, piccata, all agro and a real treat — the veal grand duc, prepared with cream, cognac, mushrooms and served with asparagus tips.

Like omelets? Then go to Le Chalet Basque for lunch. There are several good ones. Any day but Saturday.

THE LION'S SHARE in San Anselmo has rescheduled the reappearance of guitarist Mike Bloomfield with Applejack and Alice Stuart for tonight and tomorrow night. This show was supposed to have been held last weekend but had to be changed at the last moment.

MAKING ADVANCE RESERVATIONS: By all means, make them if there is any doubt about getting a table — unless the restaurant stipulates no reservations.

But if you book space at a certain time, make it a point to be there when you say you will. Even then there may be a slight wait, usually 10 or 15 minutes depending on the table traffic. You can't determine to the minute when one will be empty.

Some restuarants will hold a table for you well past your appointed time — but don't count on it. Diners-out have brought this on themselves. The sad fact is that too many of them make a reservation and never show up and fail to cancel it. You can't blame a harried restuarateur fending off demands for service for refusing to keep a table empty when it's badly needed.

Wine Industry Future Bright

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The growing demand by Americans for wine has made California's wine industry one of the state's brightest economic features, according to the Wells Fargo Bank.

The market growth for wine was probably assured for at least of this decade, the bank said in an analysis released Friday, due largely to the increasing over-21 population, rising disposable income among young Americans and changing consumer attitudes toward wine drinking.

The outlook for wine shipments for U.S. markets is for an increase from 305 million gallons a year now to about 490 million gallons by 1980.

Spring Is Already Beginning

Planting Dutch flower-bulbs is as easy and enjoyable as watching them bloom a few months later. Choose a setting, dig a hole, drop in the bulb with the pointed end up, cover it with soil and water well.

There's no time to lose — spring is already beginning. It begins now for the millions of home gardeners who are planting tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and dozens of other spring-flowering bulbs in their gardens.

Fall is the only time you can start the dazzling display of shapes, colors, and smells that burst forth in late winter and lasts until the first days of summer.

Planting spring-flowering bulbs is as easy as enjoying them. All you need are bulbs and a free afternoon this fall. Flower-bulbs are available by mid-September, and there are thousands of Dutch tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, crocus and "minor" bulbs to choose from. As for a free afternoon, be sure to set a day a few weeks before the first frost.

Bulbs are easy to plant — just dig a hole, drop in the bulb, cover it with soil and water it. Tulips, daffodils and hyacinths go six inches deep; crocus and the minor bulbs at half that depth. Space the bulbs as far apart as they are deep.

By planting different varieties, you'll enjoy many weeks of spring color. Plant all of them at the same time — no matter when they go into the ground, they'll bloom at the right time.

When should they bloom? Crocus, winter aconites and snowdrops appear when snow is still around. Next are species tulips, the modern descendants of older, wild varieties. Hyacinths, daffodils and Single Early tulips follow soon after. Then come the mid-season bulbs — Mendel, Triumph and Darwin Hybrid tulips, fritillaria, anemones and miniature daffodils. Last of all are the late, garden tulips — Darwins, frilly Parrots, Lily-flowering varieties, peony-shaped Double Lates, and the sturdy favorites of home gardeners, the Cottage tulips.

Bulb flowers are adaptable, so plant them wherever you want to see spring color. Some bulbs seem made for "naturalized" settings. Scatter crocus, daffodils, or species tulips across a lawn, a field or a wooded area. Then plant each one where it falls. In the spring, they'll have all the charm of wildflowers.

Formal beds are a perfect place to show off your tulips and hyacinths. Plant many different varieties in blocks of ten or twenty. Blooming together, several varieties will provide bright color contrasts and harmonies in borders or beds around your home. Or plant them in this fashion among shrubbery at the edge of a lawn.

Rock gardens and hillsides are fine settings for all the bulb-flowers of spring. And little garden nooks and odd corners can be enlivened with drifts of grape hyacinths, scilla, anemones, or any of the minor bulbs.

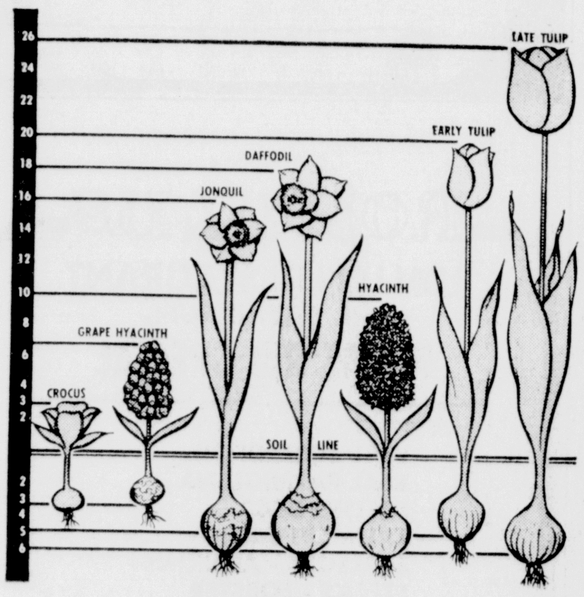

Spring-flowering bulbs make one demand — well-drained soil. They need water, but they will rot if saturated. If you have heavy soil, lighten it with sand. If soil is too sandy, add peat to help the roots catch moisture.

The Dutch bulbs you plant this fall are well-equipped. They contain a tiny flower, stem and leaves, but most of a bulb is food that the plant will feed on. For this reason, bulbs don't need fertilizer during their first year in your garden. If you plan to keep bulbs for several years, however, fertilize them at planting time with bonemeal. In the spring, when sprouts appear, scatter a little more around the shoots. And again in the fall, repeat the process.

When the flowers fade, pluck the bloom but leave the foliage. The leaves will make a new food supply for next year's flower. When the foliage has become dry and brown, you can remove it. And this is also the time to move bulbs to new locations if you wish.

What's new and exciting for the bulb garden? Plant two or three varieties of Gregii Hybrid tulips. They flower early in the spring, with boldly colored blooms and unusual striped foliage. Have you ever seen a white daffodil? Plant Mount Hood this fall and you'll see white daffodils next spring. Do your spirits soar when you see the first spring crocus? Plant some of the large-flowering Dutch crocus that bloom after the early species varieties. Then your spirits can soar for weeks.

Whatever you plant this fall, remember to plant bulbs in well-drained soil before the first frost, apply a mulch when the ground freezes, and let all foliage dry before cutting it. And leave the rest up to nature.

HOW TO PLANT

The most common way bulbs are planted is to dig individual holes for each one. Check the chart above for the proper depth. Plant bulbs as far apart as they are deep. Bulbs look best in clumps of 25 or more.

For planting large masses and clumps, remove the top six inches of soil and loosen the bed below. Set the bulbs in place with the pointed ends up and cover them with the soil that was removed. After planting, bulbs should be watered. A well-drained soil is best. Soil drainage can be improved by mixing compost, sand or peat into the bottom of individual holes or in the beds when bulbs are planted in groups or clumps.

Take a close look at what's in store for gardeners who plant bulbs this Fall — sweetly scented hyacinths, vivid purple Muscari, sunny daffodils, and a wide variety of tulips. These are Early tulips, both Single and Double flowering.

Holtzman Opens For A's In Cincinnati Tomorrow As The World Series Starts

DETROIT (UPI) —Dick Williams' "best and greatest" thrill in baseball might be topped in slightly more than a week.

The team he manages, the Oakland A's, were in Cincinnati today for a 1:30 p.m. workout which will be the start of their campaign to decide whether they or the Reds are the champions of baseball.

The World Series begins tomorrow with Ken Holtzman opening against an unannounced Cincinnati pitcher, likely Gary Nolan.

Tomorrow's first World Series game in Cincinnati will start at 10 a.m., Pacific Coast time, and will be telecast by NBC, Channels 3 and 4.

"Thursday was the greatest win we ever had," Williams said after his team edged the Detroit Tigers, 2-1, for the American League pennant. "Wednesday was our greatest defeat."

Managing the 1967 Boston Red Sox to the pennant "was my first thrill," Williams said, "but this was my best and greatest."

Reggie Jackson suffered a pulled left leg muscle scoring at the head of a double steal in the second inning. He collided with catcher Bill Freehan at the plate, which a lot of A's runners seemed to be doing during the playoffs.

Vida Blue will start one game of the series when it shifts to Oakland.

So ended the American League playoffs, three games to two, in favor of Oakland and the wrapup was due in a large measure to Blue, who came out of the bullpen to crush Detroit's last hope.

But Blue, who shut out the Tigers over the last four innings to make the 2-1 lead stand up the rest of the way, made no secret in the triumphant clubhouse that he, for one, was mad.

He got into the playoffs three times —all in relief —and that's what had him steamed.

"I thought I'd start the fourth game of the playoffs, but nobody told me what to do," he said. "I think I ought to start in the World Series."

"I can tell you that Blue will start in the Series," said Williams when told about Blue's gripe. "But I can't say when it will be. Ken Holtzman will start the first game on Saturday and Jim Hunter will start the second game on Sunday."

Blue began the year as a holdout, getting such a late start on his season that he was unable to approach the brilliance of his rookie season of 1971. And even in the wild jubilation of the A's clubhouse, he didn't hide the fact that he still is angry with Charlie O. (For Owner) Finley of the A's over that.

"Are you still unhappy with baseball?" one newsman asked him.

"I was never unhappy with baseball but at one man who tried to keep me out of baseball and I'm still unhappy with him," Blue said. "Yes, I mean the owner."

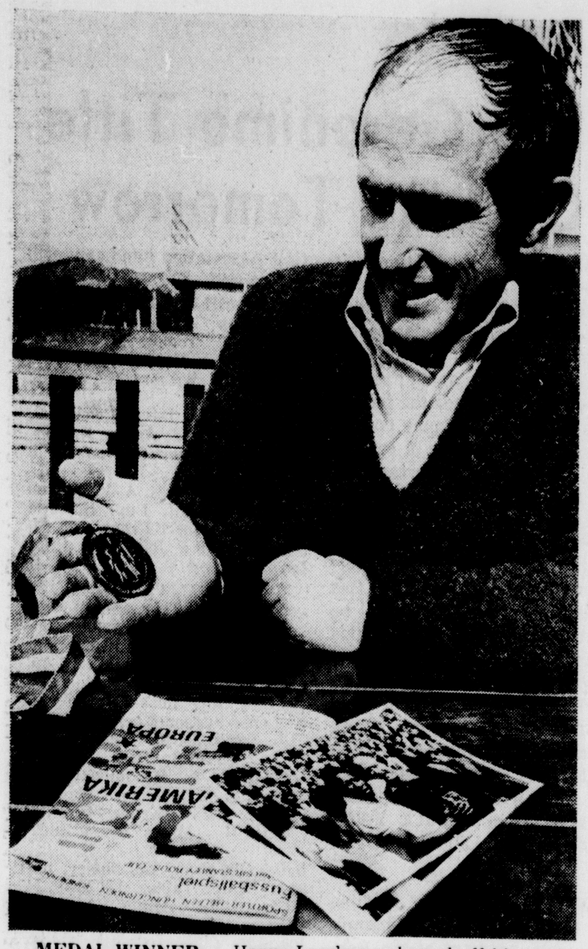

Detroit jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Dick McAuliffe singled, moved to second as Duke Sims walked one out later, and then he moved to third and Sims to second when A's catcher Gene Tenace had a passed ball as A's starter John (Blue Moon) Odom was pitching to Bill Freehan. Freehan hit a grounder that might otherwise have been a double play and was thrown out as McAuliffe scored.

But that finished the Detroit offense for the day as Odom allowed only two hits over the first five innings and Blue three in the last four. Williams said he brought in Blue because Odom became ill —"He lost his breath and was gagging; it was the tension, I'm sure," Williams said.

Meanwhile, the A's got even in the second inning when Jackson walked, stole second, took third with a head first dive on Sal Bando's fly to right and, after Mike Epstein was hit by a pitch, stole home on the back end of a double-steal with Epstein. It was then that he collided with Freehan and was injured.

Hendrick scored the other Oakland run in the fifth when he reached first on McAuliffe's throwing error that pulled first baseman Norm Cash off the bag, was sacrificed to second and scored on Tenace's single.

MEDAL WINNER — Henry Landauer showed off his gold medal awarded for refereeing an all-star soccer match in Switzerland early this month.

A Soccer Story In Baseball Season

It's great to see the Oakland A's make it to the World Series. After watching them win the first two playoff games against Detroit, I had no doubts the A's would make it. Then after they lost in the 10th inning of the fourth game, I had a whole basket full of doubts.

I watched the dramatic final game yesterday on television while talking soccer and chomping on a pastrami sandwich at the Pier 15 restaurant. Owner of the restaurant, you see, is Henry Landauer, one of the world's leading soccer referees.

LANDAUER IS not too hot for baseball but if you want to talk soccer that's another story. He has just returned from Basel Switzerland, and is already making plans for a trip to Surinam. When the 43-year-old Landauer is not running off to some distant land to officiate a soccer match, he can be found running things at his San Rafael restaurant and bar.

He does his soccer officiating for love of the sport and a chance to travel, since there is no pay involved. He does get his expenses paid.

His latest venture was to officiate a benefit game between South American and European all-stars. For the record, South America won, 2-0, but biggest winners were the kids in the Pestalozzi orphan village in Trogen, Switzerland, to which proceeds of the game went.

"THE MOTTO WAS, 'Sportsmen help starving children,' and it was on all the posters," said Landauer. "The game raised about a half-million Swiss franks, which comes out to about $150,000 in U.S. money, for the kids."

Landauer is especially proud of the gold medal he was awarded by the game organizers as being one of three officials picked from the ranks of international soccer to work the game.

Landauer, who reffed in the 1970 World Cup, soccer's biggest world-wide show, will be taking off next month for another soccer assignment. It will be a World Cup preliminary match between Trinidad and Surinam.

"Isn't that something?" he laughed. "Three days of travel time for 90 minutes of work."

But those 90 minutes are really something. It's estimated a soccer referee runs from 8 to 12 miles during one soccer game which includes two 45-minute halves with only a five-minute intermission.

"A GOOD SOCCER referee will be 10 or 15 feet from the action at all times," said Landauer. To stay fit enough for this kind of thing, Landauer says he runs for about one hour, two or three times a week.

He feels youth programs, such as the Marin Youth Soccer Association and Marin County Athletic League soccer for the high schoolers, will push the sport to more prominence with the United States population which is more engrossed in the U.S. brand of football.

"There's not enough newspaper publicity for soccer," said Landauer, "No question about it."

And here I am, cutting into the World Series space to talk soccer. Well, baseball, here I come.

DECISIVE TALLY — Oakland A's center fielder George Hendrick's hard slide into Detroit Tiger catcher Bill Freehan (11) at home plate jarred the baseball loose, giving the East Bay team the winning run in the fourth inning yesterday at Detroit. Oakland won the decisive fifth game of the American League playoffs, 2-1. The American League champion A's visit the Reds in Cincinnati tomorrow for the opening game of the World Series.

A's, Reds End Long Drought

CINCINNATI (UPI) —It has been a long drought for the two teams that begin the 1972 World Series Saturday.

The Cincinnati Reds were last in a World Series two years ago, but they have not managed to win one since 1940.

It goes back even further than that for the Oakland A's, who played in Philadelphia until 1954.

The A's have not been in a World Series since 1931. They lost it that year.

To hear the managers and players of the Reds and A's, it is clear both are convinced this will be their year.

"This team is the greatest," Sparky Anderson says of his Reds. "We have everything a great team must have —power, speed, good defense and tough pitching."

"We're ready to try the National League," was Dick Williams' rejoinder as he brought his club into Cincinnati Thursday night after a grinding five-game playoff series at Detroit.

The Reds' Anderson said he considers Oakland "an outstanding club —far and away the best club in that league."

Pete Rose, Reds' star leftfielder, said Oakland's wealth of righthanded pitchers should work to Cincinnati's advantage.

"We do well against righthanders," he said.

The American League playoffs ended on a sour note for Vida Blue, who held the Tigers to three hits over the final four innings Thursday.

Blue complained that he was not told personally by Williams which game of the Series he was scheduled to pitch.

"He (Williams) told all the press and TV people who was pitching—but he never told me," Blue said.

The A's, when they were in Philadelphia, played in World Series in 1905, 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914, 1929, 1930 and 1931. They won the Series in 1910, 1911, 1913, 1929 and 1930.

The Reds played in 1919, 1939, 1940, 1961 and 1970, winning in 1919 and 1940.

After the weekend games here, the teams will travel to Oakland Monday and play games there Tuesday, Wednesday and if necessary, Thursday. Friday will be a traveling day.

If needed, the sixth and seventh games would be played in Cincinnati Saturday, Oct. 21, and Sunday, Oct. 22.

Gizzards For 49ers Key Sunday

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — Coach Dick Nolan of the San Francisco 49ers says the "Gizzards" will be a key to Sunday's battle at Candlestick Park against the New York Giants.

The Gizzards are the specialty teams. Their nickname came from captain Ed Beard, who noted that "the gizzards are the parts left over from the chicken," a reference to the fact that the specialists are the left-overs after the offensive and defensive units are chosen.

Beard calls the signals which direct the special team blockers and works so hard for the "Gizzards" that he was voted the 1971 Len Eshmont Award by his teammates as the most inspirational 49er.

The Giants bring to Candlestick Park Rocky Thompson, who has averaged 30.9 per kickoff runback, and Richmond Flowers, another quick runback specialist.

Thompson once won the British Empire Games sprints while Flowers is a 9.3 100-yard man and former National Collegiate Athletic Association hurdles champion.

Suspended Campaneris In Series

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bert Campaneris of the Oakland A's will be permitted to play in the World Series but will be suspended for the first seven days of the 1973 season for his bat tossing during the American League playoffs, baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced today.

Campaneris, sparkplug shortstop of the American League champions, had been suspended by AL president Joe Cronin for the last three games of the playoffs against Detroit for throwing his bat at pitcher Lerrin La Grow during the second game in Oakland.

That suspension ended with the end of the playoffs in which the A's defeted the Tigers, three games to two.

Kuhn said he felt that to continue the suspension during

Host Redwood, Terra Linda Prep Gridders Tomorrow

Redwood High School will try to curb its generosity and Terra Linda will try to increase its stinginess tomorrow afternoon in a crucial Marin County Athletic League football game at Redwood.

Game time has been switched to 1:30 p.m. to give some players time to complete the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT) scheduled to be given tomorrow morning.

The freshman and junior varsity games, scheduled for the same field, have been switched to keep the field in good condition for the varsity game. The frosh, who were to play Drake yesterday, will meet the Pirates at Drake tomorrow at 11 a.m. The J.V.s, slated to play Terra Linda at 3:30 p.m. today, will play Monday at 4 p.m. at Redwood.

Redwood's undefeated varsity Giants are 4-0 for the year and 1-0 in the MCAL following an important 35-12 victory over San Rafael last Saturday. Terra Linda finally snapped a puzzling three-game losing streak and evened its MCAL mark at 1-1 with a 16-8 win over previously undefeated San Marin.

Redwood's Wishbone offense has accumulated 88 points in its last three games and ranks second in the league in yardage per game, but persistent turnovers plague the Giants.

Last week against San Rafael, Redwood lost two fumbles and four interceptions. In the 12 series when they didn't give the ball away, the Giants scored five touchdowns, an indication of the kind of prowess they have.

John Troppmann, who threw three T.D. passes against the Bulldogs, will start at quarterback. The running backs will be Ron Small (96 yards last week), Daryl Edralin (two scoring catches) and Mike Connor. Frank Giorgi, who gained 117 yards in one game this year, will see limited action because of a broken nose.

"We're high as a kite for this one," said Redwood coach Phil Roark. " We haven't beaten them since 1968."

Terra Linda counters with the

Marin Tars, Solano In Grid Loop Opener

The College of Marin Tars visit Solano College in Suisun City tomorrow night at 8 o'clock seeking football victory number two in the Camino Norte Conference opener for both clubs.

The Tars (1-3) match records with Solano but present a different attack. Marin features the passing of quarterback Kevin Donohoe, while the Solano eleven emphasizes running with backs Allan Grant and Thyron Grisby. Grant has garnered some 199 yards in 31 carries. Grisby has 188 yards on 41 tries. Tar coach Dick Read lauded Grant as "a fine back.

AT TAMALPAIS

Unbeaten Novato Ends Layoff, Meets Drake In Football Clash

After two weeks off to contemplate the situation, undefeated Novato High School will resume its quest for the Marin County Athletic League football title tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. against Drake at Tamalpais High in Mill Valley.

"We'll need 28 points to win it," Drake coach Bob Franceschini said — without despair, since his team has scored precisely 28 in two of its last three outings.

Novato, however, will throw up a fearsome defensive wall which hasn't allowed 28 points all year. The Hornets surrendered just three touchdowns in moving to a 3-0 record, 1-0 in the MCAL, before last weekend's bye.

Drake, 1-1 in the MCAL and 1-3 over-all, won for the first time last Saturday in a stirring fourth-quarter rally against Tamalpais, 28-22. Quarterback Tom MacAusland leads the MCAL in attempts, completions, yardage and touchdowns, and it's hard to ask much more of a passer.

Drake receivers Ken Zepponi, Dan Trimble and Marvin (Corky) Ingraham are all in the MCAL's top 10, so it's not surprising that Franceschini says he'll pass, and Novato coach Al Scott says he's expecting it.

"We will strive for a balanced offense," said Scott. "We're not that outstanding running or passing, but we're good at both."

Balance may work, since Drake is last in the league in total defense. Franceschini fears the run more, on the basis of Novato's late ground drive that led to the game-winning field goal two weeks ago against Terra Linda. Scott feels the poor passing night of quarterback Tom Conklin was not a true reflection of his skills, and intends to throw frequently against Drake.

Both teams will be healthy for the game, except that Drake will continue to miss defensive back Ric Herbert, now feared lost for the year with a thigh muscle injury sustained Sept. 16.

The lineups:

Rozelle Understands Delicate Situation

Third of Series

Pete Rozelle made multi-millionares out of professional football club owners when he insisted that all National Football League teams ought to share television revenue in a single package TV contract instead of negotiating separate individual deals on their own.

That was more than a decade ago shortly after Rozelle was elected commissioner of the NFL in 1960. Rozelle ran into some stiff opposition initially from clubs that were doing pretty good on their own. However, when Rozelle's plan worked out in handsome style with a dazzling series of TV network contracts, the NFL's old guard figuratively salaamed before their youthful commissioner.

"PETE ROZELLE," said Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, "is a gift from the hand of Providence."

"What Rozelle did with television receipts probably saved football in Green Bay," said Vince Lombardi, the late coaching genius who most people thought saved football in Green Bay.

Now, Rozelle and pro football owners see TV, which made them rich beyond their wildest dreams, as a potentially destructive ogre that could make them paupers if a 75-mile blackout ban on home games does not remain in effect.

ROZELLE ENVISIONS empty stadiums if home games are telecast locally. He testified before a Senate committee that lifting of the ban would destroy home gates. "When people get accustomed to having something free they are not likely to be enthusiastic about paying for it on other occasions," he said.

As for one bill pending in congress that would prohibit home blackouts if a contest were sold out 48 hours before game time, Rozelle made two points: (1) holdbacks on ticket purchases would be the order of the day and (2) TV programming would be turned topsy turvy in a last minute scramble.

"INDEED," HE SAID, "it would be questionable whether the NFL could rationally conduct contract negotiations with any network on such a basis. If networks were obliged to vary present scheduling practices on the basis of last-minute ticket sales factors, total confusion would be produced among the networks, their local broadcasting affiliates, their network advertisers and the corporation (the AT&T) supplying network cable facilities. Even the local TV listings would be unreliable guides."

Rozelle always was a sharp and incisive witness in Washington on behalf of his NFL employers. First time he ever appeared before a congressional committee, he was so persuasive that he won an antitrust exemption for the NFL's TV network package contract. And when the National and American Football Leagues merged he again was successful in winning an antitrust exemption.

BUT NOW HE is confronted with an even tough test of his ability as the smoothest commissioner pro sports has ever known. This is an election year and in election years Congress is extremely sensitive to public outcries. The public has been demanding that the 75-mile blackout ban be lifted.

Rozelle thoroughly understands the delicate situation. He has numerous friends in Congress. One of them is Jack Kemp, former pro football quarterback who ow is a congressman from New York.

(Tomorrow: Kemp's plea to his fellow congressmen.)

Finley's Big Day In ABA; Tams Beaten

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

You had to admit it was one helluva day for Charles O. Finley. The much-discussed, much-maligned sports entrepreneur saw his Oakland A's capture the American League pennant Thursday.

The man that saved the deciding game against the Detroit Tigers was Vida Blue, the Cy Young Award-winning left-hander, whose celebrated contract feud with Charlie O. kept him out of most of the regular season.

The Memphis Tams (for Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi), the end result of Finley's dabbling in pro basketball, made their American Basketball Association debut last night, but it was a losing one— 109-105—to the defending ABA champion Indiana Pacers.

Noticeably absent from the Tams' squad was third-year performer Wilbur Jones, who deliberately missed the opening game of the season as a protest against Finley's having failed to negotiate a contract with him. Sound familiar?

In other season openers on a light schedule, Utah upended Denver 115-104 and Carolina outlasted Virginia, 123-115.

WASTE, GRIDLEY

Marinites Have Roles In 1st U.S. Rugby Tour To Romania

By RON LENT

Two Marin County men had a part in it when the BATS became the first American rugby team to travel behind the Iron Curtain last month.

The Bay Area Touring Side (BATS) included player-coach Jim Waste of Ross, Marin County Deputy District Attorney Mike Gridley and 19 other Bay Area ruggers.

The Marin pair participated in an historic three-week venture laden with memories in France, Great Britain, Ireland, and, especially Romania.

"We arrived in Romania Sept. 3 and were treated cordially," Gridley began, "but, oh, that water. We got Boris' revenge (sick) after drinking the water."

Gridley, 27, wal also disenchanted with the Romanian officiating. "Arbitrators there are pro-Romania. For example, one official extended the first of two games at least 15 minutes, because the host team was behind. Finally, the game ended and we won." (One of three victories achieved in nine contests on the tour.)

The former University of California, Berkeley, footballer added, "game time was extended in the second contest, too. They won that one."

However, it appears that the Romanian team may not have required alleged official aid. "Their national team was loaded; they had great personnel. But we went over there to prove we could compete with the best, and we did just that," Waste said.

Matching talents with an Iron Curtain country like Romania was no easy feat when considering the U.S. team's limitations. First, the Americans were playing about every three days and, sually, against different teams. Between games, Waste had his squad practicing "to get the kinks out and to work out the small injuries." Second, the U.S. team only had 21 players, thus only six substitutes were available.

The playe shortage was particularly critical when injuries arose. "We play two 30-minute halves with a five-minute break in between and no timeouts," for the most part, Waste noted. "But when serious injuries occur, you can get a wo-minute time out to remove and replace the injured player. We had so few substitutes available, we couldn't afford injuries."

When injuries developed, Waste was forced to juggle his 15-man lineup. Besides directing field endeavors, Waste, 43, a Tamalpais High School and College of Marin product, had other duties, such as coordinating the tour transportation and hotel arrangements and making speeches.

Upon completing his virgorous tour assignments, Waste reflected on the game itself. Rugby is second only to soccer in world sports popularity and it is catching on in the United States.

"Some 450 college and club-level teams (like the amateur BATS) play in America.

"Rugby is much like American football," he continued, "you have touchdowns and extra point kicks, scrimmages . . ."

Additionally, rugby offers former gridders an alternative to professional competition, thus accounting for much of rugby's popularity. "Ex-football players find rugby ery challenging. Rugby gives you roughness, but not violence as in football." By "violence," Waste was alluding to the blindside hitting and blocking characteristic of football.

"In rugby, it is a much more flowing game with more contact on the (120-yard by 60-yard) field. Also, you have more action and running in rugby. I believe you run an average of five miles per game. For this reason, if you are in good condition and have experience, you usually last longer in rugby than in football."

With such expressed affection for his game, it is no surprise that Waste and his BATS teammates are contemplating another tour — to South Africa in two years.

Waste concluded that high costs will preclude any trip next year. "It cost $1,000 per man on this last trip."

Redskin Jurgensen Is Likely Starter

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The St. Louis Cardinals, who couldn't beat the Washington Redskins with Bill Kilmer at quarterback three weeks ago, are expected to get a shot at doing it with Sonny Jurgensen at quarterback Sunday.

But under coach George Allen's new policy, there will be no public announcement until Sunday on the Redskin lineup.

Kilmer threw two touchdown passes to beat St. Louis 24-10 three weeks ago but Allen switched to Jurgensen last week and after a slow start, he wound up with 14-of-24 passes for 237 yards in a 14-0 victory over Philadelphia.

Presumably, Jurgensen will be starting again even though Kilmer beat the Cardinals the first time but Allen has decided that releasing such information in advance will help the opposition.

St. Louis, which upset the Minnesota Vikings last week, is one game behinj the Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys in the NFC's Eastern Division with a 2-2 record. The Cardinals, playing one of the toughest schedules in pro football this year, already have upset wins over Baltimore and Minnesota.

In the other games Sunday, San Diego is at Miami, Cincinnati is at Kansas City, Dallas is at Baltimore, Buffalo is at Oakland, Los Angeles is at Philadelphia, Houston is at Pittsburgh, the New York Jets are at New England, the New York Giants are at San Francisco, Minnesota is at Denver, Atlanta is at New Orleans and Chicago is at Cleveland. In the Monday night TV special, Green Bay battles Detroit.

Miami, the only unbeaten team in pro football, will be favored to stretch its record to 5-0 when it meets a San Diego team that has improved this year.

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors Friday rescheduled a game with Baltimore at the Oakland Coliseum from next Tuesday to next Monday night because of the World Series.

NEW HOCKEY LEAGUE

Opening With NHL Flavor; Aeros Win

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

It was a World Hockey Association grand opening with a National Hockey League flavor.

Bobby Hull was there, but only to receive an award as the outstanding player in last year's NHL western division. The scorecard listed the teams as "Rangers-Montreal" and the star of the game was (who else?) a former NHL-er.

Nonetheless, the 6,273 youthful fans who turned out to see the New York Raiders and Winnipeg Jets make their WHA debuts at Madison Square Garden were more than enthusiastic over the arrival of the new league, even though the locals went down to a 6-4 defeat when Chris Bordeleau scored a four-goal hat trick.

In other WHA inaugurals, the Houston Aeros downed the Chicago Cougars 3-2 and the New England Whalers edged the Philadelphia Blazers 4-3. There were no other games scheduled.

A 25-foot shot from the front of the net by Frank Hughes at 18:34 of the final period made the difference for Houston in its initial WHA triumph over Chicago.

Larry Pleau's short slap shot with 2:11 remaining decided the New England-Philadelphia contest as 11,692 turned out to welcome former Bruins' hero Derek Sanderson back to town.

United States, Romania Tied In Net Davis Cup

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI)—The United States and Romania were tied 1-1 on the first day of their Davis Cup finals after Stan Smith, the reigning Wimbledon champion, defeated Romanian national idol Ilie Nastase 11-9, 6-2 6-3 and Romania's aging Ion Tiriac outbattled Tom Gorman 4-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Smith won the first set after a gruelling 75-minute performance repeatedly interrupted by arguments between the two players and Romanian linesmen.

He also took the second, clearly dominating Nastase who made a series of unbelievable mistakes and double faults.

Smith sailed to a 3-0 lead in the second set, then went on to 4-1, and 5-2 before making it 6-3 and thus underlining his unusually surprising strength on the clay court.

Tamalpais Girls Win Swim Meet

Ginger Massey won three events — the 100-yard individual medley, the 50 breaststroke and 100 backstroke — to lead Tamalpais High School to a 66-47 victory over host Drake in a Marin County Athletic League girls swimming meet.

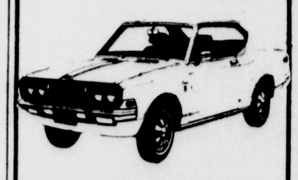

In other meets, host Terra Linda swamped San Rafael, 75-38, and visiting Marin Catholic edged Novato, 58-55.

World Series Choice: Reds

Combined AP & UPI

LAS VEGAS — Nevada oddsmakers think the Cincinnati Reds will beat Oakland in the World Series but they differ slightly on the point spread. Harrah's Tahoe racebook lists the Reds as 7-5 choices while Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder gives Cincinnati a 3-2 edge.

Football

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Rams signed wide receiver Dick Gordon yesterday and gave the Chicago Bears the 1974 No. 1 draft choice received in a trade with the Washington Redskins.

Gordon, who played in the Pro Bowl in 1970 and 1971, was a free agent who had played out his option with the Bears. He had played with Chicago for seven years after being drafted seventh in the 1965 draft from Michigan State.

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers said yesterday Oakland Raiders managing partner Al Davis had flagrantly violated a league rule by allowing taxi squad players on the bench during this week's game.

A formal complaintto National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle would be filed, according to John Breen, Oilers general manager.

Oakland crushed Houston 34-0 last Monday night.

"I told him he may not have them (taxi squad players) there and he had them there anyway," Breen said. "And this time I took pictures of the people on the bench."

NEW YORK — If all tickets to the Jan. 14 Super Bowl in Los Angeles are sold by Jan. 4, the game will be televised in the Los Angeles area.

This was the word yesterday from National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle who labeled the lifting of the blackout as an experiment. A Senate subcommittee has proposed elimination of all area blackouts if the game is sold out in advance.

Rozelle said the league opposes such action. He is assembling facts concerning legal conflicts, stadium contracts and radio and television commitments and will present the study to Congressional leaders reviewing NFL procedures.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Duane Thomas is still talking contract with the San Diego Chargers but he isn't saying much to anyone else.

Thomas has been talking to Chargers coach Harland Svare and is seeking a three-year contract worth $300,000. The team has countered with a $210,000 deal.

Tennis

BOCA RATON, Fla. — The dynamic duo, Chris and Jeanne Evert, continued their sisterly assault yesterday on the old pros of tennis in the third round of the $100,000 Virginia Slims tennis match.

Jeanne, the 15-year-old younger sister, advanced to the third round by default when veteran Margaret Court was crippled by leg cramps.

Chris advanced in her first match Thursday by whipping Laurie Fleming 6-1, 6-1, the same score by which top-seeded Billie Jean King advanced yesterday in defeating Leslie Hunt of Australia.

Karen Krantzcke scored the only upset Thursday when she defeated sixth-ranked Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, 6-3, 6-3.

Boxing

STATELINE, Nev. — Muhammad Ali and light heavyweight champion Bob Foster have signed contracts for a 12-round heavyweight bout Nov. 21.

The bout, scheduled at the Sahara Tahoe hotel, was okayed by Jack Davis, Nevada boxing commissioner. The fight is billed as a championship contest for the vacant North American Boxing Federation's heavyweight crown.

Golf

VIRGINIA WATER, England — Lee Trevino beat Doug Sanders 2 and 1 and advanced to the semifinals of the Piccadilly World Match Play championship.

Ranger Manager Announcement

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)— The Texas Rangers will probably name a successor to Ted Williams as manager of the club shortly after the World series, General Manager Joe Burke said Thursday.

"I'll meet with Bob Short (team owner) in Cincinnati for the World Series and we'll start talking to people then," Burke said.

TARS

He's a power runner like Grisby."

Each team comes off a defeat last week. Solano was mauled by Monterey Peninsula College, 47-14, while Marin bowed, 37-31, to Gavilan College of Gilroy.

"We're going to throw. With a kid like Donohoe who has thrown eight touchdown passes so far (four last week), it is best for us to pass. We also have good receivers in Mike Corder, Neal Given, and Jeff Thurston. We'll also throw to our backs Bob Daniele and Leon Howard," Read said.

The Tars are sound physically with only fullback Mark Costello "questionable. He'll play some, despite a sprained left knee," Read said.

Defensively, the Tars hope to contain the ball-control attack of Solano by utilizing a "basic defense with variations," Read continued.

Read added, "they've beaten us the last two years in a row, but we can take them if our passing game clicks."

CAMPY

the World Series "would unfairly penalize the innocent teammates and would impair the ability of the Oakland club to perform at its best in the series."

Kuhn said that Cronin had set the original period of Campaneris' suspension only until the end of the regular season "and deferred to me any further action because I have jurisdiction over the World Series in which the Oakland club was a possible participant."

While deciding against barring Campaneris from the series, Kuhn said he felt the shortstop's "deliberate bat throwing was an extremely serious and intolerable act which requires a further penalty."

Kuhn said that during the seven-day suspension in 1973 "Campaneris will not be allowed in uniform and will not be paid the salary he would otherwise have earned."

Campaneris' financial share in either the AL playoffs or the World Series is not affected by either suspension.

Campaneris said the action of the commissioner made him "very happy" because he had been afraid he might not be allowed to play in the World Series.

Asked how much the seven-day suspension without pay would cost him next season, Campaneris said, "I have to talk to the owner (Charles O. Finley) about that."

Through a mix-up the Oakland infielder did not learn of Kuhn's action until he arrived at Riverfront Stadium for the A's workout today. An aide of the commissioner had handed a copy of the ruling to A's manager Dick Williams last night because Camapaneris was not available at the moment, but Williams apparently had no time to give it to Campaneris before the workout.

Campaneris said his left ankle, which was struck by one of La Grow's pitches in the incident which led to the bat-tossing, still is slightly sore but "I think if the trainer wraps it up I can play on it.

"I will try to run on it today and see how it is," Campaneris said. "I thinu it will be OK if I run straight but I'm not sure about jumping around."

MCAL's stingiest defense, which has yielded 125.5 yards a game against two pretty good offensive teams, Novato and San Marin.

The Trojans will be going with a new starting quarterback, Kevin Kirby, who won the job from incumbent Jeff Leaird with a fine late-game performance in the victory over San Marin.

Coach Don Lucas has shuffled his lineup drastically, much of it necessitated by the injury to John Loberg, at 223 pounds the MCAL's biggest lineman and one of the best. He strained knee ligaments against San Marin, and will be replaced at offensive right guard by Greg Marioni and defensive left tackle by Tom Larkey.

Wes Emerson, recovering from an injury, takes over for Jay Love at tight end and Prep of the Week Scott Logan will start over Steve Withers at fullback.

On defense, Leaird replaces Kirby at right safety, and Rick Tallariti starts over Larry Offenback at cornerback.

No Raised Rooftops In Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Oakland fans didn't exactly raise the rooftops and storm city hall when the A's won the American League baseball pennant. Afterall, their heroes were 1,500 miles away. And it was raining outside.

After the A's 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Thursday, some banners were hung. There was scattered horn blowing and a few taverns reported celebrating crowds. But the celebration was subdued for a city with its first pennant winner.

"Where's Cincinnati?" inquired a wet banner unfurled across City Hall, referring to the A's World Series opener Saturday against the Reds.

Putting his civic duties aside, Mayor John Reading came out to place a garland around the neck of the team's mule mascot Charlie O, named in honor of A's owner Charles O. Finley.

With a small crowd forming in the rain, Charlie O's trainer coaxed him to give his best smile for the A's and a horse laugh for Detroit Manager Billy Martin.

Most Oakland fans were just as happy to show their joy indoors.

"I think it's the greatest thing that's happened to Oakland since the Raider football team came here," said Dale O'Dell of nearby Alameda.

In one tavern, patrons pressed the bartender to rent a color television set for the World Series. "It'll put Oakland on the map," said one jubilant woman.

"I know they'll get the championship," said another woman stepping off a rapid transit train.

Still, the thought of a World Series in Oakland simply did not excite some people.

"I can't stand baseball," said one man, who wanted to remain anonymous. "Mostly I'm a track and music fan."

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

Youth On Bills Side Vs. Raiders

OAKLAND (UPI) —Oakland Raiders coach John Madden figures youth is on the side of the Buffalo Bills.

"A young club like that can catch you unaware if they haven't done it before," said Madden of his team's opponent Sunday at the Oakland Coliseum. "The Bills are just settling down as a group.

"We realize they are capable of beating any team because they did beat the 49ers and Patriots."

Noting that the Raiders whipped Buffalo 31-13 in the exhibition season, Madden said Bills head coach Lou Saban has reshuffled both the offense and defense considerably since then without taking away any strengths.

"They look very much improved with the changes," said Madden. "Like Saban's old Buffalo teams and those at Denver, it's a physical team ... they hit you."

Offensively, Bobby Chandler beat out Haven Moses at wide receiver and Jim Braxton complements super running back O. J. Simpson as a ball carrier.

Along with Chandler and Moses, J. D. Hill gives the Bills one of the top pass-catching trios in pro football. They have made life easier for quarterback Dennis Shaw who has 499 yards passing and five touchdown aerials.

The Raiders go into the contest with top health. Clarence Davis has fully recovered from his shoulder injury and is ready to spell Charley Smith at running back next to pile-driving Marv Hubbard.

Opposing the Bills pass catchers will be the top pass defense in the American Football Conference headed by Jack Tatum, George Atkinson, Nemiah Wilson and Willie Brown. They have allowed opponents 36.8 per cent on pass completions, including only four of 25 by Houston quarterbacks last week.

PRESIDENT NIXON'S FOOTBALL LEANING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is well known to be an avid sports fan, but with a definite leaning toward football. That pro-football feeling became a bit clearer today when he let it drop that he didn't know when the World Series begins.

Before getting down to serious discussions about the Paris peace talks with three top advisers at the White House, the four men engaged in some small-talk while newsmen were taking their pictures and observing the scene in the White House family dining room.

The President turned to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and asked if the opening series game between Oakland-Cincinnati was being played today.

No, Rogers replied, it will be Saturday. Nixon remarked, "I can't go tomorrow," indicating impending Congressional adjournment would cause him to stay around Washington.

NHL ROUNDUP

Expansion Teams' Good 1st Impression

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Expansion hockey has definitely made a better first impression than expansion baseball on New York fans.

Only 10 years ago, New York fans had to watch the Mets, in their first year of existence, struggle through 10 games before gaining their first major league victory. But the season is only two games old for the New York Islanders and the expansion National Hockey League club already has recorded its initial triumph, thanks to Thursday night's 3-2 squeaker over the Los Angeles Kings.

The Islanders broke into the win column thanks to Germain Gagnon's goal with only 69 seconds left to play.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Montreal, thanks to Ken Dryden's second shutout in three games, blanked Atlanta 30 and Philadelphia whipped Vancouver 7-3 as Simon Nolet notched two goals for the winners.

NCAA Ruling: 13 Sacramento Athletes Out

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Thirteen athletes at California State University at Sacramento have been declared ineligible to compete for one year because of violation of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rule on predicted grade point averages.

Athletic Director Don Fuoss said, however, all 13 were in good academic standing currently and that the suspensions resulted from a clerical error when they were admitted.

The Hornets will lose only one athlete engaged in competition this fall—football flanker back Bobby Martinez. The others either were not competing during the fall or their sport's seasons did not begin until later in the year.

The suspensions involved an NCAA rule requiring schools to use a formula to predict whether the athletes would receive a 1.6 grade average (C Minus) before they are eligible to compete. This was not done as a result of a clerical error, Fuoss said Wednesday.

Brewer Manager Picks 2 Coaches

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewers Manager Del Crandall filled the remaining two vacancies in his coaching staff for the 1973 season Thursday.

He picked Joe Nossek, 31, who managed the farm club at Danville, Iowa, to the Midwest League title, and Jim Walton, 42, who managed the Brewers farm club at San Antonio, Tex.

Crandall said he was not sure where he would use Walton but said Nossek would be the Brewers' third base coach. They replace Roy McMillan and Jackie Moore who were released as coaches at the end of the season.

The new BMW Bavaria.
6 cylinders. 3.0 liters. 130 mph. Under $7,000
Automotively speaking you are looking at the wonder of the age. The new BMW Bavaria.
Take the way it goes. Up to 130 mph. (Cruises at 120 all day long.) That's because its engine is built around the most efficient combustion system ever designed.
Take the way it holds the road. Like you'd hold a beautiful girl. Tight. That's because of a remarkable suspension system that features MacPherson struts up front, semi-trailing arms in back, with BMW's unique multi-jointed rear axle.
Small wonder Ken Purdy says, in Playboy Magazine, that BMW may be the best car in the world.
Frankly, our BMW engineers are auto fanatics. Their aim to to build cars they like to drive. (Can you imagine the uncommercial effrontery of that?) But then, what else would you expect from a company with the fifty-year speed and endurance traditions of Germany's famed Bavarian Motor Works?
If you have an instinct for great engineering test-drive the new BMW Bavaria Wundercar!

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

GIVING A PARTY? Here are some notables to add to your invitation list. They're all celebrating birthdays today ...

1. LARAINE DAY, 55 today, is as sweet-looking now as Hollywood ever pictured her. She is seen on TV commercials these days, which are short, easy to do, and sometimes pay $50,000 or more. Laraine quit movie-making to marry baseball manager Leo Durocher and divorced him 13 years later. She is probably best remembered playing nurse for Lionel Barrymore and Lew Ayres in the "Dr. Kildare" movie series. Born to a Mormon family in Roosevelt, Utah, she was not originally named Day. Can you guess whether her real last name was Smith, Brown, or Johnson?

2. LOU SABAN, now in his 12th year of pro football coaching, is 51 today. This season Lou is back with the Buffalo Bills, coaching the team he took to an AFL title a few years ago. During World War II he served in the OSS, learning to speak Chinese to fill his China-Burma assignment. Guess where Saban was coaching last year — at Denver, Kansas City, or San Diego?

3. HERB BLOCK, prize-winning American cartoonist, reaches 63 today. This Chicago kid delights in poking fun at the powers-that-be and has taken two Pulitzer prizes doing so. Would you believe the U.S. Post Office had him design a special stamp to commemorate the anniversary of — the Bill of Rights, the Liberty Bell, or the invention of the bathtub?

4. YVES MONTAND, French singer and actor, can be toasted today with a good glass of Burgundy wine. He's 51 years old! This Parisian won a following, singing "Let's Make Love" and starring in "Z." Is it correct to say he got into show business imitating Mickey Mouse?

ANSWERS

1. Johnson; 2. Denver; 3. Bill of Rights; 4. Yes

EAST CAPTURES

West opened the ten of diamonds, and East captured a picture card with his ace. East could see no advantage in returning a diamond, and he reached for a heart — planning to lead up to dummy's weakness.

Just in time, East reconsidered. South had bid hearts, so the suit was likely to be unproductive.

The spades were a different story. Dummy had bid spades, and the weakness of dummy's spades was in clear sight. If South had only two spades, the defenders could surely develop three or four tricks in the suit.

BEST ATTACK

East found the best way to attack spades: He led out the ace and then continued with the deuce of spades. This would produce four immediate tricks if South had only Q-x of spades.

As it happened, South's spades were stronger, but he still couldn't make enough tricks to fulfill his contract. South could take five clubs, two diamonds and one spade. As soon as South led hearts, West took the ace of hearts and returned a spade through dummy's ten. East got two more spade tricks, defeating the contract.

South would make the contract if East led a low spade instead of the ace at the second trick. South would win with the queen of spades and lead a heart at once. West could take the ace of hearts but the defenders would not be in position to take the rest of the spades.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club and the next player passes. You hold:
♠ - A J 9 2
♥ - 10 8 3
♦ - A 6
♣ - 8 5 4 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade. The only question is whether to raise clubs rather than show your own suit. It practically always pays to show your own suit rather than raise partner's minor suit.

Strip Mining Curbs Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House has approved overwhelmingly and sent to the Senate a bill to restrict strip coal mining, especially on slopes and scarred land.

Opponents of the bill that carried by a 265 to 75 margin Wednesday, said it would reduce coal supplies and drive up the cost of energy to consumers.

Strip mining is a process of scraping away topsoil to surface mine coal.

The Senate has held up consideration of its own weaker bill pending the outcome of the House vote.

The store is open seven days a week. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday; 10 to 6 on Saturday and noon to 6 on Sunday. The store opene in premises formerly occupied by Manor House.

Market In Sharp Drop At Opening

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices on the New York Stock Exchange fell sharply today.

The downtrend has been steady since Wednesday and the feeling is growing a rally may not come until after the Nov. 7 presidential election.

Wall Street analysts said investors continue concerned over rising interest rates and the possibility of a credit squeeze later in the year or early in 1973. Also, disappointment prevailed over the absence of favorable news following talks in Paris involving presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiators on the Vietnam war.

Brunswick Corp. topped the NYSE actives, dropping 1 1-8 to 27 7-8 on 320,400 shares. A company spokesman said there was no news to precipitate the decline.

Prices also declined on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex actives were headed by Buttes Gas & Oil Co., off 1-2 to 23 7-8 on 22,600 shares.

On the Big Board, IBM showed one of the biggest losses of the morning, 6 1-2. The issue, off more than 9 points in the past two sessions, has been weak since the company lost a legal attempt to delay an antitrust suit by Telex Corp.

Steels, motors and chemicals were mostly lower. General Motors lost 2 1-4 on news of strikes in Georgia and Ohio facilities. Eastman Kodak fell 2 1-8.

Superior Oil showed a 4 1-2 point gain in the oils, which were mostly lower.

Record High

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Net income of Great Western Financial Corp. for the nine months ended Sept. 30, before extraordinary items, amounted to $26,849,000 or $1.80 per share, a record high, spokesmen have announced.

Pam Am Bonds Are Speculative

By Roger E. Spear

Q. I am 32, self-employed with children who will be ready for college in 14 years. Would Pan American World Airways 4½s of 1986 be a good investment if held to maturity? Does the bond selling at $600 return 12.5 per cent annually under those conditions? — A.P.

A. This particular security is not a straight-debt obligation but rather a convertible subordinated debenture. It is therefore able to be exchanged at the holder's option into common stock at $34.84 a share. With the common now trading at $11.50, this feature is of no current interest. Further, this security is subordinate to all superior debt issues and although a direct-debt obligation of Pan Am, it is unsecured.

Under tems of the sinking fund the company must retire $10,000,000 of these debentures each year 1976-85. In other words, by 1986, when the issue matures, $100 million of the $175 million will have been retired. The company has the option to voluntarily retire a like amount each year. Thus your chances of holding through 1986 are reduced.

The bond, trading at 53½, yields 8.5 per cent currently with a possible capital gain of $465 per bond. There is a high element of risk in this B-rated issue, Pan Am having operated at a deficit in each of the last three years. An 86-cent-a-share deficit was also reported in the first half of this year. Unless you wish to speculate, I would avoid this debenture.

Germany has 1,800 breweries producing more than 6,000 varieties of beer.

ISN'T GOOD SERVICE WONDERFUL?
Our service is "late" but nice. Marin commuters have found it very convenient that our service department is now open till 7 pm. Monday thru Friday. In most cases we can give your VW a maintenance or tune-up by 7 pm if you come in by 5 pm. Call our private service line 388-5230 and give us a vote for "late" service.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Election On Housing To Be Asked

The Marin County Housing Authority board has decided unanimously to ask county supervisors to set an election next year to authorize construction of 400 units of low income housing in the county.

Director Wallace K. Shepherd said the board will present its plan to supervisors on Tuesday. Proposed are 200 to 300 units in the unincorporated area and the rest in Marin's cities.

The board set a special closed meeting for 7 p.m. Wednesday to consider the recent letter of resignation from Keith Kelly, authority deputy director. The session will be held in the planning chambers of the Marin Civic Center.

The board also set another closed session for Nov. 8. At that time it will hear charges by Melvin Randolph, former manager of Marin City Public Housing, who contends he was wrongfully dismissed by the administration.

Shepherd said the board met in closed session Wednesday night to listen to charges and counter charges by board members and authority staff, then agreed, following the meeting, to work together in harmony in the future.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Persistent, Excess Noise May Cause Temporary Hearing Loss

Noise is measured in decibles and loudness is determined on a sound level meter. The slightest noise heard by a healthy young person is defined as zero decibles. Noise must register 140 decibels before it becomes painful. Ordinary speech is 60 decibles, whereas background noise in a residential area at night is only 40. This may explain why a conversation among several persons on the sidewalk at dawn sounds so loud.

At three feet, a car horn registers 114 decibles, a pneumatic drill, 120; a large pneumatic riveter, 125 at four feet, a 50 horsepower victory siren at 100 feet is 138 decibles. Snowmobiles have recently been added to the list. A jet engine running in a test control room moves the level up to 118. A sound meter placed 80 feet from the jet at takeoff registers 130 decibles or more — almost as high as the victory siren. It is little wonder that all personnel working on the field must wear ear protection.

THEY MUST ALSO have hearing tests at regular intervals as long as they continue to work in the noisy atmosphere.

Excess noise, especially when persistent, tends to cause ear fatigue with temporary loss of hearing. Getting away from the source of the noise for several hours or over the weekend leads to recovery. Hearing returns to its previous level of acuity. But industrial noise levels greater than 85 to 90 decibles for months or years may permanently damage the hearing apparatus. In the early stage, there is loss of hearing the higher tones; the lowest tones are affected the least. In effect, considerable damage may ensue before the worker is aware of hearing loss.

THE EARS OF some people are more easily damaged by noise than those of others. A change to a less noisy job is recommended when impairment is noted. If this is not possible, the indivudual should wear ear protectors or ear plugs. They are made of rubber or malleable plastic and should fit properly in order to reduce by 10 to 20 decibles the noise reaching the middle ear. For a noisier environment, it is necessary to wear earplugs, special muffs over the ears, or a large shield over the head.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

INFLAMED EARLOBES

J. writes: Five minutes after I put on earrings, my lobes become inflamed. Why does this happen?

REPLY

You probably are sensitive to one or more of the materials in this type of jewelry. Pressure also may play a role. Some susceptible women have their earrings dipped in silver or gold; others use tiny sponges under the clasp to prevent the metal from touching the skin. Nickel is a common culprit.

BLOOD INCOMPATABILITY

N. T. writes: Can normal children be born of two parents with Rh negative blood?

REPLY

Yes. Incompatibility occurs in the baby when the mother is Rh negative and the father Rh positive.

SASSAFRAS TEA

B. writes: Is there any value in drinking sassafras tea in the springtime?

REPLY

No, but this beverage is not harmful. Spring is its own tonic and the use of sassafras tea or cream of tartar used to be a nice, but unnecessary, ritual.

A HUMMER

A.C. writes: My friend who is past 80 has a hearing impairment. She lives alone and has acquired the habit of humming unconsciously. Is this due to being alone, a desire to hear sound, nervousness, or an obsession?

REPLY

Humming is a common mannerism or habit of the elderly and is unrelated to the factors you mention. Others sigh or say ho-ho or ah-ah constantly.

CHICKEN SKIN

S.P. writes: Whenever I eat chicken skin, I get diarrhea. Can anything be done about this?

REPLY

Yes — stop eating the skin. Why continue to punish yourself? Apparently you are allergic to or have an idiosyncrasyto chicken skin.

GELATIN AND BLOOD VESSELS?

T. writes: Will drinking one-half box of gelatin a day thicken the blood vessels?

REPLY

No — it won't thicken a thing in the arteries, even though gelatin solidifies after it is dissolved in hot water and cooled.

FACIAL TIC

M .G. writes: I have had a tic in my right cheek for two years. It makes the right eye blink almost constantly. Can this be remedied?

REPLY

Consult a nerve specialist. This annoying condition can be stubborn and resistant to treatment, sg you may as well start with an expert.

BOWLER IN DISTRESS

N. G. writes: After 40 years of bowling, I have had to give it up because of pain in the calf of the left leg. Four or five days later the distress usually subsides, but if I bowl again, it recurs. Do you think I should quit the game completely?

REPLY

Yes, unless you are a bear for punishment. Why does your leg hurt? Perhaps it will help to change your form.

LEUKEMIA

L. R. writes: Is leukemia catching?

REPLY

I doubt it, even though the condition has been brought on in laboratory mice with viruses, and epidemics have been reported. We need more proof than this before becoming dogmatic on the subject. Leukemia rarely occurs in more than one person in the family.

ARTHRITIC THUMB

L. I. writes: Could arthritis of the thumb cause repeated attacks of asthma?

REPLY

Not unless the individual is allergic to the medicine used in treating arthritis. Both conditions could exist simultaneously.

SPINAL ARTHRITIS

A.C. writes: What is done for spondylitis of the spine?

REPLY

This is a form of rheumatoid arthritis that involves the spine. The victim should sleep flat on the back on a firm mattress, supported by a bed baord. He must get additional rest during the day. Exercises that strengthen the back muscles are helpful, as are heat and aspirin. X-ray treatments, the corticosteroids, Butazolidin, and other anti-arthritis remedies are useful. This less common form of arthritis is covered in our leaflet which can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

MAKING THE BAD EYE WORK

G. writes: If a child is cross-eyed, is the good eye or the bad eye covered with a patch?

REPLY

The good eye is covered in order to make the bad eye work.

WEIGHTY WATER

W.A.G. writes: Is water fattening?

REPLY

No, but it is heavy. It adds to the body's weight, especially when the tissues retain more than the usual amounts.

WARMTH RELIEVES ARTHRITIS

P.A. writes: Does using hot water and then cold to wash encourage arthritis?

REPLY

No. Changes in the temperature of the bath water do not cause arthritis. However, warmth relieves arthritis and cold tends to stiffen the joints.

STAIRCLIMBING SAFE

D. writes: I'm 60 years old and have an enlarged heart. Is it safe to climb stairs?

REPLY

Yes, but take it easy and rest or slow down should shortness of breath or chest pain develop.

CANCER SANS PAIN

K.D. writes: Can an internal cancer be present without pain?

REPLY

Yes, but in time, the tumor may enlarge or extend into other organs, producing pain.

MORNING PULSE RATE

M.H. writes: Is 56 or 58 beats per minute too slow a pulse rate on waking in the morning?

REPLY

The rate is perfect, especially after resting all night. It will increase with activity, so there is no need for concern.

SIGN OF DIABETES

S. M. writes: Is itching a sign of diabetes?

REPLY

Some diabetics develop this symptom, but the majority are not bothered.

Jury Must Rule In Turner Case

CLEARWATER Fla. (UPI)— Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Williams ruled Wednesday that the crucial question of whether "Dare to Be Great" franchises are securities must be decided by a jury and not by the court.

The ruling was a major victory for attorneys defending Orlando millionaire Glenn W. Turner and an associate on charges of violating state securities laws.

"I am now convinced I was in error," Williams said in reversing an earlier decision.

"We will proceed under te assumption that the question will be a fact to be determined by the jury," the judge said.

New Commission For Aging Formed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco County Board of Supervisors has created a 21-member commission on aging to serve the city's estimated 100,000 citizens over 65.

The supervisors voted unanimously for the commission Tuesday after Supervisor Peter Tamaras described as "inept" the present office of aging in the mayor's office.

The commission, which still needs the mayor's approval to come into being, will be empowered to appoint an executive director, hold hearings and nake recommendations on problems of the aged.

FORMER FOLIES DANCER

Lilly Silverfield of Greenbrae is becoming known for her colorful mosaics, but few Marinites know of her colorful background as an eccentric dancer hailed throughout Europe in the pre-World War II era. From ballet as a young girl to the famed Bal Tabarin in Paris to a hit revue in New York City to the Folies Bergiere in San Francisco, she had a successful career. The story of Mrs. Silverfield's dancing, well illustrated, and her emergence as an artist in a different field are featured in a story by Dorothy Gardiner in this Saturday's Marin Magazine.

Sears Opens New Store Tomorrow At Northgate

Sears, Roebuck and Co. will open its 15th store in the San Francisco Bay Area tomorrow in the Northgate Mall in San Rafael.

The store will open with a family breakfast in front of the store and a campaign party by the "Children's Candidate for President," Winnie-the-Pooh The breakfast will begin at 7:17 a.m.

"All of our research points to the bright future of Marin County and we're proud to become a partner in that outlook," said Will H. Sanders, manager of the new store. "Our plans for every aspect of the new store underline the positive contribution that we want Sears to make in Marin County."

The new full-line store will contain about 50 individual merchandise departments and a number of service departments. Sanders listed as examples of the store's services Ticketron, Flowers by Sears, drapery cleaning and kitchen planning.

The primary emphasis of Sears-Northgate is on fashion. Sanders said the company had devoted special energy and talent to the creation of fashion departments that Marin County consumers wanted.

"From the very beginning we'll be offering discovery classes in fashion and grooming for girls in their early teens, and that kind of fashion awareness is going to be obvious throughout the fashion range, from women's evening wear to men's fashions to teen fashions to children's fashions," Sanders said.

Complementing the fashion shops will be Sears' traditional strength in appliance selection and other hardline departments, according to Sanders. Completing the full-range selection is an 18-bay automotive service center and a gas island with four double pumps.

Sanders cited a number of positive aspects to the Sears opening. "People think of Sears as a seller of goods and services, which is correct, but Sears also benefits the local economy as a buyer," he said. "Sears buys goods from 1,406 California suppliers, and the amount we buy is significant. In total, these California-produced goods amount to sales of $639 million."

In addition, Sears is buying a variety of Bay Area goods and services for the construction and routine business of the store, he added.

There also is a tax benefit to the community, Sanders said. He estimated that tax revenue generated by the new installation will be approximately $275,000 in the first year alone.

Another local benefit is the employment that Sears-Northgate has created. Hundreds of new full-time ad part-time positions have been added to the economy within the store. Also, the new store has provided dozens of promotions for Bay-area Sears people who are benefitting from the "promote-from-within" policy.

Sears-Northgate is very much a local store, Sanders said, with 36,727 Californians owning a total of 9.2 million shares of company stock. "And that figure doesn't include the employees' own profit sharing accounts. Over 3.5 million additional shares are owned by the state's employees through their profit sharing fund," he said.

Sanders pointed to the environmental concern the company expressed over the new store. "We charged our architect (Parking Architects, Engineers, Planners) and our general contractor (Williams and Burrows) to be especially mindful of ecological concerns during the planning and building of the facility," he said.

All in all, 14 varieties of trees and seven varieties of shrubs were planted around the store and throughout the parking lot to add greenery to the development. Also, seven varieties of flowers will be planted in containers and changed twice a year.

Store hours for the new store will be: Monday, Tuesday and Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 9:15 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 5 p.m.

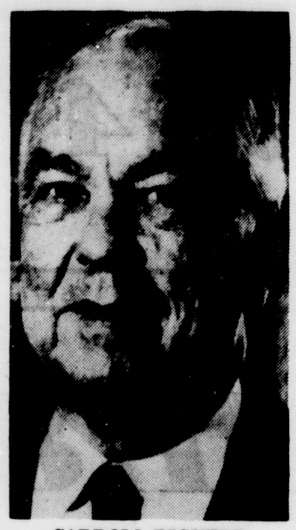

Hours of the automotive center will be Monday, Tuesday, Saturday 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 8 a.m. to 9:15 p.m.; and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Top Astrologer Due At Sears Opening

Carroll Righter, famous astrologer, will appear tomorrow at opening day of Sears, Northgate, San Rafael. He enjoys a fabulous reputation in every country of the world where a free press is permitted to feature his internationally syndicated daily newspaper column.

His column appears in more than 300 newspapers from Rhodesia, Africa, to Sweden and Arizona — and is even in the Vietnam News. He gets out 3,000 pages a month: forecasts, columns, books and lectures. He keeps two telephone exchanges busy, plus a staff of four secretaries and a mathematician.

Righter's name and the accomplishments associated with it are held in high esteem by men and women who have reached the pinnacle of success in the government, business and social world. His following among entertainment leaders has reached a climax never before envisioned by anyone in any scientific field.

THE CANDIDATE — Winnie-the-Pooh will be at the opening tomorrow of the new Sears store at Northgate. Pooh Bear is the Children's Party choice for president, and will be making his first Marin campaign appearance.

Pooh Bear Due In Store Opening

Emily Zinser is typical of the young men and women who have helped make Disneyland world-famous as an international land of fun and happiness.

She'll be at the Sears, Roebuck and Co. new Northgate store with Winnie-the-Pooh and his friends to open the store officially tomorrow at sunrise, 7:17 a.m., for a special Pooh family breakfast.

Her personality and beauty combined to earn the title of 1972 Disneyland ambassador, something she "wanted more than anything in the world."

As the 1972 ambassador, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zinser will travel through the U.S. and to foreign countries extending friendship and greetings from Disneyland.

"I feel very strongly about Disneyland and believe in its ideals. I wanted to become ambassador so that I could bring a little bit of Disneyland's happiness to wherever I visit," she said.

Her accession to the ambassadorship is testimony to her dedication and determination. The 22-year-old resident of Westminster made two unsuccessful attempts in 1968 and 1970 at the ambassador title, but refused to give up before reaching her goal.

At official sunrise ceremonies, Winnie-the-Pooh, the Children's Party choice for president, is making his first Marin County campaign appearance in his bid for the presidency. Pooh will deliver a major address outlining the platform which will carry him out of the Hundred Acre Woods to victory.

The campaign breakfast starting at 7:17 a.m. is for all children delegates as a benefit for Sunny Hills.

The Pooh breakfast will cost each child delegate 25 cents with parents admitted free. All proceeds are for the benefit of Sunny Hills.

Tickets may be purchased tomorrow at the breakfast where Sunny Hills volunteers will staff ticket booths.

An eight-piece Dixieland band will entertain delegates during breakfast after which Disneyland's ambassador will introduce Winnie-the-Pooh, Eeyore and Tigger, who will stage a Disneyland review until the doors open at 8 a.m.

All Marin County youthful delegates are invited to meet Pooh in person. All children are eligible to register during the grand opening celebration for one of two free family vacation trips to Disneyland. They also will receive a special kit for the upcoming campaign containing Pooh for President helium balloons, Pooh posters and coloring books.

At 8 a.m., Pooh will launch an airship from his giant "Hunny Pot" to signify the opening of the 225,000-square-foot Sears store.

Free shuttle bus service will be offered all day from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. running between the Marin Civic Center and the Sears automotive center.

One-Pull Mower Is Introduced

A new lawn mower engine engineered to start every time on the first pull of the starting cord has been introduced by Sears, Roebuck and Co.

In recent tests the new mower engine, Eager I, started on the first pull 97 per cent of the time.

It has the first engine designed and built expressly to power lawn mowers,, according to F. G. Hale, hardlines merchandise manager of Sears new Northgate Mall retail store.

Top Astrologer Due At Sears Opening

stood the test of time impressed itself upon him and quickly brought about his conversion.

He set out to debunk astrology, shoot down the belief in potent influence of the stars — and ended up a leading astrologer of the age. Now he is consulted, even retained on a annual basis, by a galaxy of movie stars, statesmen and business men.

After years of astrological study, Righter was convinced of its value. It can be said in truth that his decision in this regard has benefited countless millions, for the tensions of mid-20th century living demanded the intelligent guidance and purposeful planning which Righter has provided.

A graduate of Dickinson Law School and a former practicing attorney from Philadelphia, he comes from a long line of prominent Eastern families. For years he was a leader in civic organizations including the Pennsylvania Grand Opera and Civic Opera companies, chairman of the Junior Committee of the Philadelphia Orchestra Summer Concerts, chairman of the Professional Players Theater Club and others.

"Insomuch as we are able to determine the effect of the stars and planets on human enterprise we can direct our energies in a manner that will be advantageous to our innermost hopes and desires," says Righter.

Perhaps most fascinating of Righter's work is in the projects of his scientific foundation. Its primary purpose is to prove or disprove astrology by the scientific clinical method.

Righter believes that "any problem can be solved by astrology . . . But remember, the stars impel but they do not compel. Astrology does not make the decisions, but provides you, if you will, with a stop-and-go chart — through the traffic of living."

Righter's commitment to astrology has made him a world authority on the art. His own life is governed by it.

Sewing Machines Gain New Appeal

More than 42 million American women are using sewing machines, according to research conducted by Sears, Roebuck and Co. Gaining new appeal as a creative appliance, the sewing machine is used not only to mend the family wardrobe, but also to turn out tomorrow's heirlooms.

One-third of all outer garments women wear today have been produced on their own sewing machines, according to F. G. Hale, hardlines merchandise manager of Sears new Northgate store in San Rafael.

Sears Stresses Service As Factor In Buying Of Goods

Dollar for dollar, modern appliances do more than they ever have before.

That also means they are more complex. So service has become a bigger factor in a purchase.

Today's television set, for example, may have more than 1,200 parts compared to 150 parts in a 1940 radio. An automatic washer has five times as many functioning parts as a 1940 model.

To help customers keep modern appliances working properly, the new Northgate Mall Sears store opening tomorrow in San Rafael employs many technicians and maintains a large fleet of service vans. Technicians and vans are equipped to service all Sears appliances no matter where they were purchased.

Sears always has serviced the merchandise it sold. Co-founder Alvah C. Roebuck, the company's first technician, was hired by Richard W. Sears in 1887 to repair watches.

Today, Sears technicians number in the thousands and the company's repair parts inventory is approaching 400,000 stock numbers.

It is part of Sears service policy to make repair parts available for as long as reasonable demand exists, regardless of the year the item was manufactured.

NEW SEARS READY FOR OPENING

Finishing touches to the new $4 million Sears Roebuck department store at the Northgate Mall came in advance of the grand opening set for tomorrow. The 700 empty parking spaces will receive the first customers at 8 a.m., but official ceremonies will begin at sunrise, 7:17 a.m., with Winnie-the-pooh, the Children's Party candidate for President. The 225,000 square foot building is considerably larger than the 188,868 square feet in the Sears store on Geary Avenue, San Francisco. Sales revenue is expected to jump by at least 50 per cent at the Northgate Mall. Shuttle bus service will also be provided from the Civic Center. (Independent-Journal photo by Alfred M. Arn.)

THREE SEARS EXECUTIVES

Gordon M. Metcalf (left) is vice-president in charge of the mid-western territory of Sears, Roebuck and Co. George G. Gaugler (center) is mid-California district manager including responsibility for Sears retail and catalog units in the Bay Area, including the new Sears opening tomorrow in Northgate. John G. Lowe (right) is vice president of the nine-state Pacific Coast territory.

New Washers, Dryers Take Care of Knits

In step with the excitement over knit apparel in Marin County, Sears new Northgate Mall store will feature knit cycles on its new line of automatic washers and dryers.

The new feature is designed for care of shrink-resistant knit fabrics — mostly from blends of natural and man-made fibers — which fashion authorities say will dominate the apparel scene during the 1970s. Half the garments manufactured in 1975 will be made of knit fabrics, according to Sears studies.

The exclusive washer cycle for knits is engineered for gentle yet thorough laundering action. This prevents pilling or snagging the delicate synthetic-blend apparel that once required hand-washing or dry cleaning, according to F.G. Hale, Sears hardlines merchandise manager in San Rafael.

In addition to the new knit cycle, other features of the Kenmore washer line include:

A four-in-one agitator with adjustable vanes, permitting four types of washing action, from extra-slow agitator speed for hand washables to heavy-duty action for soiled work clothes.

A pre-soak cycle for heavily soiled garments.

An infinite water level to save water on small loads.

A stain-resistant, porcelain-finish top.

Safety features that stop the machine if the load becomes off-balance during the spin cycle, and when the lid is lifted during the spin cycle. Matching automatic dryers have been engineered to care for all washable items. The dryer features include:

A "Wrinkle-Guard" option that keeps Perma-Prest clothes wrinkle-free by tumbling them intermittently without heat for up to 2½ hours after the drying cycle is completed.

An electronic sensor that shuts off the dryer automatically when the clothes are dry.

Soft-heat drying to prevent baked-in wrinkles and eliminate the need to "guess" at proper temperature settings.

A stationary dry rack for such "don't tumble" items as fine sweaters, other delicate garments and tennis shoes.

A hand-carved, eight-inch high jade Buddha and a complete selection of adult games are listed in the Sears' Christmas catalog.

The Minis — They're Catching On

Mini or compact appliances, once regarded strictly as executive-office and vacation-cottage luxuries, now are proving their worth almost anywhere as modern living necessities, according to F.G. Hale, hardlines merchandise manager of Sears new Northgate Mall store.

Sears research shows that industry-wide sales of mini refrigerators increased from 20,000 in 1960 to 225,000 in 1968. Today one of every 20 refrigerators sold is a mini, and the company predicts that 1980 saes of mini refrigerators will reach 450,000 units.

There is a variety of models, including mini freezers, ice-makers and range-refrigerator combinations. Leisure-oriented living and higher incomes are prime factors in the growth of mini-appliance purchases. Also young find mini-appliances ideal for the limited space in apartment living.

Older persons apparently like the idea of minis to create party areas for themselves and their teen-agers.

Mini appliances first appeared in Europe in the 1930s as small refrigerators. Leisure activities that developed during the 1950s in the U.S. led to their gradual acceptance.

What exactly makes an appliance a mini? Its capacity must be under six cubic feet. Most features of the larger models are included, but scaled down.

For instance, a mini refrigerator has separate bins for crisping and meat storage plus space for ice cubes and eggs. Some defrost automatically. They may be built-in, mounted on wheels or fit counter tops.

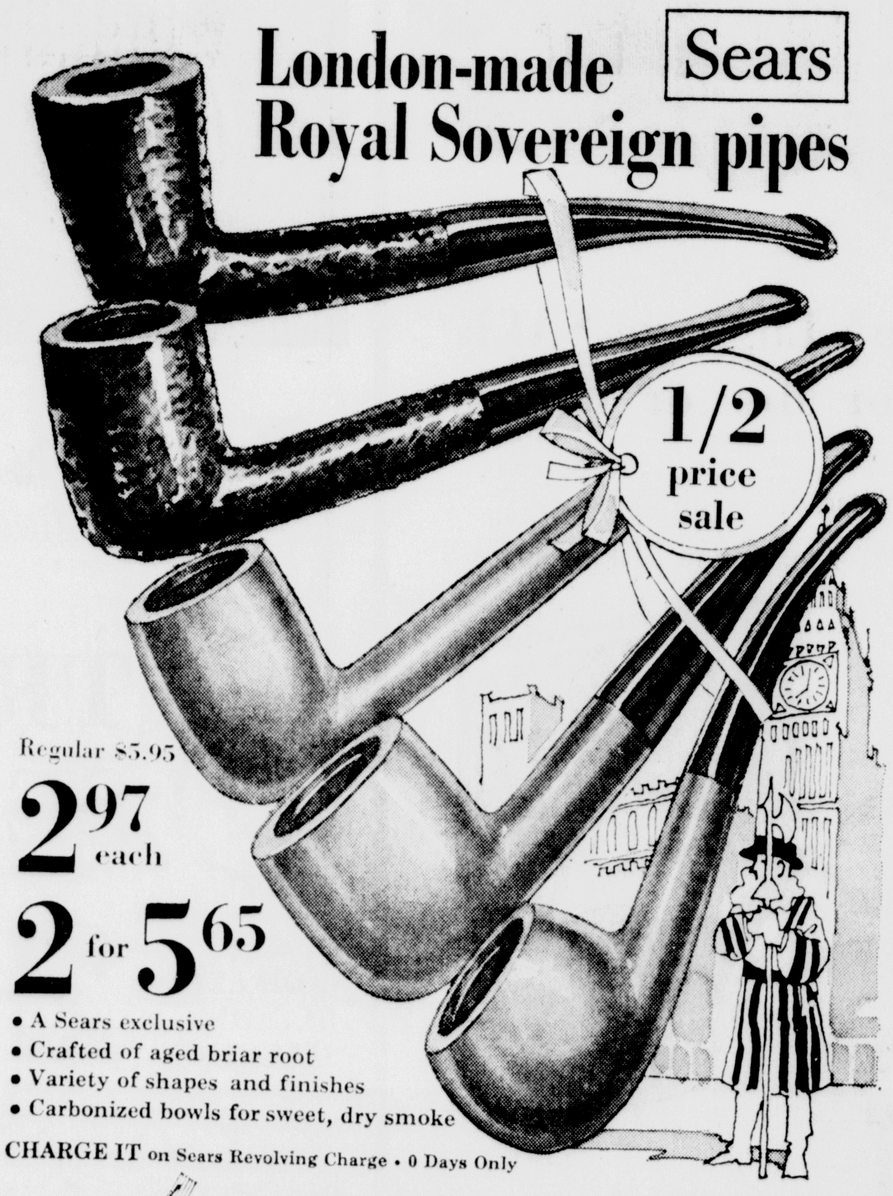

Many homemakers purchase several mini refrigerators and place them strategically whee needed. For instance, one mini may hold nothing but fresh produce and be placed near a sink. Another, containing leftovers and meat, may be located near a stove or wall oven.

Sears Fashion Board Sets Pace

These days, it's the consumer who is calling the shots, and anticipating which fashions she'll accept. This calls for some pretty sophisticated figuring.

But Sears is having no trouble keeping abreast of her changing demands.

Wise in the ways of women, Sears relies on an all-female fashion board to scout, observe and evaluate fashion trends. These busy, involved young career women recognize that today's women are alert, educated . . . aware of what's going on in the world, including the fashion world.

Today's consumer is not overawed by a prestigious designer's label. With a budget that must encompass her home, her family, travel and the good life, she's not about to flip for superficialities when she's shopping for clothes.

She looks for smart, sophisticated styling at a moderate price, with some guarantee of performance. She does demand practicality . . . she feels she's entitled to fashions in fabrics that are the ultimate in easy care. She likes a moderate pace of fashion change . . . she's not interested in anything so far out that it's outdated next season.

She's the intelligent, contemporary woman of the 1970s.

Based in New York, on the perimeter of the world-famous garment center, the fashion board operates under the leadership of Jane Rider. Miss Rider is a true fashion professional with a background of department store buying and public relations before joining Sears in 1963.

Her credentials include active participation in the prestigious Fashion Group, which is international in scope. A trained observer of the fashion scene, she travels extensively, and her comments and predictions make news in the newspapers, on TV and radio wherever she visits.

Miss Rider and the members of the fashion board set the directions for the buyers and the merchants in the hundreds of Sears locations throughout the country, and thus constitute an influence on what women all over America will wear.

Each of the board members is assigned to work with the buyers of a particular apparel or accessory category, and she has become an authority in her particular area. She is familiar with the sources and the potential of her "market" . . . is frequently involved in the development of an item . . . keeps the buyers informed of the board's forecasts on color and silhouette as much as nine or 10 months in advance of a season. Each of these members travels a good deal. Wherever she goes, she is news. She commentates in fashion shows, is interviewed by the media as an acknowledged authority in her field.

No crystal ball is involved. Just good fashion background . . . good contacts . . . lots of legwork . . . and fashion conviction.

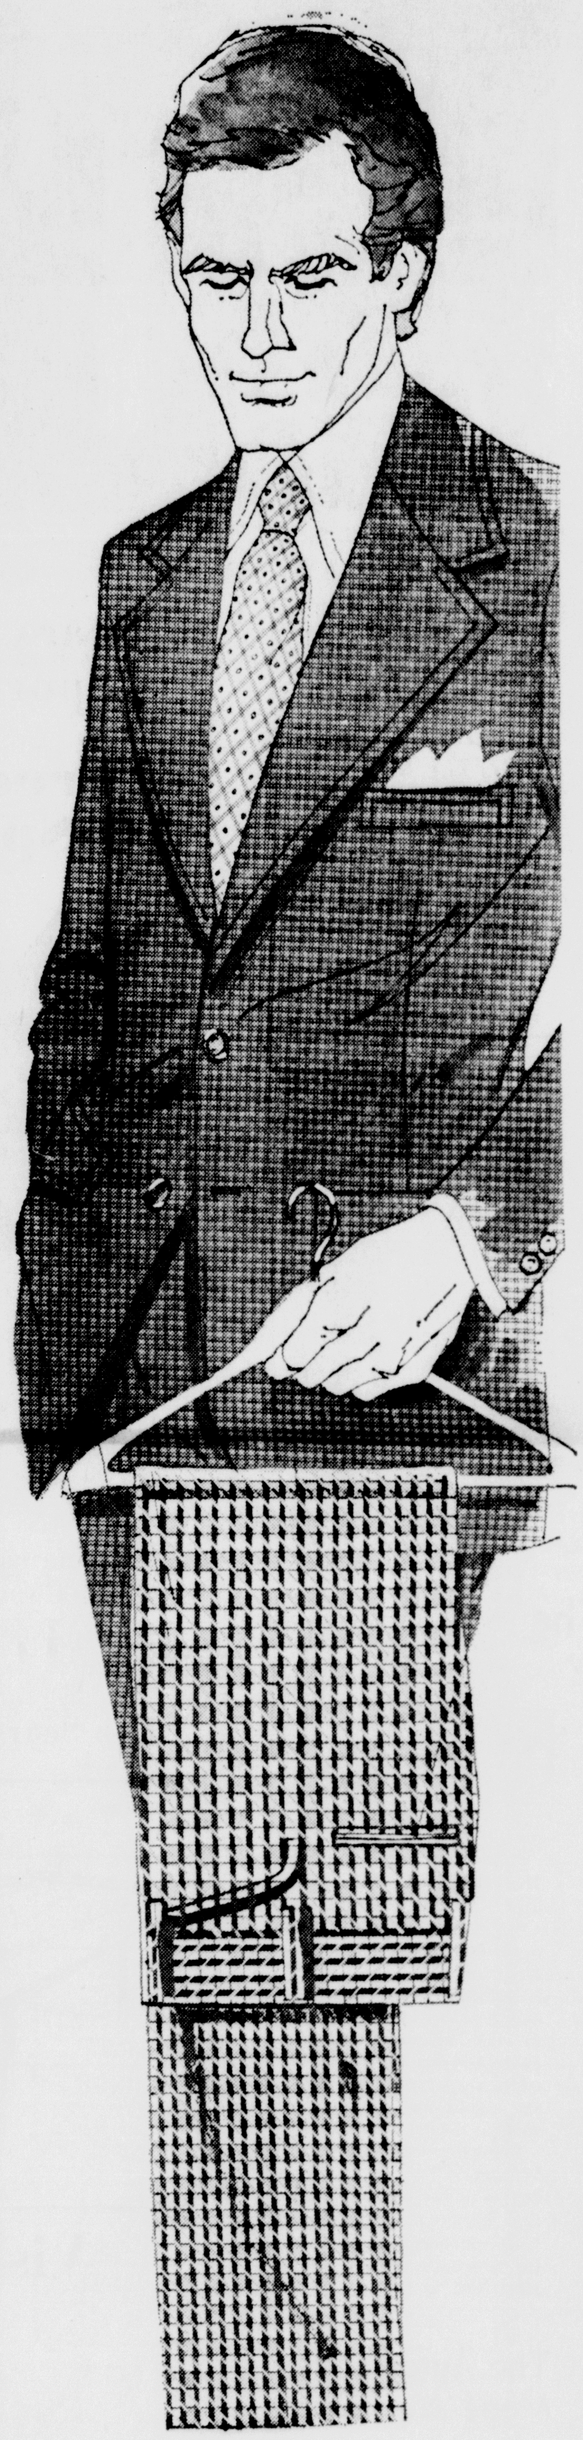

Since it is readily admitted that not all fashion originates in New York, the Fashion Board has members in far-flung locations. On the west coast, Sandra Carter works with many of the fine fashion creators and the press in the Los Angeles area.

In Paris Sears relies on the knowledgeable Claude Riviere. Anita de Giosue covers the fashion scene in southern Europe from headquarters in Florence. Both scout European fashions and send a constant stream of samples and information to the Board in New York.

All of this is taken into consideration in making fashion decisions.

It shows up in the exciting, colorful array of fashions which will be available in the new Northgate Mall Sears store which opens tomorrow.

WASH AND WEAR — This suede jacket and western-style pants combination can be washed over and over again without losing color or suppleness, thanks to a special Sears manufacturing process.

New Facility's Manager Came South From Alaska

Will H. Sanders, a 24-year veteran with Sears, Roebuck and Co., is manager of its newest store, the Northgate retail store in San Rafael. The store opens tomorrow with a family breafast at 7:17 a.m., sunrise.

Sanders, 48, moved his family more tan 2,000 miles to take the new assignment. Before Northgate, he was manager of the company's northernmost major store, Sears-Anchorage.

Sanders joined the company as a management trainee in 1948 in the firm's Seattle First Avenue store and spent two years there rotating among various departments before being transferred to a staff job as field man representing the paint and wallpaper function in Seattle.

In 1954 he became a merchandise manager at Sears-Pasco, Wash., store and in 1959 was named assistant manager of the store. In 1962 he was promoted to a staff position at the Eugene, Ore., store and a year later was moved to the Pacific Coast territory headquarters office in Los Angeles where he held several positions in the personnel department.

WILL H. SANDERS
Store manager

In 1965, Sanders was named manager of the company's Medford, Ore., store, a post he held until 1969 when he was chosen to manage the Anchorage, Alaska, store.

Sanders was born and educated in Seattle. He graduated from the University of Seattle in 1949 with a degree in accounting. He and his wife Naida have three children, ranging in age from 18 to 25, and live at 27 San Marino Drive, Peacock Gap.

Sanders, looking forward to his new assignment, said recently he was busy assessing the needs of Marin customers.

"It seems to me you have more casual living in Marin than in other areas I've experienced. There seems to be a great deal of sportswear," he said.

Sanders said customer preferences in Alaska were bright sunshine colors year-round, owing to the monotony of long nights.

Sears Puts New Suede On Market

In many ways Sears, Roebuck and Co. is its own severest critic.

Standards set by its lab are usually more stringent than general industry standards. For this reason, although washable suedes have been rumored over the years almost as frequently as the discovery of the Fountain of Youth, it was not until this season that the Sears lab gave its approval to a true suede that the firm believed could be certified as washable.

Although suede has been much coveted for fashion by designers, according to Molly McKinnon, fashion counselor to the Sears coat department, it has not met with equal acceptance in the past by the average customer. This was because the luxuriously finished skin rapidly lost its desirable appearance with the accumulation of surface soil and spots.

Until now dry-cleaning was the sole answer — and only a partial answer at best — with more and more professional cleaners refusing to accept suede garments. Washable suede was a dreamed-of but unachieved solution until now.

To be acceptable by Sears standards, the skin had to be stain-repellent, have stain-release properties and be hand or machine washable.

This required the development of special dyes, tanning oils and a new process that would permit the surface to release both oily and non-oily stains.

Working with a basic source, ears encouraged the development of what it considers the first truly washable suede. It, in turn has been given the exclusive rights to the firm's production for the current season. Four pieces consisting of coordinating western pants, jacket, vest and skirt were designed for sale through the company's catalog and in many of its retail stores.

Each of the garments is accompanied by an explicit hangtag that gives complete instruction for stain removal and washing instructions. One of the features of the processed suede is that it can be ironed smooth after washing and can be washed dozens of times with no appreciable change in the surface appearance.

New Tool Chest For Car Lovers

Marin County automobile enthusiasts spend many thousands of dollars a year making their cars mirror their individuality and operate as smoothly as fine Swiss watches, according to automotive center manager Charles C. Mace, of Sears new Northgate store.

However, there's one automotive accessory that up until now hasn't quite fit in with the customizer, hot rodder or high performance addict's efforts — the tool chest.

Now Sears has a tool box that shows you have even taken your automotive enthusiasm to the car trunk or garage. It is called the "Craftsman Road and Track Rally Chest."

It provides compartments found most useful by mechanics.

The Automobile Made Sears Grow

Credit the automobile for helping put Sears, Roebuck and Co. — world's largest merchandising organization — into the retail business.

Exclusively a catalog order firm for its first 39 years in business, Sears entered retailing in 1925 when America was becoming a country on wheels. The switch of population from farm to city, plus the tremendous growth of automobile registration (approximately 17.5 million in 1925) prompted the move.

By 1931, Sears retail sales surpassed the company's catalog sales volume.

Frozen Foods Service Added

Sears has added food products to its line of services and merchandise. Known as Sears Frozen Food Service, it offers a variety of beef, lamb, pork and veal combinations, plus an assortment of fruit, juices, vegetables, poultry and cold cuts.

Information is available at all the customer service departments at Sears Northgate Store.

Pert Golfer Is Adviser For Sears

Shirley Englehorn's confidence and skill on some of America's most challenging golf courses belie the fact that adversity has been her constant companion. The pert, intelligent golf professional from Caldwell, Idaho, has survived two crippling accidents to become one of the leaders on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour. She is a member of the sports advisory staff of Sears, Roebuck and Co., and will be at the Northgate store tomorrow.

Neither a horse-riding misfortune in her teens nor a near-fatal car accident has kept her from compiling an impressive list of tournament wins.

After several years of totally dominating women's amateur golf in the northwestern U.S., Shirley turned professional.

The year 1968 marked a high point in her career: recovering from the automobile accident, she was awarded the Ben Hogan Trophy, given to a golfer who makes a recovery from an accident that has endangered his or her career.

SHIRLEY ENGLEHORN
Sears adviser

A member of the Sears sports advisory staff of Sears, Roebuck and Co. since 1966, she tests and develops women's recreation equipment and, when time permits, is an avid camper.

Arlene Dahl, Big Business Executives Share Session

It's 9 o'clock in the board room of a New York advertising agency. Around the 20-foot polished wood table sit 14 men; eight from the agency, six from a large corporation.

At 9:08 the men are slightly restless. At 9:09 the delay walks into the room. Five feet, seven inches of woman — fresh faced, red haired — introduces herself to each man.

"Hello, I'm Arlene Dahl. I'm sorry, I didn't get your name." It takes another few minutes before all names are exchanged.

When everyone is comfortably seated, and the meeting to discuss marketing plans for the new Arlene Dahl wig line gets under way, it's interesting to watch reactions of corporation men to the invasion by actress, authoress, columnist, beauty whiz Arlene Dahl of the mostly male domain of big business.

"Tell me," says Miss Dahl, turning her blue eyes toward an account executive, "what has been your experience with controlled sales tests of synthetic fibers?" Thirteen men try to answer at once. The wheels of big business start to turn in earnest, quietly sparked by one of the world's most famous redheads, who has little difficulty thriving in the world of business.

ARLENE DAHL
She'll be at Sears

Arlene Dahl products are sold exclusively at Sears Roebuck and Co., including Northgate Sears. Miss Dahl will be there tomorrow.

"When it comes to beauty, I know what works for me," Miss Dahl says.

Taking a quick look inside Arlene Dahl's appointment book offers testimony to another exclusive product, called the Arlene Dahl Beauty Snacks.

Something special must keep this woman going through a half dozen appointments a day, and more than likely it's these "natural" snacks that taste like chocolate, but are made of things like blackstrap molasses and wheat germ. No sugar, just seven calories each, and great zaps of energy.

FOR CHORES — Lightweight electric chain saw with trigger-switch control is designed for round-the-yard cutting chores. Operating on house current or with a portable power plant, the saw, available at Northgate Sears, cuts a six-inch log in seven seconds.

Lightweight Chain Saws Becoming More Popular

More than five million American households this year are expected to own a chain saw — a power tool once used almost exclusively by professional lumbermen.

The estimate was made by F.G. Hale, hardlines merchandise manager of Sears, Roebuck Co. new Northgate store in Terra Linda, based on industry-wide marketing surveys. The store opens tomorrow.

Hale attributes the chain saw's increasing popularity to an evolution of the product into a lightweight unit that is versatile enough for many around-the-home uses.

Without being a skilled craftsman, a homeowner can use a chain saw to build furniture for patio, garden or camp, to erect cabins, bridges, fences or other rustic structures, and to create a number of other valualbe articles.

These uses are in addition to the basic jobs of firewood cutting, tree cutting or trimming, clearing land and pruning.

With non-professional users of chain saws on the increase (now two of every three owners), knowledge of proper operation procedures becomes even more important, said Mergott.

"A chain saw is not more dangerous than many other power tools, but a few basic pointers are necessary before you start," Hale said. He listed the following rules, which are included in the operator's manual furnished with all reputable chain saws:

1. Always fuel saw over bare ground away from the work area; start the saw at least 10 feet away from the fueling point.

2. Breaking in a new engine and chain is important, so don't attempt a heavy cutting load immediately. Run the new engine for the first few minutes at reduced speeds, pressing the oil pump lever frequently to lubricate chain and guide bar groove.

3. Keep chain sharp at all times. Avoid cutting into dirt or sand; check it for sharpness and tension after each refueling and sharpen after three or four tanks of fuel are used.

4. Plan all work before starting to cut, and pick a clear place to stand. Control the saw using both hands; don't fight the saw. Let the saw's weight and self-feeding action carry the chain through its work.

5. If a cut begins to close, pull saw out and insert a wedge into the cut before it "pinches" the bar.

6. Always cut on the uphill side of the log. Stand to the side to keep out of the path of flying chips.

Key To Car Travel

An army may travel on its stomach, but today's automobile travels on its battery.

More than 100 parts and accessories of the average car depend on the battery for their operation. Included are more than 30 light bulbs, 11 electric motors, 14 relays and more than 30 switches.

"The battery rules the dashboard jungle of lights, switches and controls," says Charles C. Mace, automotive center manager of Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s new Northgate Mall store. "It also operates many vital parts, such as distributor, alternator and spark plugs."

Keeping the battery clean also is importnat, Mace said.

To clean the battery, seal all vent holes in the caps with tape. Then remove corrosion from terminals, clamps and carriers with a strong mixture of baking soda and water.

Next, coat connections with petroleum jelly or a terminal spray, to prevent further corrosion. At this point, remove the tape from the vent holes.

A NATURAL LOOK

Open-air living is captured indoors in an entryway for the nature-loving Marin resident. A brick-look carpet pattern sets the mood. Geared to heavy use, the nylon floor covering from Sears is protected against dirt and bacteria by an exclusive treatment. Fresh, casual wicker furnishings add to the Western informality.

One Vacuum For Inside And Outside

Every homemaker knows there are some jobs you can't tackle with a conventional vacuum cleaner.

Consider ashes in the fireplace or sand on the patio, where cleanup with conventional cleaners isn't practical.

An indoor-outdoor vacuum cleaner, available at Sears new Northgate Mall store in San Rafael, has been designed for operation in these difficult areas, according to F. G. Hale, hardlines merchandise manager. The canister machine is built for heavy-duty use in basements, garages, car interiors and workshops, picking up everything from ashes to sawdust to pebbles and leaves.

Powered by a twin-fan motor, the unit develops enough horsepower to suck up heavier objects such as broken glass, bottle caps, screws, nails and small stones.

The vacuum cleaner's five-gallon tank, constructed of lightweight polypropelene, is mounted on a dolly for maneuverability and stability.

Other features include:

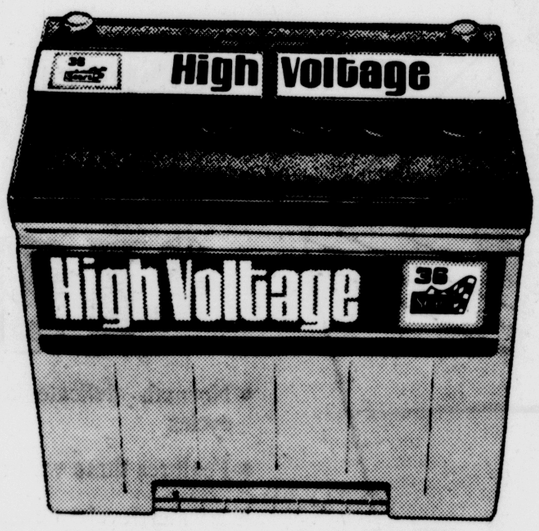

- A six inch utility nozzle.
- A set of attachments that includes crevice tool, 14-inch floor tool with floating brush, dusting brush and two wands.
- A carrying handle with winding hooks for a 25 ft. cord.
